Taft Likens President's Program to Russian Plan

'Outbidding Stalin,' He Says; Extra Cost Would Be 10 Billion And 'Ruin Nation'

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio last night tore into the President's State of the Union message as a "something for nothing," 10-year-plan for America "doubling Joe Stalin's bid."

He pictured the President as a global Santa Claus "with a rich present for every special group in the United States" and told a Nation-wide radio audience:

"It looks to me like playing politics with your money."

The Senate Republican policy chairman, and announced candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, said he figured the cost of all the President's proposals at 10 billion-a-year over present Federal expenditures and said they would "add up to national bankruptcy."

New Deal Ghost in New Suit

T President, he said, "has raised all the ghosts of the old New Deal with new trappings that Tugwell and Harry Hopkins never thought of."

Taft, who held his fire when the President laid his broad social and economic program before Congress, pulled out all the stops last night in his radio attack on the President's social program in general, and his novel "cost-of-living" tax cut in particular.

Accusing the President of courting the left-wing friends of Henry Wallace, he said: "One cannot but feel that the recent announcement of Mr. Henry Wallace has had a substantial effect on the state of the Union."

Noting that Mr. Truman proposed a $40 tax credit for each member of a household, with the cost offset by a $3,200,000,000 increase in corporate taxes, he said that was "about as discriminatory a proposal sa could be made."

Calls Tax Proposal Unfair

It was the equivalent, he said, of a $200 additional exemption for persons in low-income groups and less than $50 for those in the higher. If carried to its logical conclusion it would shift all taxes to a small proportion of the population.

"Up to now, we have gone on the theory that each citizen owes an obligation to his Government to contribute according to his means."

He charged the President's plan would lift taxes on corporations from 38 to 50 per cent, discouraging the increased production called for.

And he asked where industry would get the 50 billion dollars Mr. Truman wants invested in new facilities "if taxes take away the profits and make it unprofitable for new money to go into business."

Approves of Message Ideals

Serving notice that Republicans in Congress would go ahead with their own plans to cut taxes "for good" and provide a program of social reforms without Federal interference, he said he wasn't condemning "all the features" of the President's program, however.

"No one can fail to agree with most of the ideals . . . No one can fail to agree with his general desire to bring about improved conditions in this country and throughout the world," he said.

"But when the President comes to fill out the methods by which he hopes to accomplish this happiness and these great purposes, while he still speaks in general terms, we can see that under the guise of American ideals the old New Deal has been revived in a more global form than ever . . .

Refers Briefly to Marshall Plan

"If any one has expressed a desire in a letter to Santa Claus, that desire is to be promptly fulfilled."

Taft concentrated almost wholly on the domestic proposals of the President, maknig only one brief reference to the Marshall Plan.

Charles Michelson Dies at 79; 'Ghost Writer' of the New Deal

The Washington Post

Charles Michelson, former "ghost writer" for the Democratic Party, died at his home in the Westchester Apartments yesterday. He was 79.

He had been ill and confined to his apartment for more than a year. About 7:30 a. m. yesterday, he awakened and asked his nurse for coffee. Before she returned he was dead.

His physician, Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, said death was due to congestive heart disease.

Funeral services will be held at Gawler's Funeral Home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw., at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Mr. Michelson is credited with salvaging the Democratic cause after the Al Smith debacle of 1928 and with designating the depression which began in 1929 as the "Hoover Panic."

Mr. Michelson retired as Democratic publicity chief in 1943, but served in an advisory capacity.

His wife died in 1935. He leaves three nieces and five nephews.

D. C. School Milk Program Lacks $23,000

February Suspension Due Unless Congress Provides Money

Twenty-three thousand dollars is needed to save the penny milk program in District schools.

Harry M. Gardner, director of the program, said yesterday that unless Congress provides this sum, the entire program will have to be suspended at the end of February.

Gardner estimated this sum will provide more than 19,000 District school children with a half pint of milk daily.

Dworshak Advocates Hearing

The program was cut in half Monday because of a shortage of funds.

A rise in the cost of milk and an unprecedented demand by students for the nutritional program necessitated the cut, Gardner said.

Senator Henry C. Dworshak (R., Idaho), chairman of the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee, said that if the penny milk program is endangered because of the rise in milk costs District officials certainly should be granted a hearing on a request for additional funds.

Gardner said his estimate is based on an average of 19,500 pupils drinking 1,150,500 bottles of milk costing an average of 5 cents a bottle between now and the end of May.

Pupil Must Pay A Penny

The penny milk program provides that the pupil pay one cent of the cost of a bottle, the Federal Government two cents and the District the remainder.

Total cost will be $57,525, with the Federal Government paying $23,010; pupils, $11,505, and the District the remaining $23,000, Gardner said.

During the first three months of this school year $41,764 was spent in supplying 1,018,063 bottles of milk for the children, Gardner said. The milk during this period was furnished by a dairy for 3.9 cents a half pint. This contract expired December 31.

2d Intoxication Charge Filed in Murphy Trial

Fire Chief's Lawyer Objects; Denounces Post for Editorial

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A second charge of intoxication yesterday was added to the indictment against Fire Chief Clement Murphy who is being tried by a civilian board for unfitness.

An outgrowth of a previous specification alleging that Murphy used abusive language to a private in the department's repair shop on September 14, 1946, the new count charges Murphy was intoxicated at the time.

Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher said the new charge was prepared from later information furnished by the fireman involved, William E. Love.

Martin F. O'Donoghue, Murphy's chief counsel, registered an objection to adding the new charge, which raises the counts in the specifications to 10.

Criticizes Post Editorial

Earlier yesterday, when Prosecutor Maher sought a postponement of the trial to Monday, to examine some 2000 to 2500 documents, in the case, O'Donoghue launched a heated attack on an editorial which appeared in The Washington Post on Wednesday.

"I am opposed to any continuance of this case going over to Monday," he declared. "I am not consenting to anything hereafter.

"I don't want to be publicly accused in a newspaper called the "Washington Pravda," that this is a whitewash impugning my integrity and the integrity of this board, and denying the civil rights of my client to a fair and impartial trial."

Austin F. Canfield, chairman of the three-man board, interjected:

"I think we can set your mind at ease there. We are not going to try the case by what is in the newspapers. We are going to try the case by what the evidence is."

O'Donoghue went on to state:

"It is a disgraceful thing that a

Dash to Hospital Fails

5-Month-Old Baby Strangles In Carriage Outside Store

A five-month old baby apparently strangled in his baby carriage outside a grocery store in the Westover shopping district in Arlington yesterday.

The baby, Gordon R. Cowie III of 1412 N. Patrick Henry dr., had been left in front of the store by a neighbor, Mrs. Evelyn Hopkins, while she did her shopping.

When she left the store, she found the baby gasping for breath. She ran to the nearby Westover drug store for help.

Edgar Copeland, 34, drug store employe, rushed the child by car to Arlington Hospital, where doctors pronounced the baby dead on arrival.

Following an autopsy, Dr. William Dolan, Arlington Hospital pathologist, said death was caused by asphyxiation. Copeland said a scarf around the baby's neck apparently had strangled the child.

Mrs. Hopkins, who lives at 1414 N. Patrick Henry dr., was said by neighbors to be in a state of collapse. The baby's parents were notified.

The baby's mother, Mrs. Pauline Cowie, was at her job at the French Purchasing Commission in Washington. The father Gordon R. Cowie, jr., is employed as an oil burner installation man for an Arlington firm. There are no other children.

Dr. W. C. Wellburn, Arlington County coroner, has not issued a certificate pending further autopsy.

House GOP Speeds Tax Slash Action

Martin Indorses Knutson Goal, Calls Policy Meeting on Money Bill Plans

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House Republican leadership yesterday slated House action on a big general tax slash for January 29 or 30 in the first positive answer to President Truman's $40 "cost-of-living" tax credit.

Summoning a meeting of his Republican Steering Committee for Monday to discuss the House GOP course on taxes, inflation control and budget cuts, Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., told reporters:

"The Knutson bill will be the basis of the tax action we take. Of course the Ways and Means Committee will work out the details."

Called "Break" for Rich

The $5,600,000,000 Knutson cut gives the breaks to the well-to-do, but in its recently revised form carries extensive new benefits to low-income groups. It leaves corporate profits taxes "as is."

President Truman's proposal benefits chiefly the lower brackets by giving a $40 cut to every member of household. It pays for the cut by hiking corporate profits taxes $3,200,000,000.

Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), whose third tax-cutting vehicle, like his first two, is virtually certain to collide with a veto, termed the President's plan "as dead as a mackerel."

Martin Backs Principle

Martin's statement yesterday was a leadership commitment in principle to the Knutson bill method, though not necessarily the amount.

"After hearing what the President has to offer, I don't see why we should wait any longer," said Martin. "The Knutson bill does more for the 'little fellows' than his does."

On both sides of the Capitol, meanwhile, the GOP leadership, after berating for two days the President's state of the Union message, was rolling out its own program for policy decisions.

Martin's House Republican Steering Committee meeting Monday afternoon will be followed in a day or two by the session's first joint House-Senate GOP leadership conference.

To Stress Party Liaison

Increased stress on party liaison between the two houses will be the rule at periodic high command meetings thereafter.

Some of the big questions it still has to resolve:

Will the still reticent Senate GOP follow the House Knutson bill line?

Will Congress set its own spending ceilings on February 15, or wait four to six weeks?

Which if any additional inflation control measures will Repub-

Murray Asks Truman Act In GSI Strike

CIO Head Says U. S. Is 'Union-Busting,' Lays Walkout to Board of Trustees

CIO President Philip Murray yesterday asked President Truman to take steps to settle the GSI cafeteria strike.

Murray, in a letter delivered to the White House during the afternoon of the fourth day of the strike, charged the Government with "union-busting" in its attitude so far.

Murray personally joined in a three-hour strike strategy conference held during the morning at CIO national headquarters, 718 Jackson pl. nw.

Blames Board of Trustees

Holding GSI's board of trustees, made up of Government officials, responsible for the strike, Murray asked the President to order these officials "to refrain from union-busting activities" and to meet with representatives of the striking Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPWA-CIO).

He further asked the Government convene "a collective bargaining conference" to settle the strike and that the Government cease "its partisan intervention into the situation."

Murray condemned especially Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming, who earlier in the day refused a request from Interior Secretary Julius A. Krug that the GSI cafeteria in the Interior Department be closed pending settlement of the strike.

Murray charged Fleming, also, has used Federal building guards to escort strikebreakers to and from the struck cafeterias.

1000 Reported on Job

J. C. Niehuss, GSI personnel director, said approximately 1000 workers were on the job at 40 of the 42 struck cafeterias and estimated more than 60,000 of the cafeterias' usual 80,000 patrons were served yesterday at lunch.

Union officials, however, reiterated their previous statements that more than 95 per cent of the 1500 UPWA-CIO employes remained out. Niehuss has said employes who fail to report for work by today "will receive their final check" at 2 p. m. at the GSI produce commissary, 1307 Maine ave. sw.

Planned mass picketing of Federal buildings in which the GSI cafeterias are located, set for yesterday morning, was called off. Regular picketing was provided, however.

Local union officials said the strategy conference was arranged after Murray returned here Wednesday night from Miami.

Meanwhile, the AFL Hotel and Restaurant Employes' Alliance moved into the picture as Charles E. Sands, its international representative, announced plans to recruit the GSI cafeteria workers

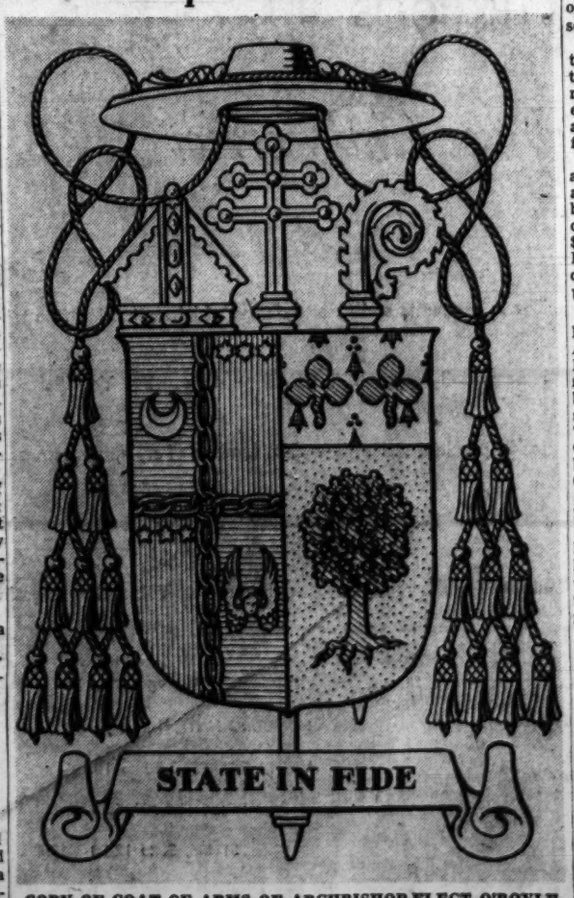
Archbishop's Coat of Arms



COPY OF COAT OF ARMS OF ARCHBISHOP-ELECT O'BOYLE

"State In Fide"—"Stand Fast in the Faith."

This is the motto on the coat of arms designed for the Rt. Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, who next Wednesday will become the first Archbishop of Washington.

Father O'Boyle will be consecrated bishop at solemn ceremonies at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City. His Holiness Pope Pius XII, in elevating Father O'Boyle, also designated Washington and five Maryland counties a new independent archdiocese.

After consecration, Monsignior O'Boyle will be an archbishop and his archdiocese will include Washington, and Prince Georges, Montgomery, Charles, Calvert and St. Mary's Counties in Maryland. He succeeds Archbishop Michael J. Curley, who was archbishop of both Washington and Baltimore and who died May 16.

Make European Aid Adequate or Stop It, Gen. Marshall Urges

Marshall Eloquence

From Secretary Marshall's statement yesterday:

So long as hunger, poverty, desperation and resulting chaos threaten the great concentrations of people in western Europe—some 270 millions—there will steadily develop social unease and political confusion on every side. Left to their own resources there will be, I believe, no escape from economic distress so intense, social discontents so violent, political confusion so widespread, and hopes of the future so shattered that the historic base of Western civilization, of which we are by belief and inheritance an integral part, will take on a new form in the image of the tyranny that we fought to destroy in Germany. The vacuum which the war created in western Europe will be filled by the forces of which wars are made. Our national security will be seriously threatened. We shall in effect live in an armed camp, regulated and controlled. But if we furnish effective aid to support the now visibly reviving hope of Europe, the prospect should speedily change. The foundation of political vitality is economic recovery. Durable peace requires the restoration of western European vitality.

We have engaged in a great war. We poured out our resources to win that war. We fought it to make real peace possible. Though the war has ended, the peace has not commenced. We must not fail to complete that which we commenced.

Stassen to Tell Story on Grain Trading Today

Testimony to Open Speculation Inquiry; Graham Will Follow

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, will be the first witness today when the Senate Appropriations Committee opens its full-dressed inquiry into speculation in grain by Government officials.

Stassen, who first named Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall, as a grain speculator, will be asked the source of his information that many influential Government "insiders" had been trading in commodities the Government was buying for export to needy countries abroad.

Stassen said last night that "of course I stand on what I said."

He will be followed on the stand by Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, President Truman's personal physician, who was recently revealed as dabbling in grain last fall.

Morgenthau May Be Called

Eventually Henry Morgenthau, jr., former Secretary of the Treasury, may be called, Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) chief examiner for the committee said, if Morgenthau's records reveal him as speculating while holding office. Otherwise, only a statement of his operations will be sought, Ferguson indicated.

Morgenthau, now in the Mediterranean, issued a statement through his office Wednesday night, saying that his market operations took place "a year and a half after I resigned from office."

Yesterday the committee examined in private Harry Brisker, a representative of Bache & Co., brokers who handled Graham's account. His wife, Eva Brisker, a $3300-a-year employe in the Navy Department, also was before the committee.

U. S. Employe a Big Operator

A recent list of speculators released by Agriculture Secretary Anderson, revealed that Mrs. Brisker, had been a big operator in the wheat market last September. She was "long," Anderson said, 145,000 bushels of wheat and "short" 85,000 on September 17. On that day she bought 50,000 bushels, and on the next day sold 60,000. On September 20 she bought 45,000 bushels and sold 25,000.

Mrs. Brisker also was shown to have been active in the corn market on June 30. On that date she was "long" 10,000 bushels and "short" 5000. A sister-in-law, Mrs Sarah Brisker, was shown to have

Gen. Kuter Proposed as Head of CAB

Top Air Combat Strategist Picked To Replace Landis

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman reached into the military ranks to fill a top Government post again yesterday, selecting Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter to be Civil Aeronautics Board chairman.

Choice of the able, young Air Force officer to take over this trouble spot was nailed by airlines spokesmen and aviation circles generally agreed he was well fitted for the post.

A West Pointer and veteran pilot, Kuter has made a record both as an air strategist and in the civil aviation field. Since the end of the war, he has headed the Atlantic division of the USAF Air Transport command—giving him experience comparable to airline operations—and now is the American representative to the International Civil Aviation organization at Montreal.

Immediate Congressional reaction was generally favorable, though some sources on Capitol Hill felt there would be reaction to the appointment of another professional military man to a key civilian post in the Government.

Board's Influence Seen

The President's choice, however, was believed partly based on the recommendations of his temporary air policy board—which reported last week—anad the dearth of qualified candidates in civilian life.

The board, headed by Thomas K. Finletter, is understood to have recommended that civil aviation be developed as a second line of our air defense and that the Government assist financially in the development of new transport planes.

Mr. Truman reportedly had found difficulty in filling the CAB chairmanship with a competent man from the aviation industry or topflight politician, due to the salary it carrier. Congress has ignored numerous recommendations that the $10,000 pay be increased.

Kuter will receive considerably more than this. The President yesterday wrote Congress asking that legislation be passed to permit Kuter to retain his present Air Force salary. With flying pay, this totals $15,144.

Mr. Truman asked that the bill be passed quickly, so that the key post may be filled as soon as possible. The legislation would free Kuter of all "supervision and control" by the Air Force, but preserve his "military status and per-

Cirminellos Find Quads Care Upsets Multiplication Table

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

In most any poker game, four of a kind is a good hand.

In most any household, four of a kind is a good handful.

That's what Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cirminello have learned, the hard way, having raised their quadruplets through the formula-devouring, colic-and-floor-walking, diaper-using and tooth-cutting stages.

Cirminello, a corporation analyst with the Securities and Exchange Commission, has just returned to Washington with the Government agency. He and his wife are moving back into their house at 1653 Colonial ter., Arlington, Va., where they lived before the war caused the SEC to move to Philadelphia.

Their two-bedroom home, ample for the two of them in their preparental days, is going to be a little tight now that their Philadelphia-born, all-of-a-sudden brood of four is with them.

Life is not quite so hectic now that Kathleen, Eileen, Maureen and Michael are at the ripe age of 3 years and 2 months, Mrs. Cirminello told The Washington Post yesterday, but her advice to any couple planning to have quadruplets is still—"Don't!"

State Department Control Over Foreign Policy Issues Held Vital

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

With all the tenacity of an old soldier, Secretary Marshall fought stubbornly yesterday against cutting the cost or crippling the operations of the European Recovery Program.

"Either undertake to meet the requirements of the problem or don't undertake it at all," he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He said it first in a prepared statement in which he argued for the full plan and nothing but the plan submitted to Congress by President Truman last month.

Witness for Five Hours

He said it later, after five hours at the witness table, when asked whether a smaller and less expensive program would do the job.

"No," he said firmly. "The $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months was not put in as a figure to barter with, up or down. To go below that figure would merely endanger the whole project.

"I know almost everyone who asks for an appropriation makes almost the same argument, but I'm utterly sincere about this.

"I smaller program than this would be just a relief program, a palliative. It would require continual appropriations that would amount, in time, to far more than the cost of this program."

Constructive Action Stressed

And he argued that the full amount was needed "to initiate a program of genuine recovery and to take both Europe and this nation out of the blind alley of merely continuing relief."

He was even more determined in insisting on full and unimpaired State Department control of all aspects of the program affecting American foreign relations. In doing so he touched off the only spirited debate of an otherwise sober and undramatic first-day session.

Committee members seemed more troubled over the proposed administrative set-up than over any other aspect of the vast and complex "Marshall Plan."

Not the slightest support came from the committee today for the proposal of Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) for an independent corporation, with an eight-man bi-partisan board of directors, to manage the program.

Secretary Marshall branded this idea, without naming Herter, as one that would "take from the President his constitutional power

21 U. S. Officers To Aid Greeks

Athens, Jan. 8 (U.P.)—Twenty-one American officers—a brigadier general and 20 lieutenant colonels—will arrive within a few days to advise the Greek army how to clean out the Communist-led guerillas, Lieut. Gen. William Livesay announced today.

Livesay, chief military attache to the United States air mission, who returned last night from consultations in Washington, said he expected the Greek army, with American advice, to subdue the guerillas within a few months.

"I see no reason why they cannot clean up the guerillas by late spring or early summer," he said at a press conference.

At the same time, Livesay disclosed that he would recommend a partial reorganization of the Greek army, with an infantry replacement pool, more machine guns and mountain artillery for increased fire power, and national defense corps units to free regular garrisons guarding towns for combat duty.

He said the Greek army had already got some 96 million dollars' worth of supplies from the United States and would soon get 40,000 more British rifles, costing about three million dollars.

Livesay said the 21 officers would take off from Washington today. The lieutenant colonels will be stationed with Greek army corps and daily newspaper that bears the name of The Washington Post . . . will attempt to proclaim on the first page in the name of civil rights, and then, in its editorial policy, deny to this man a fair and impartial trial; and try to coerce and intimidate this board—that if you don't convict Murphy we are going to chop your head off."

2d Intoxication Charge Added To Indictment Against Murphy

2500 Documents at Issue

Again Canfield cut in to say, "Mr. O'Donoghue, we are not going to be intimidated . . . the only thing I am interested in is, is it necessary that we have to consider 2500 documents?"

O'Donoghue explained that five men had been working on the documents in an effort to round up the material which the defense and prosecution might agree to stipulate on avoid requiring the appearance of that many individual witnesses.

He said he had copies of part of the documents, one for each member of the board and one for Maher, and, "He can take it to any high command, any labor union, or to the editor of The Washington Post, and go over it with him."

Can't Forget The Post

Later in the discussion, O'Donoghue declared, "I don't want any more accusations, even in newspapers," and when Canfield asked "Would you forget the paper?" he retorted:

"I can't. I will never forget that as long as I live. I am going to keep a memory like an elephant on that."

Board Member Joseph A. Wilner ventured, "To what extent do you accuse Mr. Maher—what connection would he have with what the newspapers write?"

O'Donoghue answered that he didn't think Maher had anything to do with it.

"I think it is an attack on Mr. Maher; it is an attack on every one of us in this room," he said.

Mentions Libel Action

"I doubt if there isn't a course of action against them, both in libel and for violation of the civil rights of Murphy; and I am going to look into it. (They) sit in a cubicle and write with a poison pen."

The editorial O'Donoghue referred to in his statement declared that, "There would be less concern about the dismissal of four of the 13 counts against Fire Chief Clement Murphy were it not for the widespread fear that a whitewashing is in process . . ."

The trial board had "a good deal of technical justification" for striking out four of the charges on Monday which dealt with alleged incidents before Murphy took office on March 1, 1946, the editorial stated, adding:

"Yet the issue about which the public is concerned is whether Chief Murphy is fit to be head of the Fire Department."

7 Opinion Witnesses

After discussing elimination of those charges and declaring that "we do not think that the public should assume that the trial board has failed in its duty . . . " the editorial concluded:

"The board will have to watch every step from now on to avoid a complete loss of confidence."

Yesterday's proceedings, third in the trial preliminaries, adjourned after defense and prosecution agreed to limit themselves to seven "opinion witnesses" on the charge that Murphy demoralized the department by rotating personnel.

Next session is scheduled for 10 a. m. Monday, when stipulations agreed upon will be signed. Then the actual trial is scheduled to begin.

into his union and to seek collective bargaining rights with GSI management.

AFL organizational literature was being handed out, and Sands said:

"A sufficient number of emloyes of Government Services, Inc., have signed up with us, proving that the CIO-UPW, Local 471, does not represent the sentiment or the desires of these workers."

The literature Sands was handing out was of two types, one for strikers and the other for workers on the job. Both types charged the CIO union had struck on "a political issue"—refusal to sign the non-Communist affidavits required by the Taft-Harley Act.

Mrs. Bernice Connio, secretary of the joint executive board of the AFL Hotel and Restaurant Employes Union, a local unionwide organization, told The Washington Post she did not know of the AFL organizational efforts and that she had no other comment.

Lawrence Kammett, UPW's public relations director for the local strike, charged "no responsible AFL leader in Washington" is supporting Sands' efforts and added: "He will be able to organize the strikebreakers, but that is all."

The UPWA's Local 471 is seeking a new contract, including a 15-cent hourly wage increase. The union claims wages now average $21.90 a week after deductions.

GSI has raised wages 6½ cents an hour for all new workers and those remaining on the job.

Other developments yesterday included a visit to the office of Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, head of GSI, by eight citizens led by Clarence Mitchell, national labor secretary of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People. The group, according to Mitchell, suggested Grant submit the strike issues to a third party.

The books for the transfer of shares of stock of this bank will be closed at the close of business on December 31, 1947, and unless otherwise ordered by the Board of Directors, will not be reopened until the opening of business on January 28, 1948. By order of the Board of Directors, JESSE H. MITCHELL, President.

used to figure that 4 times 1 made 4. Now, he says, 4 times 1 all at once makes more than 4, on the baby care multiplication table.

"When you have them all the same age," he concluded yesterday as he was getting his home ready for the quads, "their needs, their wants, their troubles all come at once. There are more squabbles, and also whenever one does something, it sets the others off."

Must Treat All Alike

"If you do something for one of them," chimed in his wife, "you have to do it for all of them." Even when a relative chose three dolls and a ball as appropriate Christmas presents for the three girls and the boy, peace was disrupted because Michael wanted a "baby," too, while the girls wanted to play with his ball.

The quads' diaper needs, now almost a thing of the past except when they sleep, ran to a nightmarish 240 per week and up at their peak, the Cirminellos reported. But their budget did not suffer on this account. The head of a diaper service whose wife had a baby at the same hospital and at about the same time that the quads were born, provided them with complete free service.

Eileen and Kathleen are as identical as twins and so much alike that their parents must see them full face to tell them apart. Any mistakes in their identities, especially those involving criticism of behavior, are quickly corrected by the innocent party. Their voices also are too similar to distinguish, the parents said, and they develop identically, even to cutting their teeth at exactly the same time. Such growth varies somewhat with Maureen and Michael, on the other hand. Maureen's voice is described by the parents as deeper than the twin's, while Michael's is "much deeper."

Such cares for Mrs. Cirminello as feeding and bathing were long chores when they were done on a one-at-a-time basis, she admitted, but now they feed themselves, seated two by two at two little tables. As for the bathing routine, papa Cirminello has taken over and cuts down the time involved by dunking two at a time.

Of course, there's no such thing as saving outworn clothes and shoes to pass on to the next child in a setup like the Cirminellos'. Four pairs of corrective shoes for the quads, bought three months ago to the tune of $39.90, must already be replaced by larger-sized ones before they're worn.

But the fond parents point out certain definite advantages to having four at a time. Once they're through a stage, they're all through it, for instance, and other parents will agree that's quite an advantage.

Furthermore, as Mrs. Cirminello said yesterday,—"Spoiled? I just don't have time to spoil any of them!"

Armed Forces Need In Palestine Hinted

8 Arrested

Explosive Cache Seized On Farm

Wall Township, N. J., Jan. 8 (AP).—A shipment of 85,000 pounds of explosives was seized late today on a farm here by State police and Monmouth County detectives who arrested eight men.

Prosecutor J. Victor Carton said he was "fairly certain" the load "ties up with" a shipment of 77 crates containing 65,000 pounds of TNT seized Saturday on an American Export Line pier in Jersey City.

Carton said the explosives were Army surplus demolition blocks which had been sold at the Government surplus depot in Romulus, N. Y., and were consigned to the Foundry Associates, Inc., New York City.

He identified two of the men arrested as Martin Loewy, owner of the farm and of a local trucking company, and Harry R. Sessions, 29, of North Stockholm, N. Y., driver of a truck which was being unloaded of explosives when police arrived.

Carton quoted Loewy as saying he had no knowledge of what the material was when he contracted to store it.

Security Council Must Act, Lie Says If Protection Asked

Lake Success, Jan. 8 (AP).—Secretary-General Trygve Lie said today the Security Council "will have to act" if the United Nations Palestine Commission asks for protection when the commissioners begin dividing the Holy Land into Jewish and Arabic countries.

Lie declared it is up to the five-nation Palestine Commission to decide whether it wants armed protection in Palestine, where violence and bloodshed have prevailed since the U. N. Assembly approved partition November 29. The Arabs have fought partition at every turn.

If the commission wants help, Lie said, it must raise the question with the Security Council and "the Security Council will have to act."

Conversations Denied

Lie was commenting on published reports that he had taken up with delegates of small countries the question of raising troops to cover the commission in Palestine. He said he had not held any conversations with any governments and he did not believe anyone on his staff had held such conversations.

The secretary general declared he would say something about the commission security when he convenes the Palestine group tomorrow for its first meeting.

Lie's comments raised the possibility that the Security Council, directed by the Assembly to maintain order during partitioning of Palestine, must find a police force somewhere.

8 Jews, 5 Arabs Killed In Holy Land Fighting

Jerusalem, Jan. 8 (AP).—Gunfire blazed across Jerusalem's ancient hills today and bitter communal fighting elsewhere in the Holy Land claimed 15 lives—eight Jews, five Arabs, a British policeman and a Pole.

The casualties from communal violence brought to 636 the unofficial death count since the United Nations partition decision.

Three bombings in the past five days which have killed more than 50 persons and injured nearly 200 seemed likely to hurt the Jews' chances of getting their militia, Hagana, designated by the United Nations as a force to guard partition.

Palestine observers said it was becoming increasingly obvious that division of Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish states over Arab objections must be enforced at gunpoint or it never will be accomplished.

Brazil Closes Reds' Paper

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Jan. 8 (AP). Police fought an hour-long battle with guns and gas and seriously wounded four Communists today before closing up the Communist newspaper Imprensa Popular.

The Communists, showing a tendency to fight back against the law passed last night removing all the party's representatives from Brazilian legislative bodies, refused to halt the presses when police arrived at the newspaper plant to enforce a government suspension order.

The incident, together with rumors that Luis Carlos Prestes, Brazilian Communist chief, had fled the country to direct underground activities, caused extra precautions to be taken throughout the country against a possible sabotage campaign.

Communist deputies returned to the chamber for today's session, as though to test the constitutionality of the law which removed from office one senator—Prestes—14 chamber deputies, 18 Rio de Janeiro alderman, 60 state legislators and numerous officials throughout the country.

Medical Training Plan of Navy to Be Discussed Today

The Navy's graduate medical training program will be among the subjects discussed at a meeting of the Reserve Consultants Board to the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery at 9 a. m. today.

Eighteen civilian doctors will meet at the annual board session at the U. S. Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., the Navy Department said yesterday.

Expected are Dr. Daniel Lynch, Washington dentist; Dr. E. N. Broyles, Baltimore otolarnygology specialist, and Dr. George M. Lyon, Huntington, W. Va., pediatrician.

The physicians will also discuss American Specialty Board requirements for naval medical officers, the Navy said.

Marine Slain, 4 Captured by Chinese Reds

Tsingtao, China, Jan. 8 (AP).—The Chinese government garrison commander reported today that Communists killed one and captured four United States Marines on a Christmas Day hunting trip on the Shantung Peninsula.

(In Nanking the official Chinese Central News Agency said also that an American missionary party of four persons was believed to have been captured by Communists in Honan Province.)

United States naval headquarters declined comment and continued to withhold identity of the Marines, whose disappearance was announced officially on Tuesday.

Gen. Ting Chi-Pan, Tsingtao garrison commander, told reporters the Marines, in a jeep, were stopped about 50 miles north of Tsingtao by Chinese government sentries, who warned them that they were beyond agreed limits for American forces. He said the Marines continued, however, to a nearby village.

The Chinese general said a Marine search party later was told by the villagers that Communists had killed one Marine and removed his body along with the four survivors.

Navy sources in Shanghai said the jeep had been found wrecked, burned and stripped.

(The missionary grou in central China was identified by San Francisco mission authorities as Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Wesley McMullen and their son Ronald, formerly of Loma Linda, Calif., and Miss Gertrude Green of Portland, Oreg.)

[Miss Green received her degree in nursing education at Washington Missionary College here, according to Seventh Day Adventist Church officials.—Editor's note.]

Red-Inspired General Strike Is Called Off in Trieste

Trieste (Friday), Jan. 9 (AP).—A Communist - sponsored general strike in Trieste was called off at midnight after partially typing up public transportation, shipyards and docks and closing some shops yesterday in this free city at the head of the Adriatic Sea.

In its first hours, the strike was estimated to be 75 per cent effective. Police said that by noon, however, many hundreds of anti-Communist workers had gone to their jobs.

The strike was staged by the Communist-dominated United Syndicate of Labor Unions in protest against the trial of a group of partisans arrested Sunday at nearby Opicina on charges of illegally wearing uniforms in an unauthorized demonstration.

Brig. Gen. Ridgely Gaither, senior civil affairs officer of AMG, had broken off negotiations with Communist representatives until the walkout was ended.

35,000 Workers Strike at Solingen

Essen, Germany, Jan. 8 (AP).—Approximately 35,000 workers at Solingen walked out today in a two-day general strike as a wave of food demonstrations spread in the industrial Ruhr Valley.

Military government officials said they anticipated no trouble in a general strike of 50,000 workers scheduled to begin at noon tomorrow in Essen. Nevertheless, 400 German police were assigned to patrol Brugplatz Square where labor leaders plan to hold a mass meeting.

New China Aid Plan Studied

By The Associated Press

The new proposal of American aid for China forecast by President Truman will be submitted to Congress after special envoys of Chiang Kai-shek have been consulted, Administration officials said yesterday.

Calling for 300 million dollars or possibly more, it is expected to be put into final shape within the next two weeks.

The special envoys are Yu Ta-Wai, Chiang's Minister of Communications, and Pei Tsu-Yee, former director of the Central Bank of China. They were scheduled to leave for Washington today.

Officials said they will advise on final details of the China recommendation in much the same manner that representatives of the 16-Nation Paris Conference were consulted in preparing the 17-billion-dollar Marshall Plan.

The suggestion that the special Chinese mission be consulted in advance came from the Nanking government and was accepted by the State Department.

The envoys are expected to bring new data bearing on the national government's ability to make effective use of new help from the United States to carry on war with the Chinese Communists while trying to cope with raging monetary inflation.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today refused a writ of error in the case of H. F. Lane vs. William H. Jenkins, from the Corporation Court of Alexandria, where $15,000 damages were awarded to Jenkins for injuries suffered in a fall from a scaffold.

Msgr. O'Boyle's Coat of Arms Stresses Faith

calling the colors and symbol of the Virginia Mary as Patroness of the United States under the title of the Immaculate Conception.

The second quarter, a field of red, is charged with three six pointed silver stars in "chief" taken from the coat of arms of Pope Pius VI, reigning pontiff when the 13 colonies declared their independence.

The third shows three five-pointed stars, from the arms of George Washington, whose surname gives the title to the ecclesiastical unit. The fourth recognizes the titular of the Cathedral of the Archdiocese of Washington, exhibiting the symbol of St. Matthew, Apostle and Evangelist. The red, white and blue of our nationalflag are represented in the new coat of arms.

A chain in the form of a cross represents the faith and a church. The silver links of the four segments of chain, extending to the four points of the compass, are joined in the center by a ring (annulet) to typify the federated unity of the individual States of the Union, bound and held together at the Federal Capital.

Personal Arms Displayed

The sinister impalement displays the personal arms of the new archbishop. A green oak tree with roots exposed on a golden field constitutes the arms of the Irish O'Boyle family. As a "charge of patronage" there appears an ermine fess (horizontal middle bar) taken from the arms of Francis Cardinal Spleiman.

The ermine fess has been charged as a chief (upper compartment) and thereon are placed two trefoils of shamrocks, symboys of St. Patrick, the baptismal patron of the new archbishop and the titular of the cathedral in which he was ordained and will be consecrated.

The external ornaments are composed of the green pontifical hat, with its 10 tassels on each side, disposed in four rows; with the precious mitre, the archiepiscopal cross with double cross beam, and the crozier, all in gold.

Consecration Jan. 14

Archbishop O'Boyle will wear an episcopal ring given him by Cardinal Spellman at his consecraton. The class of 1921 from St. Joseph's Seminary, of which the new archbishop was a member, has presented the crozier to be used at the consecration ceremony. The new archbishop will also wear a pectoral cross which belonged to the late Bishop John J. Dunn of New York, also a gift of Cardinal Spellman.

Consecration ceremonies are to be held at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York on January 14. Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York, is to consecrate the Washington archbishop.

Msgr. O'Boyle will be installed as Washington archbishop January 21 at 10 a. m. at St. Matthew's Cathedral here. Until a permanent episcopal residence is obtained for him, the archbishop will occupy quarters in the rectory of St. Patrick's Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

Johnson, Patron Of 'Death Valley Scotty,' Dies

Holywood, Jan. 8 (AP).—The man who grubstaked Death Valley Scotty for 30 years is dead.

Albert Mussey Johnson, 72, former president and chairman of the board of the National Life Insurance Co. of Chicago, the man who built Walter E. Scott's two million dollar desert castle, died in a hospital in Hollywood yesterday. He failed to rally from an operation.

Mr. Johnson

The picturesque Scotty, legend had it, owned a secret desert mine from which he took gold as he chose, but in 1941 a lawsuit developed that Scotty's wealth was a myth,that he owned no mine, never sold a dime's worth of gold and didn't own the desert castle he occupied.

The man behind the scenes was Johnson, who had promoted many railroad, mining and public utility ventures.

"I've loaned him considerable money over a long time and he has paid me back in laughs," Johnson once said. "I've been paying his bills for years, and liking it."

Northern Virginia Bridge Tourney To Open Today

A three-day tourney for the eleventh Contract Bridge championship of Northern Virginia will open at 2:15 p. m. today at the George Mason Hotel, Alexandria.

First title in competition is the Women's Pair Event, with two Washington women defending. They are Mrs. C. W. Zimmer and Mrs. F. S. Bentley.

In the evening round, defending champions in mixed pairs are Mrs. Allan Rutherford and Harold Stone of Baltimore.

The tournament is under the auspices of the American Contract Bridge League.

Truman Asked to Back Books-to-Germany Plan

A North Carolina delegation asked President Truman yesterday to support a campaign to send books to German children.

Senator Hoey (D., N. C.) said later the President was "very enthusiastic" about the plan.

John Park, publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) Times, Gov. Robert Gregg Cherry and Senators Hoey and Umstead (D., N. C.), called on the President at the White House and explained Park's book-lending plan.

HOW RICH IS AMERICA?

How rich is America? As rich as the hungry people of the world think we are? As rich as we ourselves think we are?

Our wealth goes far beyond what we or others estimate it to be. It can't be measured in the number of automobiles we produce or counted in the bushels of wheat we grow. Our wealth is our people: creative men and women of good-will!

They are beyond statistics and budgets and all theoretical calculations. They make America!

There is Drew Pearson. No one would call that battle-scarred newsman a wistful visionary. Yet when he saw the politicos sputtering into a dangerous slowdown on the problem of helping to feed a starving Europe, he wrote a letter on October 11th, made a nationwide broadcast the following day and, within two months, sailed with the first of four shiploads of food!

By now the whole world knows the story of the Friendship Train. But let us not forget that it was Pearson who, single-handed, cut through a tangle of red tape and filled 266 box cars with a nation's generosity. He generated a wave of good-fellowship that made America's great railroads produce scarce box cars as if by magic. The "wave" reached hard-boiled teamsters who had fought against a forty-hour week but worked a twenty-four-hour day for Pearson. American shipping companies jointly provided four ships; American airlines collaborated to furnish planes which flew pamphlets of hope and the promise of succor to desperate people.

The spirit stimulated by this crusading newsman spread to Hawaii, where planters rushed a plane load of sugar. It reached across to France, where dock workers stopped squabbling long enough to unload the Friend Ship. From the Atlantic to the frontier of Yugoslavia packages were welcomed by hungry children. One man had initiated more good-will in two months than scores of politicians and billions of dollars could make or unmake in years.

Because Pearson is a working newsman himself, press and radio comments have underplayed his role in the story. He knew that he would get small credit for what he did. And that is as he would want it. But as we see it, projects like the Friendship Train do not spring full-blown from the soil. Someone has to strike the spark, interest others, organize them for fast work; someone has to fight off the Cassandras who say it can't be done.

All his life Drew Pearson has had to get things done. The son of a Quaker minister, he earned his own way as a boy by trapping small game. He became a traveling lecturer and broadened his horizons. At the end of World War I he went overseas for the American Friends Service Committee and spent two years doing relief work in the Balkans. In Yugoslavia they named a town, Pearsonavatz, to honor him and his good work. Pearson never forgot the starvation and agony that are the backwash of war. That memory and a big, bold heart are what launched the Friendship Train. And it's that kind of generous, spontaneous urge to do the right thing that is our greatest national resource.

It is Americans like Drew Pearson and the many who made the Friendship Train possible who give our country its prestige in the world and enrich it beyond all calculation.

Truman Picks Envoy for 'Voice' Post

By The Associated Press

George V. Allen, a career diplomat and one-time newspaper man, was assigned the job yesterday of strengthening the "Voice of America" broadcasts to meet growing foreign propaganda attacks on the United States.

Plans for expanding American information operations abroad were disclosed after the White House announced that President Truman will submit Allen's nomination to Congress shortly as Assistant Secretary of State for public affairs.

Allen, 54, and now Ambassador to Iran, was chosen by Secretary Marshall to succeed William Benton, who resigned three months ago.

His first task, the State Department said, will be to "increase the scope and effectiveness of Secretary Marshall's international information program, including the 'Voice of America,' to meet the growing volume of attacks abroad misrepresenting and distorting the policies and motives of the United States in world affairs."

As a part of this effort, officials indicated Congress may be asked to triple current funds to expand overseas operations beginning July 1.

They forecast a budget request for some 40 million dollars compared with the approximately $12,500,000 which a critical Congress provided at the last session for the official radio and related activities during the curren 12 months. For the interval before July 1 Senator Smith (R., N. J.) has announced he will press for a five-million-dollar supplemental appropriation.

Press Officer Michael J. McDermott noted that as envoy to Iran for nearly two years, Allen has had "first-hand current knowledge of the operations and impact abroad" of anti-American propaganda. Oil-rich Iran has been a particular target of Soviet abuse of American policies.

Allen is the third career diplomat to be chosen for a top level department post since Marshall took over a year ago. Others are Charles E. Bohlen, counselor, and Norman Armour, assistant secretary for political affairs.

Allen is expected to come to Washington next month. His successor at Tehran has not been named.

Before his appointment to the foreign service as a vice consul in 1930, Allen was a member of the editorial staff of the Asheville, N. C. Times.

He saw service at a series of international conferences before being named envoy to Iran April 23, 1946.

He holds degrees from Duke and Harvard Universities.

Committee Sets Red-Control Law Hearings Feb. 5

The House Un-American Activities Committee decided yesterday to begin hearings February 5 on Communist - control legislation, with U. S. Attorney General Tom C. Clark as the first witness and members of the Communist Party to follow.

Chief Committee Investigator Robert Stripling said the hearings would be conducted by a subcommittee headed by Representative Richard W. Nixon (R., Calif.). Stripling said the group would consider only legal aspects of the problem of drafting a bill to control Communists in this country.

Any recommended legislation probably would take the form of a bill sponsored by Representative Karl E. Mundt (R., S. Dak.), which would require Communists to register as agents of a foreign power. It also would require Communists to label anything sent through the mails.

"The subcommittee on legislation intends to hear all sides from the legal aspect," Stripling said, "including the Communist Party and other left-wing organizations."

Convicted Youth Held Sandwich 'Hexed' Him

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (AP). — A youth who contended he was bewitched by a sandwich—fish eyes, potatoes, beans and macarani between two thick hunks of bread—was convicted today of assault upon his girl friend who built the imposing gastronomic edifice.

Raymond Adame, 18, told police he was "hexed" by the sandwich, prepared by Celina Jaramillo, same age. Officers charged they found Adame trying to drag Miss Jaramillo to his home.

State Dept. to Take Over American Zone by June 30

The State Department is planning to take over the military government of the American zone in Germany by June 30 of this year, Secretary Marshall disclosed yesterday.

This was the first official announcement that the long-awaited shift from Army administration would take place in the near future. Earlier this winter, when Gen. Lucius D. Clay returned to his post in Berlin from consultations here, it was announced that the shift had been postponed indefinitely.

In his testimony yesterday before the Senate Foreign Relations Comittee, Secretary Marshall spoke repeatedly of the conflicts with American foreign policy resulting from Army decisions in Germany. By next June, he said, the problem of Germany would be so involved in the wider recovery problem of Europe that State Department administration would be more necessary than before.

He said the Army would "be happy to turn it over" provided the State Department has enough staff to handle the job. It is understood that many Army officers now in charge of important posts in the military government will be detailed to the State Department for 18 months, during which time civilians can be recruited to replace them.

Suit Asks $50,000 Of Rockville Youth

A $50,000 damage suit against an 18-year-old Rockville, Md. resident was filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court yesterday by the widow of Edward L. Stock, 72, 6752 Fairfax rd., Bethesda, who was fatally injured last February 1 in an automobile accident.

The suit, names as defendant, John F. Watkins of Rockville, Mrs. Stock charged the youth with operating a car in a "reckless and negligent manner."

Watkins was cleared of manslaughter charges growing out of the accident.

Adequate Aid or None, Asks Marshall

over the foreign relations of the United States."

He also felt it would not do to put the whole program in the hands of the State Department—a course which, he said, had been so seriously urged by some Government officials that he had to ask President Truman last month not to permit it.

The best method, he said, was the one finally proposed to Congress by the President—to set up a new executive agency of the Government, with a single administrator who would have broad powers, but be subject to State Department control on matters affecting foreign policy.

George Questions Plan

Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.) suggested this would hamper effective "business management" of the program.

"Suppose," asked George, "that the Secretary of State has decided that as a matter of sound foreign policy, aid shall be given to recovery projects in Country A. But suppose the Administrator decides those projects are impracticable and a waste of American taxpayers' money. Is your decision then to be controlling?"

"The matter would seem to rest on the intelligence and judgment of the Administrator and myself," Secretary Marshall replied.

Despite all his arguments, and despite his flat statement that "there cannot be two secretaries of Sate," the committee did not seem convinced of the soundness of the proposed mechanism within the Government.

In the end Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) made what he called "a final prayerful request" to the secretary and to his advisers massed behind him in the crowded, marble-pillared Senate caucus room.

The request, said Vandenberg, "is to continue to study this matter of administration, to find some more adequate liaison between the business and foreign policy aspects of the European Recovery Program.

"I believe it will be our most controversial item, both here and in the House," said Vandenberg. "I'm sure we haven't yet found the answer."

The Secretary promised to keep "an open mind" on possible changes in the administrative scheme, so long as "fundamental principles" were preserved. It was clear from his words and his manner that he regarded State Deparement control in matters of foreign policy as fundamental to the success of the whole enterprise, at home and abroad.

In his opening statement the Secretary recognized that the European Recovery Program would "require sacrifices today in order that we may enjoy security and peace tomorrow."

But if Europe is left to its own resources, he said, "there will be, I believe, no escape from economic distress so intense, social discontents so violent, political confusion so widespread, and hopes of the future so shattered that the historic base of western civilization, of which we are by belief and inheritance an integral part, will take on a new form in the image stroy in Germany."

War Primary Cause

Far from holding communism or Soviet Russia solely responsible for the plight of Europe, he said it was war that had smashed Europe's trading mechanism, destroyed its railroads and merchant fleets, used up its overseas investments and made outside help essential. He said the basic problem would exist "even if it were not complicated by the ideological struggles in Europe between those who want to live as free men and those small groups who aspire to dominate by the method of police states."

He pleaded for prompt enactment of the program, arguing that the sooner it can get under way the greater would be its chances of success.

"Unless the program can be placed in operation on or soon after April 1, there will undoubtedly be a serious deterioration in some of the basic conditions upon which the whole project is predicated," he said, referring to Republican predictions that the bill could not possibly be passed until June.

Four-year Authority Urged

He argued that a four-year authorization now was vital as "a necessary foundation for the continuing effort and cooperation of the European countries in a progressive program of recovery."

He assured the Senators that the requested amount of $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months had been decided only after the most searching study by the executive branch of the Government, and was not put forward as an "asking figure."

"Consideration of the cost must be related to the momentous objective on the one hand and to the probable price of the alternatives," he said. "The $6,800,000,000 proposed for the first 15 months is less than a single month's charge of the war. A world of continuing uneasy half-peace will create demands for constantly mounting expenditures for defense.

"The program should be viewed as an investment in peace. In those terms, the cost is low."

Charge of "Conditions"

When he came to the proposed methods of helping Europe recover, he argued that American aid must not be tied to conditions which would destroy the whole moral justification of the program.

"We cannot expect any democratic government to take upon itself obligations or accept conditions which run counter to the basic national sentiment of its people," he said. He praised the Europeans for what they had already done to carry out their pledges made at Paris last summer.

He replied directly, in these words, to public criticism of the proposed degree of State Department control:

"It should, I think, be constantly kept in mind that this great project, which would be difficult enough in a normal international political climate, must be carried to success against the avowed determination of the Soviet Union and the Communist party to oppose and sabotage it at every turn.

"There has been comment that the proposed organization, the Economic Cooperation Administration, would be completely under the thumb of theDepartment of State. This is not so, should not be so, and need not be so. I have personally interested myself to see that it will not be so.

Political Aspects Stressed

"The activities of the ECA will touch on many aspects of our internal American affairs and on our economy. In the multitude of activities of this nature the Department of State should have no direction.

"But the activities of the ECA will be directly related to the affairs of the European nations, political as well as economic, and will also affect the affairs of other nations throughout the world. In this field, the constitutional responsibility of the President is paramount."

"I do not wish to interfere in the proper operations of the ECA," he went on. And he added that he had no qualms about his ability to work smoothly with the new administrator, who would have to be a man "of great breadth, ability and stature."

He ended his 45-minute statement with a renewed warning that the success of the program was not wholly predictable, but that the alternatives were clear.

Dictatorships Seen Alternative

"If we decide that the United States is unable or unwilling effectively to assist in the reconstruction of western Europe," he said, "we must accept the consequences of its collapse into the dictatorship of police states."

Questions from committee members ranged widely over the whole field of American foreign policy in Europe. Many of them dealt with Germany, and one, from Senator Alben Barkley (D., Ky.) drew the answer that "firm, resolute and reasonably successful" handling of the European Recovery Program would make it easier to reach agreement with Soviet Russia over the German problem.

Another, from Senator Vandenberg, brought the disclosure that the United States was already discussing with France new arrangements to remove zonal barriers and promote the flow of people, goods and ideas in western Germany.

Reparations Discussed

Still another, this time from Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), produced the reply that the American and British governments were discussing what to do about shipping dismantled German factory equipment to Russia as reparations.

"Until there is a Government decision," Secretary Marshall said, "nothing should be done that would precipitate the whole question and perhaps invite reprisals from the Soviet Union. To stop dismantling and then resume later would have a very bad political effect within Germany. It would also seriously compromise our relations with the 18 receiving countries of western and southern Europe."

Wiley asked whether the United States could obtain some "outer bases" in return for help to Europe.

"We are not buying an advantage for ourselves in this program," Marshall retorted. "We're simply trying to improve a very serious world situation."

Repayments Estimated

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) asked the Secretary whether he could estimate how much of the proposed aid would be in repayable loans and how much in outright grants.

Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas, sitting at his side, answered for him with the "very rough estimate" that from 20 to 40 per cent would be in loans and 60 to 80 per cent in free grants, depending on the receiving country's capacity to repay. This was the first time such an estimate had been offered publicly by the Administration.

Douglas, who has been mentioned as a possible administrator of the program, will testify at morning and afternoon hearings today.

Leprosy Among Former Troops Seen Inevitable

Chicago, Jan. 8 (AP).—The prevalence of leprosy in areas where American troops were stationed makes appearance of "a few cases" after long incubation periods "almost inevitable," the Journal of the American Medical Association reported today.

The Journal mentioned this possibility in an editorial that forecast that various tropical fevers and other exotic diseases would turn up in areas in the United States where they formerly were rare or nonexistent.

Judge Says Dope Is Easy to Get In Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—A veteran judge charged today that narcotics are sold in Los Angeles like speakeasy cocktails.

Judge Arthur Guerin, long a member of the municipal bench, said use of drugs was so wide spread it was almost as easy to get narcotics as it was to get a drink during prohibition.

"In some sections of the city about as many people smoke marijuana cigarettes as smoke ordinary cigarettes," he said.

Guerin added that "respectable" people also were buying lots of drugs. He said some of them had complained to him that the penalty for possession ought to be reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor.

Hagerstown Will Vote On 'Home Rule' Charter

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 8 (AP).—Hagerstown's city charter commission agreed last night upon a new charter to be submitted at a special election and City Attorney Edward Oswald declared it may establish "home rule."

Under present State law, many local issues must go to the Maryland General Assembly for a final decision.

An act of the 1947 general assembly empowered the city to draw up a new charter and submit it to the voters for ratification.

Oswald said the new charter would permit future amendment by popular vote, in effect giving Hagerstown "home rule."

Bern Press Speculates That Stalin Is Dead

Bern, Switzerland, Jan. 8 (AP).—Two Bern newspapers speculated today that Prime Minister Stalin was dead. The Soviet embassy in London said there was nothing to the rumor.

One of the newspaper stories said reports of Stalin's death had been subject of conversations in the Federal Council, chief executive authority of Switzerland.

A Swedish cancer specialist, Dr. Elis Berven, arrived in Moscow this week on a summons from four Russian doctors. He said today he had no comment on the case he came to Moscow to treat and would have none. He said he planned to return home this weekend.

CIO Unions Warned On Indorsements

Murray Advises Local Units to Wait For Action by Organization's PAC

By the United Press

President Philip Murray of the CIO yesterday warned CIO unions which have announced their support of the third party candidacy of Henry A. Wallace that their actions are contrary to CIO policy.

In a telegram to the heads of all CIO international unions, Murray instructed them to withhold pledges of support to any and all political candidates until the CIO's national political program is drafted here later this month.

AFL President William Green said Tuesday that he is "against" Wallace for President and he added that a third party would be a "great poltical mistake." Green emphasized he spoke only for himself but he unsually is the bellwether for other AFL unions.

Murray's telegram was regarded by some observers, including a number of CIO officials, as a rebuke to some of the union's left-wing elements who already have indorsed Wallace.

Harry Bridges, leader of the West Coast Longshoremen, and the executive board of the Farm Equipment Workers, among others, have pledged their unqualified support to Wallace.

Murray reminded the CIO officers that the organization's 1947 convention pledged "full and unstinted support" to the CIO Political Action Committee. He pointed out that the PAC's executive board will not meet to formulate its 1948 political policies until January 23.

The PAC, however, already has declared itself against a third party. Shortly after Wallace announced his candidacy, the PAC issued a statement saying its policy had been "not to support a third party."

GOP Convention Plans Virtually Completed

Machinery for running the Republican National Convention was virtually completed yesterday with the naming of committees on rules, contests and convention call.

Clarence Buddington Kelland, author and national committeeman for Arizona, was named chairman of rules, Ezra Whitla, Idaho, chairman of contests, and Gov. Ralph Gates of Indiana, chairman of convention call.

Chairman Carroll Reece of the national committee announced the appointments.

A committee on convention arrangements was named last July, headed by Walter Hallanan of West Virginia.

The only important posts remaining to be filled are those of permanent chairman and keynoter.

The national committee also announced plans for the party's "victory march" Lincoln day dinners next month.

The opening dinner will be held here February 5, with Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania the speaker. St. Louis will have a two-day rally February 6-7 featuring a gathering of party leaders, editors and workers. Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) will make the principal address there.

Speakers in Michigan (no dates mentioned) will include Senators Vandenberg and Ferguson of that State; Saltonstall (Mass.), Kem (Mo.), Flanders (Vt.), Bricker (Ohio), and Brooks (Ill.); Speaker Martin, Representatives Katharine St. George (N. Y.) and Judd (Minn.).

Chairman Reece will speak at Indianapolis February 12. Pat Hurley, former Secretary of War, speaks at Dallas and Phoenix; Gov. Earl Warren at Los Angeles; Representative Halleck (Ind.) at Logansport, Ind., Albuquerque, N. M., and Las Vegas, Nev.; Gov. Thomas E. Dewey at Boston, and Harold E. Stassen in Pennsylvania, Illinois and Wisconsin. No dates were given for this group.

Several Senators will make tours: Saltonstall to Michigan, Oregon, Washington; Taft (Ohio) to Minnesota, Nebraska and Colorado; Hickenlooper (Iowa) to Arizona and California; Martin (Pa.) to Illinois, Kansas and Missouri; Donnell (Mo.) to Missouri and North Carolina; Bricker to Michigan, West Virginia and Tennessee; Lodge (Mass.) to West Virginia; Jenner (Ind.) to Kentucky; Thye (Minn.) to Washington and Idaho, and Baldwin (Conn.) to Missouri and Minnesota.

Senator Malone to Speak

Senator George W. Malone (R., Nev.) will speak on "What Type of Defense Should We Have, How Shall We Get It?" before the American Legion Auxiliary at 8 p. m. today in the Department of Commerce auditorium.

By The Associated Press

The Republican Party came up with a 1948 victory slogan yesterday: "Vote Republican in 1948—Save what's left.' In 1946 it was "had enough?"

The new slogan appeared in the January issue of the Republican News, national committee organ. It was printed at the bottom of a three-column wide article entitled "Second Truman Doctrine—Inflation!"

Committee officials said the slogan originated with Orval W. Adams, Salt Lake City banker and former president of the American Bankers Association, who, it was said, based the slogan on the contention that inflation had diminished the savings of persons with fixed incomes and reduced their purchasing power.

Ford Firm Faces $251,000,000 Tractor Suit

New York, Jan. 8 (AP).—A damage suit aggregating 251 million dollars was filed today by Harry Ferguson, Inc., of Detroit against the Ford Motor Co., the Dearborn Motors Corp., Henry Ford 2d and other officers and directors of the companies. The suit charges Ford and the companies copied the Ferguson line of farm tractors.

The suit, brought under provisions of the Sherman and Clayton antitrust laws, was filed in Federal Court by Harry Ferguson, inventor, and once termed Henry Ford's "only partner," and Harry Ferguson, Inc.

Henry Ford 2d, in a statement at Detroit, termed the complaint "ridiculous" and "full of untruths" and said "we will be very happy to meet all of the allegations . . . at the proper time and place."

"The blunt truth about this relationship is that it made Mr. Ferguson a multimillionaire and cost Ford Motor Co. 25 million dollars in the process," Ford's statement said.

The Ferguson complaint alleges that since July, 1947, the defendants had violated a 1939 agreement between Ferguson and the late Henry Ford by unlawfully seizing and using Ferguson's inventions, engineering developments, ideas and designs.

According to the complaint, Ferguson brought his tractor and implement developments to this country from Ireland at Henry Ford's invitation and in 1939 the Ford Motor Co put the tractor in production selling it until June, 1947, as the "Ford Tractor-Ferguson System."

A break in relations between Ford and the Ferguson company occurred in November, 1946, but production of the tractors by Ford continued under an interim agreement until June, 1947, the complaint said.

The plaintiffs also allege the defendants conspired prior to November, 1946, to copy the Ferguson system, to take over the distributor dealer organization built up by Ferguson, and to impede efforts by the Ferguson company to provide capital funds and arrange for manufacture of its tractors.

Tito Discharges 3 Cabinet Heads

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Marshal Tito fired three cabinet members today and gave new posts to four others.

Those fired were Dr. Drajo Marusio, Minister of Communications; Ante Vrklan, Minister of Marine, and Dr. Dimitar Nestorov, Minister without Portfolio.

Tito presented a written proposal to the eight-man praesidium "for reorganization of the federal apparatus of the state administration in connection with the needs of further economic reconstruction."

The praesidium accepted the proposal unanimously. It also approved treaties of friendship and mutual aid with Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania.

Auto Insurers Ask Rate Boost

Virginia insurance companies writing fire, theft and collision policies have asked the State Corporation Commission in Richmond for the fourth rate increase in four years.

The companies advised the SCC that existing rates are not high enough to pay for repair or replacement of damaged or missing automobiles. In many cases, they said, it costs the companies more to replace a stolen car than the owner paid for it several years ago.

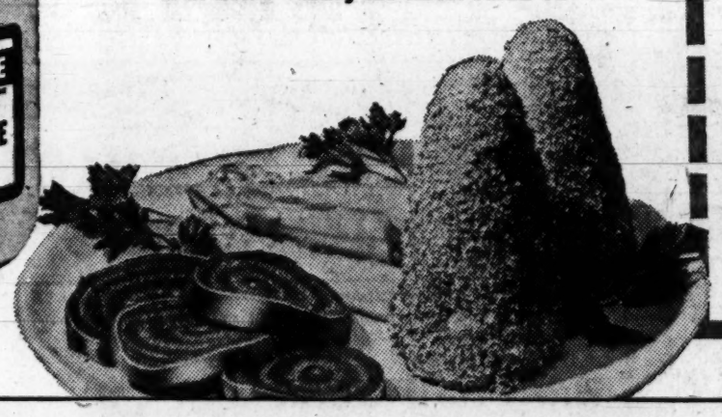
BLUE PLATE Means Fine Flavor

Blue Plate Mayonnaise

Made by the Wesson Oil People as you'd make it at home—using the finest salad oil



Chicken Croquettes Royale

½ cup Blue Plate Mayonnaise
1 tablespoon finely minced onion
¾ teaspoon salt. Dash of pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup finely minced celery
2 cups minced cooked chicken (or leftover meat)
1 cup cooked rice or bread crumbs
Dried crumbs to coat croquettes

No need to prepare a white sauce to "bind" your croquettes. Just blend first five ingredients together; then add celery, chicken, and rice. (Spicy, tart Blue Plate Mayonnaise has that wonderful, tempting Blue Plate flavor. It's always fresh, FRESH and creamy.) Shape into croquettes, roll in crumbs, chill half hour or more. Bake in hot oven, 425° F., 20 min. or until brown, or fry in hot fat. Serves four.

Blue Plate Peanut Butter

House GOP Sets Tax Action

lican majorities in both houses support?

Senate hearings on limited rationing and wage-price control—the two most controversial points in Mr. Truman's program—will get under way Monday, in the face of icy opposition by the Republican majority.

Senate Banking Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) said his group will hear Government witnesses on (1) the Barkley bill to grant the Administration standby authority to impose wage and price controls; (2) the Taylor bill to restore price controls and rationing at the discretion of a director of price and allocation, and (3) the Capehart bill to "freeze" prices of all commodities at December 13 levels, pending study of other control methods.

Tobey said testimony will later be taken on the Flanders standby meat rationing bill and then resume hearings on Mr. Truman's request for legal power to restrict bank credit.

In the House, however, Banking Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) reiterated his own belief that Congress isn't likely to go beyond rent-control extension in following up the President's program.

Taft Backed Bankers' Plan

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) made another dig at the President's 10 points in a letter supporting the American Bankers' Association's proposal for voluntary control of banking credit.

The Ohioan wrote Joseph M. Dodge, president of the association, that its voluntary plan is "better than any attempt by the Government to say what is a good loan and what is a bad loan."

The top leadership position won't crystalize until the series of two House GOP talks starting next week. In adition to varying views on inflation control and tax cuts, Republican leaders of the two houseshouses have a lot of differences to resolve on the GOP's favorite campaign issue—spending.

Truman Budget Due Monday

Taft has proposed that Congress wait a month to six weeks beyond February 15 before recommending a legislative budget setting appropriation targets for the year. Such a postponement, he said recently, would give Congress more time to assess the cost of the Marshall Plan and other outlays.

Martin, however, thinks Congress ought to write its legislative budget on schedule. The President's Budget will go to the Capitol on Monday. It will thus be available to the House Republican Steering committee when it meets that afternoon for a look at the whole legislative program.

Martin and House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) meanwhile completed one "liaison" assignment in advance of the Steering committee.

Eaton Wins Point

The two House leaders, frequently at odds with House Foreign Affairs committee chiefs over interim-aid procedure in the special session, reached an amicable understanding with Foreign Affairs Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) in advance of House Marshall plan hearings.

Eaton, who has opposed giving preferential treatment to the Herter plan, setting up an eight-man bipartisan corporation to administer all foreign aid, won his point. Leaders agreed to a plan of procedure, later adopted by the committee, giving the Herter bill "concurrent" consideration with the Marshall Plan.

Eaton and the leadership further agreed to tap House sentiment by inviting key committees to sit in with the Foreign Affairs group on any phases of the ERP program affecting their specialized fields.

down for three billion more than is now being spent abroad.

He figured the added cost of universal military training at two to four billion and said the President's air commission is about to recommend an increase of two billion for our air force.

Air Force More Effective

"If war with Russia is our present concern, then certainly the air force is going to play a much more effective part both in defending this country and attacking Russia than universal military training," he said.

4 Out of 5 Liked Message, White House Declares

By The Associated Press

The White House said yesterday that reaction to President Truman's State of the Union message Wednesday was "quite favorable."

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told newsmen that telegrams and messages "seemed to be four or five to one favorable," and that they still are coming in.

Rep. Hartley to Decide On Race Tomorrow

Asbury Park, N. J., Jan. 8 (AP).—Representative Fred A. Hartley, Jr. (R., N. J.), who has repeated several times that he will not be a candidate for reelection, said today that he would announce in Washington Saturday whether he would run for reelection.

Hartley, chairman of the House Labor Committee, told the New Jersey Farm Bureau's twenty-ninth convention that members of his family were opposed to his making the race again, but that he would discuss it with political leaders in Jersey City later today. He did not identify the leaders.

quisites" during the proposed six-year CAB term. The latter would reimburse the Air Force for Kuter's salary under the proposal.

Aviation leaders believed that Mr. Truman, in making a non-political appointment to the CAB chairmanship, hopes to still the criticism of the abrupt way he decline dto reappoint James M. Landis to the job. Landis was reported to have been dropped because of his New Deal background and frequent clashes with aviation industry leaders.

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) told reporters that Kuter's record "suonds very encouraging." The President, he added, "had a difficult job in finding someone not involved in any of the current aviation controversies."

Representative Carl Hinshaw (R., Calif.) another Congressional leader in aviation matters, termed Kuter "perfectly competent."

Kuter, who is 42, was assistant secretary of the Army General Staff at the outbreak of the war. Gen. George C. Marshall then picked him for a brigadier generalcy—one of the youngest in Army history. He was deputy commander of the Tactical Air Force in the North African campaign, and planned the strategic bombing of Japan.

been "long" 10,000 bushels of wheat on September 17, which she sold the next day.

Mrs. Brisker, although a long-time Government employe, was not shown on a list of Government employes listed as market traders released a week ago.

The nature of the testimony given by the Briskers was not revealed.

Following the disclosure two weeks ago that Graham was active in the wheat market last September, Bache & Co. denied Graham's contention that his account was handled entirely by the firm without Graham's knowledge about individual purchases or sales. The company said he was kept informed "at all times."

Another witness the committee wants to hear from is Secretary Anderson, who, Ferguson said, will be recalled soon.

Yesterday the committee also was closeted for a long time with Claude Cameron, business manager for Pauley. Ferguson commented that Pauley's accounts were "quite complicated."

In the meantime, Chairman August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) of a special House committee investigating grain speculation, has called a meeting of his committee for today. Andresen recently returned from a sleuthing expedition to the Midwest. It was stated he plans to report the results of his investigation to the committee today.

corps staffs after about a week's orientation in Athens.

The mission of the brigadier general was not disclosed, but since he is an Air Force man, his arrival may presage heavier air operations against the guerillas holed up in the mountains

Livesay emphasized that the giving of operational advice to the Greeks by American officers would not make the American officers responsible for results. He said he would work with the Greek chief of staff, while subordinate American officers would sit at the elbow of Greek staff officers in corps and divisions "and give them the benefit of American experience in the past war."

The British military mission will go ahead with its training of Greek troops, he said.

He disclosed that the Greek government had arranged to buy the 40,000 British rifles with money held outside the country by Greek individuals. These individuals, it was understood, will make what amounts to a "donation" to the Greek army.

The rifles are the same as the ones presently used by the Greek army and their use will involve no change in ammunition. They will cost about three million dollars.

Livesay said the Greek army originally was equipped sufficiently for its operations, but conditions "have changed"—the guerillas are now stronger and organized into units, including divisions "with battalions under their control."

He said he had recommended that 12,000 more Greek troops be put into a replacement pool so casualties could be replaced without withdrawing units from the line.

Livesay also said 32 commando companies of 100 to 120 men each had been organized and trained.

He has recommended that the Greek national defense corps (similar to the United State National Guard) be increased to 100 battalions or 50,000 men. These would replace Greek regular troops now guarding towns and allow the regulars to go into the line.

Anti-Trust Exemption Prompts Steel Leaders To Pledge Cooperation in Output Allocation

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The Government yesterday won a promise of "full cooperation" from the Nation's top steel tycoons in a voluntary program to parcel out scarce steel supplies.

Seventeen steel leaders—heads of the Nation's biggest mills—met with Secretary of Commerce Harriman. They were described by department officials as being in a much more willing frame of mind than they were last fall.

At that time, they showed little desire to come together and form voluntary agreements to allocate their products.

Yesterday, however, they met under new conditions set by the Republican anti-inflation law passed in the special session. It specifically urged and authorized the making of voluntary agreements. Further, it exempted those who entered into the arrangements from prosecution for their acts under the antitrust laws.

Ask Guarantee in Writing

Even so, the steel industrialists were still skittish yesterday about possible trouble from the antitrust laws. It was learned that Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel Corp., asked that the Government give a guarantee in writing that there would be no danger of prosecution for entering into an allocation agreement.

Harriman and a representative of the Justice Department who sat in on yesterday's meeting promised to give sufficient assurances.

The meeting, which was to lay the groundwork for a voluntary allocation program under the new law, ended with agreement on the idea and on a plan of action.

To Point Out Greatest Needs

Under the plan, the Commerce Department's newly created Office of Industry Cooperation will list the fields where action must be taken. That is, it will set down what industries need steel most urgently, and what bottlenecks need to be broken.

The industry, acting through an advisory committee, will then urv to work out the mechanics of allocations, to meet those pressing needs. In general, the attempt will be made to get more steel for such scarce and highly essential items as freight cars and agricultural and mining machinery. The key requirements are to relieve shortages at home and to provide what is needed for the foreign-aid program.

Virden to Head New Office

The meeting promised to submit a list of names to Harriman for members of the advisory committee, and to suggest a steel official who will work on the program for the OIC, under its director, John C. Virden. Virden, a Cleveland manufacturer, was named to the post yesterday.

Commerce Department officials said yesterday that the pattern of operation which appeared to be shaping up in the steel allocation program might be the one to be followed in other industries.

The OIC is expected to seek similar arrangements for cooperative voluntary distribution programs in the fields of textiles and fertilizers. Somewhat similar plans are said to be under consideration for the petroleum industry, but the Federal agency responsible in this field is the Interior Department.

Failure May Stiffen Law

Commerce officials were cautiously hopeful that the voluntary scheme would have results. They pointed out that the mechanics to be followed—the industry administering the details and actual operation of the allocations—were exactly the same as would be followed if the Government had compulsory authority.

President Truman and Harriman asked Congress for that authority, but Harriman insisted he wanted it only for stand-by purposes. He argued that voluntary agreements would be much more likely to be entered into if industry knew that failure to agree would be followed by Federal orders.

Mother of Three Gets Mayor's Job

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MRS. DOROTHY PUGH, 31, a railroad yard clerk and mother of three children, is the new mayor of East Carondelet, Ill., population 600. She was given the job by the town's board of trustees when Mayor George L. Riebling quit because, he said, the job was "too much for one man" to handle

Boss Sets Up Bar in Plant, Tells Boys to Drink on House

Chicago, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Workers at the Feldt Sheet Metal Works agreed today that their boss is the world's most considerate man.

Milton Sachsel, general supervisor of the works became his employes' choice for the "man of distinction" when he set up a bar in the back room of the plant and invited the workers to help themselves whenever they wanted a drink.

Sachsel said the bar, which is stocked with the choicest liquor, easily pays for itself in increased production.

"Before I put this bar in here," Sachsel said, "I had nothing but trouble. The men were ducking out the back door and when I began watching that, they began ducking out the front door.

"I figured that the thing that was attracting them away was liquor. So the thing to do was to bring the liquor here."

Sachsel had the bar—made of sheet metal, of course—installed and told his employes to do their drinking in the shop.

"The men don't abuse the privilege," he said. "And it helps a lot with the customers, too. Only yesterday we sewed up a big deal over the bar.

"We run out of liquor every once in a while, but in this business it is an awful lot easier to replace whisky than it is to replace sheet metal workers."

Britain Stands Firm On Film Import Tax

President Eric Johnston of the Motion Picture Association of America said yesterday the British government is standing firm on its 75 per cent import tax on American films and has "summarily rejected" any alternative.

He reported that discussions between British representatives and officials of the Motion Picture Export Association "have come to a standstill." The discussions were held recently in London.

Steel Lawyers, CIO Warn of Craft Disputes

By The Associated Press

Attorneys for steel companies and the CIO Steel Workers Union told the National Labor Relations Board yesterday that interunion strife will break out in the steel industry if the board sanctions craft union organization in the industry.

The warning was given at a hearing of two cases involving petitions of the AFL Bricklayers Union for permission to establish separate bargaining units for craft employes in two Ohio steel plants.

Both plants now are organized on an industrial basis—with all employes, regardless of craft or particular skill, represented by the CIO Steelworkers. This also is true of most of the rest of the industry.

Dispute Epidemic Feared

"If this once gets started it will bring on craft disputes throughout our industry," warned R. Heath Larry of Pittsburgh, attorney for the National Tube Co., a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corp.

Simularly C. J. Petzhold, Cincinnati attorney for the America Rolling Mil Co., and Lee Pressma counsel for the CIO Steelworke Union said that giving a number craft unions bargaining rights the industry will promote indu trial disputes.

However, William J. Corrigan, Cleveland attorney for the AFL Bricklayers Union, argued that the NLRB is bound under the Taft-Hartley law to create bargaining units for craft workers desiring representation seperate from remaining production workers in an industry.

"That's the Law," Says AFL

"No doubt you will be flooded with requests for separate craft units from now on," Corrigan said. "But that's the law."

Pressman contented the new labor law simply required the NLRB to consider craft workers' desire to be dealt with as a separate bargaining union. But he said the board still has complete discretion on what type of bargaining unit it may order established.

After hearing the argument, the NLRB took the cases under advisement for decision later.

The dispute involves the traditional struggle of the craft vs. the industrial type of union organization.

CIO, AFL at Odds on Issue

It is the crux of the difference between the AFL, which leans toward craft organization, and the CIO, the original members of which split away from the AFL in favor of unionizing entire industries regardless of what type of work the individual employes do.

The old Wagner Labor Relations Act left it entirely up to the NLRB to determine what type of bargaining unit it deemed proper. And for the steel industry, at least, the board always favored the industrial type of bargaining unit—blanketing in all craftsmen with steelworkers for union representation.

The steel industry, thus far the most part organized solidly under one CIO union, has been the backbone of the CIO itself, with the AFL completely shut out.

Tavern License Suspended For 10 Days

The Alcohol Beverage Control Board yesterday imposed a 10-day license suspension upon Edward Arosy, tavern keeper, of 5438 South Dakota ave. ne.

The board found at a hearing that Arosy had sold beer to a 14-year-old and a 16-year-old boy.

The board also took under advisement two cases. They are:

John M. Sales, 1216 U st. nw., who operates a bar there, charged with failure to affix stamps, to post his license in a prominant place, and to affix his license number on the stamps.

The Reno Food Corp. at 929-931 9th st. nw., charged with the sale to an intoxicated person of alcoholic beverages and the use of the premises for an unlawful purpose, gambling.

The board cited for hearing January 21—30 charges against Mrs. Esther Lazarus, who operates a restaurant serving liquors at 521 Massachusetts ave. nw. The charges include bad faith, failure to properly superintend the premises, use for an unlawful purpose, use for a disorderly purpose, 12 sales to intoxicated persons, and allowing persons to use vile and obscene language and to engage in fist fights on the premises.

Supreme Court Questions Oklahoma Counsel On Banning Negro Girl From Law College

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Counsel for the State of Oklahoma took a severe hazing from the Supreme Court yesterday.

The lawyers said their State was eager to obey the Constitution, by giving all Oklahoma citizens equal protection of the laws.

Well, then, the justices asked sharply—again and again—why did Ada Lois Sipuel, a Negro girl, have to come clear to the Supreme Court to get into the State law school, which is open to students of other races?

Turned Down Two Years Ago

Miss Sipuel was graduated by the State College for Negroes, then tried to enter the University of Oklahoma law school, which is the only State law school there is. She had her credits, she passed all other tests, but she was turned down. The regents pointed to the State law making it a crime for Negroes to go to white schools, and vice versa. That was two years ago.

When the Oklahoma Supreme Court backed up the regents, Miss Sipuel appealed to the justices here.

Assistant Attorney General Fred Hansen told the justices yesterday that Miss Sipuel was not yet a law student because she failed to do the one thing needful. And that was, he said, to apply to the State regents—who are not the same as the university regents—for a course in law.

And to whom, asked Judge Rutledge, would students of other races apply?

Treatment Held Same

Hansen said they would apply to the university, as Miss Sipuel did. But her having to apply to a different agency was not differ ent treatment, Hansen explained because if Miss Sipuel would do that, then it would be the duty of the regents to set up a Negro law school, or to let her go to the white law school.

Chief Justice Vinson asked how that could be, since the State law prevents her going there. Hansen said he thought the regents could manage it.

The Chief Justice still wondered. So did Justice Reed.

Hansen said that of course the State was bound to give equal education to all its citizens, but that it had a right to do so in separate schools.

"A law school for just one student wouldn't be equal," Justice Jackson broke in, asking, "It wouldn't be much of a law school, would it?"

Hansen said the regents would be bound to open the new school promptly, but admitted it might ake some time.

"She might be an old lady by hat time," Justice Douglas murmured.

Pointing out that Miss Sipuel first applied two years ago, Justice Black asked what had been done to set up a school for her.

Nothing, said Hansen, because it was felt that Miss Sipuel would not want to go to it; that what she wanted was to go to the white law school, that is to "the" State law school.

His opening argument finished, Attorney Hansen abandoned the courtroom, leaving Maurice H. Merrill, acting dean of the law school in question, to carry the ball for segregation.

Jackson at once tackled the dean.

"You're attorney for the State of Oklahoma," Jackson told him. "The State has known for two years that she wanted to study law. What step has the State taken?"

No Step Taken

"Not one step; we didn't feel it our duty."

"Then why keep her out of the university?"

Merrill said Oklahoma is one of 17 States with a policy of race segregation, and Miss Sipuel was not willing to recognize that policy.

"Why should she abide by it more than a white person?" asked Jackson. "Why should she waive her constitutional rights?"

The winter term at the Oklahoma State law school starts week after next. By his questions about this, and the State's claims that it is willing to obey the Constitution, Justice Frankfurter gave a hint that the court may act on the case at once, maybe next Monday.

From Frankfurther's questions, it seems that the justices might pass the matter back to the Oklahoma officials. If they made good on what their lawyers told the court yesterday, then Miss Sipuel would get the "equal protection of the law" and would start to school at once. If she did not, then the case could be brought up again later in the winter.

With practically no heckling questions, Attorney Thurgood Marshall of New York closed the case for Miss Sipuel.

Consul's Sister Ordered Freed From Gallinger

The sister of the United States consul to Istanbul was ordered freed from Gallinger Hospital's psychiatric ward after Associate Justice T. Alan Goldsborough characterized her commitment as an "outrage," it was learned in District Court yesterday.

The jurist's remarks stemmed from testimony Wednesday that Miss Julia Borden Hutton, 3605 Patterson st. nw., had been institutionalized as a result of a psychiatric examination held over cocktails in the Willard Hotel Lounge.

Miss Hutton was ordered discharged when her attorney, William Koken, showed that one of two examining psychiatrists was not a legal resident of the District, contrary to law in such cases.

Koken told the court that the Willard meeting was arranged by Miss Hutton's brother, Paul Churchill Hutton, and that the woman had "not the slightest idea" she was undergoing an examination.

Affidavits of insanity were made out on the spot, it was testified, and Miss Hutton was apprehended by police as she left the cocktail room.

She was removed to Gallinger, found of unsolund mind by psychiatrists there and a similar finding was made later at a hearing conducted by the Commission on Mental Health.

Miss Hutton's case was brought t ocourt after she scrawled a request for a jury trial on a sheet of brown wrapping paper and forwarded it to District Court where Goldsborough dismissed the case.

Hounds Take After Fox, Now Club Hunts Them

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 8 (AP).—The newly organized United States Steel and Wire Co. Fox-Hunting Club turned its attention today from hunting foxes to hunting hounds.

The 60 members bought two hounds, valued at $200 and noted for their fox-hunting ability. Tuesday they went a-hunting for the first time. They sighted a fox and the baying hounds took off "like they were jet-propelled," according to club president Oliver Parlin.

The dogs haven't been seen since. Neither has the fox.

By Edwin Hartrich

Frankfurt, Jan. 8 (NYHT).—Ersatz Deutschland, Western Division, was officially launched here today.

At the conclusion of a two-day conference here, American and British military government officials and political leaders of western Germany were in general agreement on proposals which will provide the American and British zones with a "cabinet" of six agencies and a chief executive, upper and lower housees of parliament and a judiciary system.

At a press conference here tonight, Gen. Lucius D. Clay and Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, American and British Governors, identified their creation as "a German economic administration." They added it was "a joint product" of the Allied military government and German political leaders, a statement which the latter group cautiously supported at the close of the session.

Communists Speak Out

The local Communist Party headquarters tonight issued a statement claiming that these proposals are "another step toward the formation of a west German state."

Described by General Clay as "very satisfactory," today's meeting found the Allied officials and German politicians in general agreement over basic proposals submitted for consideration yesterday. These will provide "Bizonia" with the following quasi-governmetnal structure:

1. A parliamentary lower house, now the present economic council, doubled in size to 104 members. Its members will be selected by the various state parilments in direct proportion to the strength of political parties.

2. An upper house or Laenderrat composed by 16 members, two selected by each of the eight land governments of "Bizonia." It will have limited power to veto legislation of the lower house within a 14-day period. The economic council can override this veto if able to muster an absolute numerical majority, or 53 votes.

3. The executive branch will comprise the directors of the six Bizonal agencies, together with a chairman as a "minister without portfolio." The chief of Bizonia will be elected by the lower house and approved by the Laenderrat.

4. The Economic Council will have limited taxation powers and control of excise and custom revenues.

Germans Agree in Principle

5. The Germans "agreed in principle" on the proposed high court which will have supreme juridical power to decide on any and all disputes affecting the powers of Bizonia or infringements or violations of its legislation and decrees by the state governments.

6. Agreement in principle also was reached on the proposed "land union bank" which will have power to issue currency, to control credit and credit instruments.

General Clay indicated that the new administration will begin functioning in part around February 1.

Both Clay and Robertson took particular pains in their press conference to emphasize that their objective was and still is to "obtain the unification of Germany."

Cabinet to Keep It Secret Until Debate in 2 Weeks

London, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin presented to the cabine ttoday a drastically revised global program of British foreign policy covering every point of the world where Russian and American interests are in conflict.

Foreign experts have been working on the new program almost since the day—December 15—when the Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference broke up here in failure to agree on German and Austrian treaties.

It is highly secret until Bevin reveals it, at least in part, in a two-day Commons debate on foreign policy January 22 and 23.

Reported Highlights

Well-informed sources believed that the plan embraced the following points:

1. Germany: Britain will cooperate in every way with the United States, making every effort to keep within the Big Three Potsdam agreement.

2. Greece: Britain will associate herself closely with the United States in maintaining the Greek government against Communist pressure and in liberalizing it to be more representative.

3. Middle East: Britain will try to build up its position in every way to offset Russia. She will try to stave off a major conflict between Jews and Arabs in Palestine when her mandate ends about May 15.

4. Western Europe: Britain intends to play a big part in the Marshall Plan but details can not be worked out until the American congressional situation has been clarified.

5. Far East: Britain will follow the United States policy as regards Japan and a peace treaty for her.

Russia Sends New Note

In this connection it was made known today that Russia has sent Britain a new note repeating its demand that the Council of Foreign Ministers instead of the Far Eastern Control Commission start work on the treaty.

The publication of the Royal Institute of International Affairs, which usually reflects the views of the Foreign Office, suggested today that Russia might withdraw from the United Nations and that the new Communist bureau of information—the Cominform—might be developed into a counter-U. N. in which Russia would take part.

Roads Get Priority

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (AP).—A leg of the new Baltimore-Washington highway, a new dual highway replacing York road, and a new Frederick road are to be given top priority in the 1948 program, Robert M. Reindollar, State roads commissioner, announced today.

Waitress Gets Death In 'Sex Lure' Murder

Nevada City, Calif., Jan. 8 (AP).—Smiling fixedly, thrice-married Lois Hunt Hardy heard herself sentenced to death today in California's gas chamber for the "sex-lure" slaying of a California motorist.

The frail 22-year-old waitress was convicted last month of first degree murder charges in the death of James W. McClain, 48, Glendale motorist who gave her and her common-law husband a hitch-hiking ride.

World Monetary Fund Transactions Put at 439 Millions

The International Monetary Fund, in its quarterly financial statement yesterday, reported that in the first nine months of its operations, transactions have totalled $439,445,000. Of the total, $301,900,000 was done in the quarter ended last November 28.

At the same time, the fund announced further transactions of $28,300,000 done in December, making a total of 22 transactions, valued at $467,745,000 as of the end of 1947.

The transactions were, for the most part, sales of United States dollars against other currencies, although in one case a sale of 1.5 million British pounds was recorded. The countries whose currencies were shown as having ben involved in these transactions were Belgium, Chile, Denmark, France, Mexico, Netherlands, Turkey, United Kingdom and the United States.

The November 28 balance of the fund shows that the institution holds 38,742,962 ounces of gold, valued at $1,356,003,675. Total assets are stated at $7,921,738,437. The excess of expenditures over income, which stood at $1,555,679 on August 31, had been reduced by November 28 to $96,911.

The fund announced that henceforth it would publish a monthly summary of transactions, with no transactions announced between these monthly reports. In addition, each quarter the fund will issue a financial statement, including a balance sheet and a statement of currency holdings.

Johns Hopkins Gets $500,000 for Research

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (AP).—Johns Hopkins University announced today it had received a gift of $500,000 from John Lee Pratt, Fredericksburg, Va., a university trustee, for study of the effects of the so-called "trace" elements upon plants, animals and man.

President Isaiah Bowman said the gift would be known as the McCollum-Pratt Fund in honor of Dr. E. V. McCollum, authority on nutrition, and the donor. Dr. McCollum will assist in planning the investigation that the funds will support.

Dr. Bowman said the study would seek to learn the importance of certain minerals, in amount so small as to be designated only as "traces" and to determine their effect on the health of plants

Higher Pay for Gallinger Heads Promised by Ruhland

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Higher pay will be obtained for Gallinger Hospital departments heads "one way or another," Health Officer George C. Ruhland promised last night.

He said a pay boost is necessary to stem the flow of resignations from top hospital jobs. Three of the hospital's chief medical officers have resigned since November.

His statement was a reply to a November 20 memoradum from seven top medical officers, who search opportunities, and other benefits.
asked for higher salaries, more re-

Other Developments

Other developments affecting Gallinger Hospital yesterday were:

1. The Commissioners announced they will ask Congress for a $54,000 supplemental appropriation for psychiatric building improvements. It would cover cost of repairing one elevator and providing three new ones ($50,000) and replacing radiators with hot ari ventilators in seclusion rooms ($4000).

2. They also directed the hospital to use $9800 from current operating funds in the psychiatric division for purchase and installation of four continuous-flow bathtubs, elimination of leaks in psychotherapy and occupational therapy units, and repair of hot water heaters.

Dr. Ruhland said the salary increases could be obtained by either of two methods: place top jobs under Civil Service or ask Congress to authorize a boost through legislation. Either would first require Commissioners' approval.

Both methods are being investigated. Dr. Ruhland said he would arrange an "unofficial" meeting with Civil Service Commission officials soon to see what classification bracket could be obtained for the jobs.

He said he hoped CSC would "consider" Professional Seven (P-7) classifications so salaries ranging from about $8100 to $9000 could be paid department chiefs.

Present $7581-a-year salaries are set by Congress and incumbents do not receive regular Civil Service increases under the Ramspeck Act, he pointed out.

If suitable Civil Service classification cannot be obtained, Dr. Ruhland said he would ask the Commissioners to seek a "statutory" raise from Congress. Any switch to Civil Service ratings also would have to be passed by Congress.

Prefers Civil Service Plan

Dr. Ruhland said he would prefer the switch to Civil Service so the medical chiefs could get "automatic" pay increases.

But, he added, the District "can't possibly match" salaries paid for similar jobs by the Veterans' Administration, as requested in the seven doctors' memorandum.

He also opposed their bid for permission to accept fees from outside patients. "I have a full day's work for them," he declared. "One or the other would suffer."

Other requests, including compensation for overtime work, free meals, separate dinin groom, more research opportunities, hospital service for themselves and families at cost, and better secretarial and technical assistance, are "administrative matters" which must be taken up with the Commissioners, he said.

Budget Bureau Staff, Snyder See Truman

President Truman held a long financial conference yesterday with members of the Budget Breau staff and Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder.

Budget Director James E. Webb presented 10 members of his staff to the Chief Executive and together they were over the documents and charts making up the massive budget which the President will send to the Congress Monday.

Don't wipe dishes.... they'll drain-dry to diamond-bright lustre with Glim

A tiny thimbleful does your dinner dishes!

New! Liquid Wonder floats grease away fast!

Cuts grease faster than soap!
Grease actually disappears as Glim cuts it away from dishes, pots and pans. Even sticky lamb fat, egg smears float away, surrounded by fast-acting Glim!

Soapless . . . almost workless . . . dishwashing!
Glim virtually does the dishes for you! Cleans them faster, better than soap. Makes rinsing easier. Does away with wiping—dish towel bother. Dishes drain dry. Even the dishpan's cleaner—no grimy ring!

No soap film! Every dish crystal-clean!
You never saw such shining dishes, glassware, silver! Glim leaves them glittering . . . completely clean . . . free from dulling soapy streaks. A dream for dishwashing—that's Glim!

Leaves hands feeling surgically clean!
Glim leaves hands cleaner than ever before. Yet no soap made—powder, flake or bar—is safer, gentler, or milder to hands. Unlike soap, Glim contains no harsh alkali. In tests with eleven leading soap and soapless dishwashers, only Glim proved 100% non-irritating to all types of skin.

Suds faster than soap!
No stubborn soap particles to dissolve. For instant suds in hard or soft, hot or cold water—pour Glim into dishpan. Add water full force. No need for scalding water that scalds your hands, too. Glim keeps on cleaning even after suds have dissolved!

Now available at your grocer's!

Money back!
... if you don't like Glim better than any other dishwasher—soap or soapless—that you can buy. Just send bottle with unused portion to Antara Products, 230 Park Avenue, New York 17, N. Y., and we'll gladly refund the purchase price plus postage.

18th Body Taken From Wrecked DC-3

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 8 (AP).—The crushed body of an unidentified man was found today in the water-logged wreckage of a DC-3 passenger plane, raising to 18 the number killed yesterday when the faltering ship ripped into a Savannah River swamp.

Bodies of 17 of the 27 passengers who were aboard the chartered plane, en route from Newark, N. J., to Miami, were removed yesterday. Nin eothers who were injured remained in Savannah hospitals.

A report that three persons still were missing in the crash apparently sprang from a discrepancy in the plane's manifest. The manifest showed 25 passengers including an infant boarded the plane in Newark and that two more passengers got on in Philadelphia.

Bodies of the two who boarded at Philadelphia have been recovered. They were identified as Harry Woodcock and Gerson Brody, both United States Internal Revenue Bureau employes. There has been no trace of an infant.

[Woodcock was a native Washingtonian who lived most of his life in the 200 block of C st. ne. and attended McKinley High School, a friend said last night. He had been with the Internal Revenue office in Philadelphia for a number of years and no relatives were known here.]

He Opened The Wrong Door

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

JOHN CIKULIN, 24, identified by police as a youthful gunman, lies battered in a bed at Cook County Jail hospital yesterday after allegedly holding up a southside Chicago tavern and attempting to flee with $29 loot. Police said he opened the wrong door in making his way out and entered a washroom instead of the exit. When he emerged, five victims were awaiting with various weapons, including bar stools and bottles

Insurance Rate Hike by Blue Cross Approved in Md.

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (AP).—State Insurance Commissioner Claude Hanley today approved an increase in the rates charged by Maryland Hospital (Blue Cross) Service but the new schedule will not be announced at least until Monday.

Hanley said he and Temple A. Joyce, deputy commissioner, had decided on increases somewhat less than the one-third boost asked by Blue Cross.

The commissioners at the same time announced they had approved plans for operation of Medical Care, Inc. a somewhat similar system which would underwrite the cost of physicians' services as well as hospitalization expenses.

It is planned to make medical care service available first to Blue Cross subscribers.

Blue Cross has about 543,000 participants in Maryland.

Business Is Offered 60 German Patents

The Justice Department's office of alien property yesterday made 60 German electrical patents available for unrestricted licensing by American business generally.

The patents cover production and use of electrical apparatus for prime movers and their accessories, the control and application of electricity for light, heat, power and traction purposes, and various uses in steam turbines, reduction gears, condensing plants, heat exchanges and electrical pumps.

Tribute Paid to Glass At Sweet Briar College

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—The late United States Senator Carter Glass of Virginia was honored today at Sweet Briar College, and the man who served as his Assistant Secretary of the Treasury said that "for his work in the creation of the Federal Reserve System, Glass deserves to be rememberd throughout time."

Russell C. Leffingwell, who served with Glass in the Wilson Administration, said the esablishment of the Federal Reserve was one of the most important events in the monetary history of the United States.

George, James Fleming, Clark Swain, Arthur Atwell, Joe Frye, Owen Hough, Oden Semones, A. B. Titus, Harry Flippe and Clark Swain.

Renovation Slated

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 8 (AP).—The historic dome of Maryland's State House will undergo renovation shortly. Bids will be opened Wednesday.

Soviet Ship Carrying 780 Still Afloat

Tokyo, Jan. 8 (AP).—Improving weather off the East Coast of Hokkaido led American military authorities tonight to express belief that the waterlogged Russian ship Dvina might yet reach safety with her 789 passengers.

They said four rescue craft—two Russian and two Japanese—now were standing by and five others were en route to the Dvina's position. American patrol planes circled overhead.

Strong winds and 50-foot high waves had prevented any aid since the ship sent her first distress signal yesterday.

American pilots said the Dvina was an American-built Liberty ship, a number of which Russia received as lend-lease during the war. A Liberty ship is a little over 7000 gross tons.

The unusually large passenger listing was given in the captain's distress message but there was no explanation for it. Japanese repatriates have been carried in such numbers, but Russia has announced that repatriations were halted for the winter.

(Ruling out Japanese repatriates, the possibility remained that the passengers were Soviet military personnel or laborers en route back to Vladivostok from Kamchatka air bases.)

United States naval authorities said the ship's latest messages reported she was flooded and her engine was dead. United States fliers said her decks were awash but a 40-degree list had eased to 30 degrees and danger of sinking appeared less imminent.

Du Ponts Ask Green Light In Rail Deal

By The Associated Press

The DuPont estate, holder of more than 25 million dollars worth of defaulted Florida East Coast Railway bonds, yesterday proposed a "debt-free" reorganization of the railway to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Under the DuPont plan, as presented by James F. Byrnes, former Secretary of State, the estate would gain control of the railroad since its bond holdings represent more than 50 per cent of those outstanding.

Byrnes and other DuPont attorneys joined representatives of labor, competing railroads, bondholders and the city of Fort Pierce, Fla., in opposing a commission-indorsed plan calling for reorganization of the Florida East Coast and its merger with the Atlantic Coast Line system.

Byrnes Attacks Plan

The commission plan, announced last April 8, reversed the recommendation of an examiner that the DuPont estate be allowed to acquire the Florida East Coast and operate it independently. It was attacked today by Byrnes and others as "unfair" and a Supreme Court test was threatened if it is allowed to stand.

The FEC has been in bankruptcy court several years, but now has 18 million dollars in its treasury.

The new Du Pont plan of reorganization would be contingent on its acceptance by holders of at least 80 per cent of the outstanding FEC bonds. It calls for:

1. The issuance of common stock to those owning 80 per cent of the FEC bonds. (They would receive $1000 stock for each $1000 bond, and nothing for accrued interest.)

Internal Revenue Agreement

2. An agreement by the Bureau of Internal Revenue not to tax assenting bondholders who exchange bonds (now worth around $600 each) for $1000 worth of common stock. (Proponents claim it would merely be "A paper transaction, without capital gain.")

3. Payment of the face value of all bonds held by dissenters (the less than 20 per cent who decline to accept stock) out of funds already in the FEC treasury.

In the event the Du Pont plan is not accepted, Byrnes suggested that the railroad be sold at public sale, with the commission fixing a minimum price at which bidding may start.

Election Upheld

NLRB Backs Union on Propaganda

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday refused to throw out an election on grounds that the labor union involved may have made false campaign statements.

The board's decision was the first on the subject of "free speech" since the passage of the Taft-Hartley Act. It said it would not "censor propaganda material" used by unions in an election campaign.

The case arose when the Carrollton (Ky.) Furniture Manufacturing Co. asked the NLRB to throw out an election in its plant for the proper collective bargaining agent. The AFL United Auto Workers won the election, but the company said the union had unduly influenced the vote by spreading what the company claimed was derogatory and false campaign statements.

Right Implied

The NLRB replied that what the union said fell under the calssification of "propaganda" and it implied that the union had a right to circulate propaganda. The company, the decision added, had the opportunity, and used it, to counteract that propaganda.

"There is no real danger," the board said, "in leaving to the good sense of the voter the task of appraising such election practices by unions and in referring to the opposing parties the duty of correcting inaccurate or untruthful statements by any of them."

The decision was handed down as the Government laid plans to seek criminal indictments against various CIO and AFL unions for political campaign activities in alleged violation of the Taft-Hartley Law.

Test Case Due Soon

The first legal steps toward prosecuting a 'test case" of the act's ban on use of union dues for political activities may be taken within the next two weeks.

Final details remain to be worked out, but the cases under study involve political activities in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Connecticut.

CIO President Philip Murray ordered the union's official publication, the "CIO News," to circulate free copies containing his statement indorsing the candidacy of Representative Edward A. Garmatz (D., Md.), in a special Baltimore election last July. Murray issued his orders in a deliberate attempt to test the act's constitutionality.

ITU Journals Are Admitted At Labor Board Hearing

Chicago, Jan. 8 (AP). — Official publications of the International Typographical Union were admitted today at a National Labor Relations Board hearing of unfair labor practices against the union. ITU counsel charged the evidence was being offered "through the back door."

In response to a subpena, copies of the ITU Journal were brought to the hearing by Reese J. Highfield, 52, of Akron, Ohio. Highfield is secretary and business agent of Local 182, ITU, and a member of an independent union faction opposed to some policies of Woodruff Randolph, ITU president.

Introduced in evidence was a paragraph from a December, 1944, issue of the Journal which quoted Elmer Brown, second vice president of the ITU as saying:

"The ITU executive council will declare a lockout exists whenever a nonunion worker is allowed to work in a union composing room. When a nonunion worker enters a union composing room, the union members will leave."

The article also told of the outlawing of the closed shop in two States.

Gerhard Van Arkle, ITU counsel, objected to indroduction of the jornals. He said subpenas to produce the journals had been served earlier on ITU headquarters but that the union had asked the NLRB to revoke its subpena. The NLRB referred the question to trial examiner Arthur Left who asked that the records be produced. However, the union refused.

A round of boos from an audience which included some striking Chicago printers greeted Highfield when he took the witness stand. Quiet was restored when Left threatened to clear the room.

The publishers charge that the union now is trying to side-step closed shop prohibitions of the Taft-Hartley Act by substituting conditions of employment for a written contract. In commenting on current ITU strikes against some newspapers, the union has denied this, saying wages were the issue. This is in turn denied by the publishers, who have said they would discuss wage boosts embraced by a contract.

Earlier, George N. Dale of Chicago, chairman of a special standing committee on labor relations of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, said problems facing the ITU under the Taft-Hartley Act are no different than those faced by other unions employed by newspapers.

Sen. Revercomb Turns Teacher for Half-Hour

By The Associated Press

Senator Revercomb (R., W. Va.) turned teacher yesterday for 30 minutes to a group of students from his alma mater high school at Covington, Va.

The 95 boys and girls and four faculty members overflowed the Senator's offices and were escorted to the Public Works committee room, where Revercomb presides as chairman. There Revercomb talked on the work of the Senate and the technique of law making.

W. R. Curfman, high school principal accompanying the group, said the students would go sightseeing today and attend a part of the Senate session before returning home tonight.

Distillery Firm Asks Injunctions

Schenley Contests Grain Rationing Law; Would Enjoin Anderson on Program

A red-hot intraindustry row among the Nation's whisky makers broke into the courts yesterday.

The Schenley Distilling Corp., one of the "Big Four" distillers of the Nation, asked injunctions to halt operation of the recently enacted law limiting allocations of grain for the manufacture of beverage spirits.

Two suits were filed.

The first challenged the constitutionality of what it called the "Taft Anti-Inflation Act," signed by President Truman December 30, and which expires January 31.

The second seeks to enjoin Secretary of Agriculture Anderson from carrying out his program to limit the use of grain this month to 2,450,000 bushels. A year ago the industry consumed 8,500,000 bushels of grain in January.

Rationing Held Illegal

In the first suit, Schenley claims that the provisions of the law rationing grain for distillers is unconstitutional because other users are not similarly restricted.

At a news conference, Ralph T. Heymsfeld, head of Schenley's legal department, declared that wheat is the grain most needed for relief abroad.

"However," he said, "the makers of bread, who use large quantities of wheat, are not rationed. Yet one industry that utilizes less han 1 per cent of the Nation's total grain supply is rationed.

"Schenley uses no wheat," he added.

The allocation formula set up by Anderson was based two thirds on plant capacity and one third on "historical use of grain"—in other words, the amount of grain each distiller used over a period of prior years.

This allocation, Heymsfeld said, "does not give any consideration to the sales record of individual companies in the industry.

Disparity Cited

"Companies doing 74 per cent of the business are alloted 44 per cent of the grain. Roughly speaking, the industry has been reduced to about one half its normal requirements, whereas Schenley has been reduced to one third."

Schenley last year was the second largest company in matter of sales, enjoying 23.1 per cent of such business. It produced, however, only 13.1 of the whisky.

"Some companies," Heymsfeld continued, "are alloted enough to meet only half their established sales, and other companies are alloted from two to four times more than necessary for their established sales."

Heymsfeld singled out two companies, Publicker Industries and United Distillers, as those benefiting by Anderson's allocations.

The suits were filed in District Court by Attorney Robert Marx of Cincinnati.

Immediately after the Schenley press conference, Publicker issued a statement attacking Schenley's challenge of the law's constitutionality.

"Attack Groundless"

"The attack is groundless in law and without merit in reason," it said.

"Apparently the argument is that if there is to be any allocation of grain, it must include grain for bread as well as grain for whisky.

"The Congress was more sensible. It has found that it is reasonable and necessary to give authority over the latter, but not the former. It has exercised the privilege and duty of being discriminating as distinguished from discriminatory."

Sitting on the sidelines in the row now mainly between Schenley and Publicker and United, is the Distilled Spirits Institute, made up of about 60 per cent of the Nation's distilling capacity.

Among these are many small operators, who claim that Schenley's program would put them out of business.

Last year the sales of the "Big Four," National, Schenley, Seagram and Hiram Walker, was almost 75 per cent of the total. However, they produced only 47 per cent of the beverage liquor manufactured.

An allocation formula based on manufacture thus would cut their output far greater than an allocation based on sales. The smaller operators, who sell much of their goods at wholesale, want to keep the allocations based on plant production.

Wholesale Food Prices Up 2% in Week, BLS Reports

Wholesale food prices, as measured by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, bounded up 2 per cent during the week ended January 3.

The rise carried the BLS index of all wholesale prices to another postwar peak of 164.4 per cent of the 1926 average. The index was up 0.9 per cent over the preceding week; 2.1 per cent above a month ago, and 18.2 per cent above the corresponding week a year ago. It was only about 2 per cent below the all time high of May, 1920.

Wholesale prices now have been on the upgrade for nine consecutive weeks.

Farm product prices rose 1.1 per cent during the week ended January 3. They were 2.9 per cent above four weeks ago and 19.9 above last year. On the average, food prices were 0.9 per cent above a month ago and 15.9 per cent above a year ago.

Prices of most meats were up, but salt pork declined. Apple prices increased and oranges advanced, but lemons declined seasonally. Both sweet and white potato prices were higher. Flour declined slightly. Butter increased and lard and edible tallow were higher.

Hog and sheep prices were higher. Poultry prices were substantially higher as a result of holiday trading. Egg prices declined seasonally. All grains except oats were lower. Raw cotton was higher.

Average prices of all commodities other than farm products and foods continued to advance, rising 0.3 per cent during the week to a level 2.3 per cent above a month ago and 18 per cent higher than a year ago.

The weekly index of wholesale prices is assembled on about 900 commodities.

Yellow Corn Sells At $2.77 in Chicago

Chicago, Jan. 8 (AP).—Yellow corn sold for $2.77 a bushel on the cash market of the Board of Trade today, highest price in history here for the grain.

Steel Prices Advanced

New York, Jan. 8 (AP).—United States Steel and Bethlehem Steel today advanced prices $3 a ton for basic, foundry, malleable and Bessemer grades of pig iron.

Bethlehem also advanced the low phosphorus grade $4 a ton to $46.

Basic pig iron became $40, foundry $40.50, malleable $41, and Bessemer $41.50.

Although one company was reported to have advanced the price of steel billets to $47.50 a ton, the larger companies held to $45.

Steel bars remained at the price of $58 a ton, set at Pittsburgh, August 1, and hot rolled sheets at $2.80 a hundredweight, also set August 1. Galvanized steel was unchanged at $3.90 a hundredweight.

Md. Wheat Output Off Million Bushels

By The Associated Press

Winter wheat production in Maryland this year will total approximately 6,704,000 bushels, compared to 7,770,000 bushels in 1946, the Department of Agriculture reported yesterday. The acreage of winter wheat seeded for 1948 was put at 419,000 acres, 5 per cent more than in 1947.

Unintentional Praise

At the opening of yesterday's session in the trial of Fire Chief Clement Murphy, his counsel, Martin F. O'Donoghue, referred to this newspaper as The Washington Pravda in an attack on our editorial of Wednesday. We take this occasion to remind Mr. O'Donoghue that the word pravda in Russian means truth. We appreciate the compliment.

Steel: Test Case

Representatives of the steel industry and Government officials are meeting in Washington to work out plans for the allocation of steel to essential users. The steel industry will be the first to test the efficacy of the voluntary agreements authorized under the new Anti-inflation Act. Hence the progress and outcome of the present negotiations will be followed with great interest not only by steel-using industries, but by all industries engaged in production of essential materials that are in short supply.

There is good reason for the selection of the steel industry for the initial experiment in voluntary control, since steel is a basic material for which current demands are in excess of supply. Hence it is necessary to curtail consumption of steel for non-essential purposes if we are to satisfy vital domestic needs for such things as freight cars, farm machinery and automobiles, and also contribute to world rehabilitation by exporting products requiring the use of steel.

The steel conference will accordingly have to consider changes in present distributive methods and will be called upon to set up machinery for enforcing the decisions reached. Although the undertaking is a difficult one, the steel industry is much better equipped to undertake it than are most industries. For a comparatively few large companies produce the major part of the country's steel output, making it easier to set up an effective over-all control organization. Consequently, the initial test of the voluntary control plan is being launched under highly favorable conditions. If the steel industry succeeds in achieving the objectives aimed at, its success will strengthen hopes that voluntary control systems will prove effective in other industries. If it fails, that failure will attest the futility of relying upon voluntary controls to regulate distribution of scarce commodities and curb inflation.

Hutchins On UMT

To enact universal military training, Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins says, would be a "ridiculous and wasteful act of war." It would constitute the "acme of provocation" and at the same time would be useless since "the role of force as a determining factor in international policy is ended." This is an instance in which the University of Chicago chancellor's polemics seem to be intended to stand as a substitute for his reasoning.

There are some serious objections that can be raised against universal military training, but Dr. Hutchins' fantastic charges are not among them. It is patently ridiculous, for example, to contend that adoption of UMT would constitute an "act of war" when the United States is the only major power which does not have conscription. Whom would we provoke? Russia has had military training since the time of the czars; China has it; a short time ago France called up late classes; and Britain has just extended her conscription law. Far from "inflaming other nations against us," as Dr. Hutchins charges, UMT would relieve many fears abroad that this Nation may slip into weakness and thereby allow aggressors free rein.

The main justification for UMT lies in precisely the fact which Dr. Hutchins in a non-sequitur denies—namely, that our postwar diplomatic experience shows clearly that force is a determining factor in international policy. Nor is the atomic bomb, on which Dr. Hutchins puts such reliance, any sound guarantee of permanent security, since its secret, if any, is evanescent. Moreover, as Howard C. Peterson, former Assistant Secretary of War, poin 1 out the other day, even in atomic warfare there still would be need to occupy the enemy's territory. We also should have to have a rapidly mobilizable force at home both to preserve order and to provide replacements for retaliation.

To talk disparagingly of UMT as the basis for an outmoded "mass Army" is to ignore the fact that no one contends we should have a mass Army in the traditional sense. Our Army in World War II was composed of highly trained specialists. Right now our Army and Air Force are 16 per cent below their authorized strength. That fact places additional importance on adequate reserves. Yet Mr. Peterson states: "Our National Guard after strenuous recruiting efforts is largely a paper organization of about one seventh of its projected strength." The way to build up the reserves is through military training. As Mr. Peterson again puts it, "Without UMT, the size of our regular military establishment must be greatly augmented to afford the same amount of security which could be obtained, more cheaply, with such training."

Marshall On The Job

It almost seems as if President Truman had in mind the Marshall Plan and the presidential year when he picked General Marshall as Secretary of State. Mr. Marshall is the only man on the current political scene who is above the battle. He thus speaks with a singular authority to party men who, themselves entertaining political motives, are this year on the watch for political motives in others. In Congress, when the President delivered his State of the Union message, Mr. Marshall got a rare ovation, and yesterday, when the hearings started in Senate Commiftee, the members listened with close attention.

There was nothing particularly new in the Secretary's statement, but his advocacy of the President's European Recovery Program will be scrutinized in the light of recent criticisms of amount and organization. Already, at Senator Vandenberg's suggestion, a global amount has been left out of the ERP. In respect of figures the only one to be submitted to Congress is the sum for the first 15 months of operation: 6.8 billion dollars. Mr. Marshall reminded the committee that this is not an "asking" or a trading figure blindly put on paper in the foreknowledge that it would be whittled down. It reflects, he said, "a searching and comprehensive investigation by the executive branch of European needs and of availabilities in the United States and other supplying countries." It has been computed with "precision" (as a budget for any period after 15 months could not possibly be) and "in our judgment, American assistance of this magnitude is required to initiate a program of genuine recovery and to take both Europe and this Nation out of the blind alley of mere continuing relief."

This, then, is the yardstick of success: the liquidation of Operation Rathole and the restoration of European independence. If there is no surety of success in the ERP, at least the chances of success are reasonably proportionate to the dangers of failure. That is as much as any prudent investor could expect, especially when the stakes are so intimately concerned with our national security. It would be scarcely in accord with common sense if the investment were pared down and the ERP in consequence became a relief instead of a recovery program. Accordingly Congress is asked to accept the data which the Executive has assembled. They are backed by Secretary Marshall's "estimate of the situation," and, if we accept this, we are merely giving the same faith to Secretary Marshall that we gave him when he was Chief of Staff.

A further draft on our faith in Secretary Marshall is called for in the matter of organization. There is a fear based upon experience that the State Department is not efficient in carrying out a business arrangement. It is for this reason that the bill bearing the name of Representative Herter would give authority to carry out the ERP to a Government corporation under control of a bipartisan board of directors. The fact, however, is that ERP is an instrument of foreign policy. And as Mr. Marshall, in identical language with the language we used a week ago, reminded the committee, "there cannot be two Secretaries of State." He might have added that there could not be rival administrators abroad of rival foreign policies. Secretary Marshall's characteristics should be an insurance that he will not "run" the proposed Economic Cooperation Administration. He is well known as a man who delegates authority. But, taking note of the objections to the establishment of an executive agency under the State Department's wing, he denies that the ECA will thereby lose its identity. "I have personally interested myself to see that" the ECA would not be "under the thumb of the Department of State. I do not wish to interefere in the proper functions of the ECA." We trust that Congress will accept assurances which merely buttress the known habits of Secretary Marshall.

Military CAB

President Truman's unpredictable nomination of Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter to head the Civil Aeronautics Board is a contradiction in terms. The anomaly is evident in the President's request for special legislation to enable General Kuter to maintain his military status while filling a job which has "civil" as part of its title. It is no disparagement of our military men to say that the increasing tendency to look to them for leadership in essentially civilian functions is disheartening. Undoubtedly President Truman's choice in this case reflects the difficulty about which he has complained—that of inducing competent men to accept and keep top Government jobs. The President, of course, greatly compounded his own difficulties by the cavalier fashion in which he disposed of the former CAB chairman, James M. Landis.

General Kuter himself is known as one of the abler young Air Force officers. He has a practical background in aviation, including combat service in both Europe and the Pacific and a period as commander of Atlantic operations of the Air Transport Command. He has had experience on the theoretical side as Assistant Chief of Air Plans, and recently has served as military delegate to the International Civil Aviation Organization. Thus in these aspects of his career, at least, General Kuter is well qualified for his new job. Certainly his appointment is preferable to the purely political selection of an investment banker or some of the other candidates about whom rumors have been rife.

As much as a knowledge of flying, however, the CAB chairmanship requires an acquaintance with the quasi-judicial procedure of determining rates and establishing new routes—matters for which General Kuter's background has given him no particular aptitude. Inevitably, whether he intends to be such or not, General Kuter will be regarded as a spokesman for the Air Force in a domain in which civilian considerations are paramount. His appointment will heighten the fears, which the President himself has abetted, that the military is inheriting by default what should be civilian jobs.

Dewey's Message

Governor Dewey is open to criticism for a serious mistake of judgment in attacking the inflationary policies of the Federal Administration under Presidents Roosevelt and Truman and assigning sole blame for postwar inflation to actions of the present Administration. The charge itself is subject to challenge. For, in our opinion, the people of this country and a Republican-dominated Congress share responsibility with President Truman for wrecking price controls. Moreover, the depression of the thirties and the tremendous cost of the war made deficit financing on a colossal scale unavoidable for many years. In any case, by trying to place the blame for our present troubles on the shoulders of Democrats, the Governor gave an unfortunate partisan tinge to an otherwise splendid address that does credit to his good sense and his courage.

He led off with an illuminating summarization of the budgetary difficulties that confront the State because of the rising cost of foods and materials. During the current fiscal year, for instance, the budgeted allowance for feeding the inmates of State institutions was less than 15 million dollars. A deficiency appropriation of more than four million dollars is now requested to make up for subsequent increases in food prices; and for the next fiscal year the budgeted total amounts to more than 19 million dollars. Drastic increases in construction costs have also prevented placement of contracts for essential building. And additional State aid for schools has, the Governor says, been absorbed by higher costs instead of being available for expanded services.

These illustrative examples of the extra burdens laid on the State treasury by rising prices have been cited to drive home the need for keeping down expenses insofar as possible without impairing essential services. With that objective in mind the Governor has made no recommendations for further outlays on low-cost housing beyond the amounts already voted. Moreover, he acknowledges that the housing program and the bonus to State veterans—both financed out of debt—"have a distinctly inflationary effect." Consequently he takes credit for financing bonus payments through short-term debt issues, with an accompanying tax program designed to wipe out that debt within 10 years.

By reason of his selective approach, Governor Dewey is in a position to urge certain upward adjustments in expenditures that cannot be ignored or postponed if the State government is to fulfill its obligations to provide for the educational needs of young people, pay fair wages and salaries to its own employes, and make more adequate benefit payments under the State's unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation systems. Otherwise the Governor declares his intention of resisting appeals for additional funds that, he warns, would put the State in the red if only a mild recession in business were to occur.

As a candidate for the presidential nomination Governor Dewey might well have been tempted to make an inflationary rise in prices an excuse for attracting political support by recommending lavish expenditures. Instead he has had the fortitude to indorse a prudent spending program that will commend him to thoughtful voters regardless of party affiliations.

FEAR OF AUTUMN

He would not walk where autumn
Bordered his summer ground
With altered trees and their troubled
Beckoning dry-leaf sound.

For he had no pact with seasons,
Holding brown leaves flying
A darker thing than the ancient Gods, or young men, dying,

and would not allow his face
The touch of a falling leaf,
Lest a change come over him
Like a long-feared thief.

Whenever the far fall's menace
Came like a faint horn blowing,
He sealed his self and went
Where the steadfast coming and going of great salt-waves assured him,

That in the years long treason
A man could lodge his soul
Too deep for the terror of season.

"Rights On The Skid"

The Washington Post has done a great service in its prominent reporting and editorial treatment (January 3) of the opinion of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond holding unconstitutional the 1940 statute giving District of Columbia residents the right to sue residents of the States in the Federal courts. However, this is not the first case by an appellate court holding the statute invalid. Almost a month ago the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago reached the same result. See 16 U. S. Law Week 2290. The opinion in that case, interestingly enough, was also by a divided court, the majority opinion written by Judge Major, with Judge Evans dissenting.

According to Law Week, the opinion was the first appellate decision on the subject, but there have been nine District Court cases on the point, seven of which have held the act invalid, while two have sustained it.

It is to be expected that even though the decisions of the courts have been generally opposed to the act, the Supreme Court will feel the matter of sufficient importance to take jurisdiction and settle the question finally.

The dissents by learned judges in the Fourth and Seventh Circuits give ground for a belief that the Supreme Court will find it possible to overcome the legal difficulties which led to the majority decisions of the Circuit Courts of Appeals. Certainly justice and equality will be served should the Supreme Court find that the Constitution does not prohibit Congress from correcting at least this one of the many disabilities presently suffered by the residents of our Nation's Capital.

"Greek Trouble"

The editorial policy of The Washington Post as expressed in the January 3 editorial relative to the Greek trouble is astounding. In fact, this amazing editorial not only disclosed the information that our Army officers are on active duty in the Greek war but indicated beyond question of doubt that the editorial policy of The Washington Post is now pro war.

Use of our Army officers on one side of this Greek war and perhaps use of Russia's army officers on the other side is not conducive to peace. It may be that the editorial staff of The Washington Post recognizes this fact, but their Greek editorial did not so indicate. Certainly it does not take a genius to reach the conclusion that fighting or preparation for fighting is not the way to obtain world peace.

It may be that this civilization has reached its end and that within the next five years we will all be fried. Stanley Hall asserted shortly before his death that "man has never yet demonstrated that he can remain permanently civilized." Also it may be that we do not have the intelligence and social capacity to meet the challenge of the atomic age; however, since responsibility always is placed upon the leaders for such failures, then that responsibility for failure will rest heavily upon the shoulders of editorial writers, for they are in a sense leaders of the people.

If the previous sentence makes sense, then it would follow that the editorial staff of The Washington Post would exhibit their intelligence and social capacity if instead of promoting war they would bend all their energies to make the United Nations a vital force by organizing on a national scale (somewhat as Drew Pearson has done with the Friendship Train ideal citizen committees for United Nations reform and in this way actively promote the continuance rather than the fall of his civilization.

"Middle East"

I note your editorial of January 6 dealing with conditions in Palestine and captioned "Middle East."

What is the "Middle East"? For many years I have known something of people and conditions in Beirut, Lebanon, through friends and through a brief residence. I have always supposed Beirut was in the Near East. The American University in Beirut is a member of the Near East College Association.

Approached by sea the Near East was Palestine, Syria, Egypt, Iraq; the Middle East was Iran and India; the Far East was China and Japan. If the countries at the eastern end of the Mediterranean are the "Middle East," what are we to call India, and where is the Near East?

CHARLES L. CARHART.
Chevy Chase.

Editor's Note: As used in the editorial, the term "Middle East" was intended to denote broadly the area extending from Turkey to the borders of India.

"Monitor" Ownership

In Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer's column of January 6 appears a reference to the former Mrs. Nordell Lloyd, whose first husband, it is said, "was one of the main stockholders of the Christian Science Monitor." This is, of course, an obvious oversight, since the Christian Science Monitor is and always has been owned and published by the Christian Science Publishing Society, a nonprofit, nonstock institution held in perpetuity by a board of trustees designated and established by the founder, Mary Baker Eddy. The trustees are James G. Rowell, Elizabeth McArthur Thomson, Leonard T. Carney, all of Boston, Mass. ARTHUR J. TODD, Christian Science Committee on Publication.

Chest Deficit

The failure of the Community Chest to reach its goal is being attributed to "public apathy."

I protest against this. There is no public apathy here in Washington. This drive has failed because the citizens who are the real backbone of the economy are deliberately not giving due to the fact that last year their contributions were used to promote policies to which they do not subscribe. In all fairness the blame should fall on those who were to blame and not on the public. The failure is due not to apathy but to definite dissension. LAURA K. POLLOCK.
Washington.

"Ships And ERP"

Your editorial of January 3, "Ships and ERP," concluded with the supposition that American ship owners in their own interests should favor the outright transfer of 200 laid-up vessels and the charter of 300 more to the 16 European nations participating in the European Recovery Program. From the standpoint of a ship owner who has made a cash investment of roughly 40 million dollars in merchant shipping during the past year and a half, one may be pardoned for looking twice before accepting the gambit.

The major premise is that execution of the proposal will result in a commensurate reduction in European shipbuilding programs. We assume this means ton for ton. Desirable as this course of action may be, it is not in the report of the Committee for European Economic Cooperation nor has it been recommended by the executive branch to the Congress.

United States flag dry-cargo services are maintained and developed in the liner trades which require speed, regularity and frequency of service, and employ vessels of substantial capacity. The 16 nations which participated in the CEEC report are presently operating 1,400,000 tons in excess of their prewar position with respect to vessels of 5000 gross tons or over. The vessels in this range are those which are directly competitive with United States flag liner services. These nations plan to improve their position in this field by construction of three million additional tons of cargo vessels which will have the benefits of improvement in design, cargo-handling equipment, etc., thus providing even stiffer competition.

By contrast, the steamship companies in this country must rely on the vessels purchased from the Maritime Commission under the Merchant Ship Sales Act. These vessels are built to the basic cargo designs that were adopted by the commission before the war. Most of them experienced considerable war service. They are not new ships. While they are good ships they are not equal to ships that could be designed today, but cannot be built because of present-day construction costs, even allowing for the aid recommended by the President's Advisory Committee.

For what purpose is this additional tonnage required: transportation under ERP, or world trading in competition with United States flag vessels? Analysis of the physical quantities proposed to be transported under ERP in accordance with figures submitted by the executive branch disclose that the latter alternative will eventuate.

The physical quantities in thousands of tons of the principal commodities to be transported for the periods under discussion are tabulated below. As the "other items" are assumed to be transported by liner services in which United States flag participation is recognized, they do not enter into the discussion.

Coal	43,250	15,000	5,500	2,766
Grain	9,400	7,165	6,275	6,275
Other Items —Est.	7,200	6,000	5,500	5,000

The 500 ships proposed to be shifted to foreign flag would in themselves have sufficient capacity to carry almost all the coal and grain projected for the period April 1, 1948, to June 30, 1949. This same number of vessels, by the same token, would have almost twice the capacity required to move all the tonnage contemplated for the following fiscal year. The oversupply of tonnage would increase proportionately each year thereafter. Consequently, the outright transfer of vessels should definitely be ruled out.

The editorial implies that the 16 European nations are now precluded from transporting bulky items because of prohibitive freight charges. This allegation seems to rest on rather uncertain grounds since freight rates for bulk cargoes are determined by market conditions, and not by the flag of the vessel. The fact is that certain of these countries prefer to place their own vessels in more profitable areas of employment and to permit the bulk items in the transatlantic trade with their less attractive freight rates to be carried on Liberty ships chartered from the Maritime Commission.

There appears to be a tendency in the CEEC report to remove from the European Recovery Program any tinge of an emergency character. As far as shipping is concerned, at least, this does not seem either realistic or equitable. With respect to the transportation of bulk cargoes referred to above, it would seem advisable not only to treat this movement as a special problem, but also to isolate it from the field of commercial operations. The quantities involved are large. They vary substantially from year to year, and will have to be adjusted periodically in accordance with coal production in Europe, and the availability of grains in the United States.

Owing to the nature of the commodities, the vessels engaged in their transportation should remain fixed in these trades under a centrally controlled program. The fleet of vessels employed for this purpose might well be drawn from three sources: (1) vessels now owned by the participating countries, (2) a limited number of vessels temporarily chartered to the participating countries by this Government, and (3) United States flag vessels; the exact proportions of each category to be worked out on the basis of a formula which takes due cognizance of cost, need for conservation of dollar exchange, and the preservation of an adequate number of United States flag vessels in active operation. Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Failure Of 1947

THE FEW definite recommendations in the President's state of the Union message are like lonely raisins in a large and very sweet pudding. It is as though the White House cooks, faced with the stalemate of a political year, decided it would be best to whip up a pleasantly flavored mixture that would produce a minimum of controversy and a maximum of easy acceptance.

To glance back at the state of the Union message of a year ago is to realize how many of the Nation's pressing problems have been quietly buried. They cannot be concealed with the magic of words, no matter how full of good will those words are meant to be.

Take housing as an example. In his message of a year ago, President Truman said some brave things about housing. He told the Congress that in 1946 one million family housing units had been put under construction and that more than 665,000 units had "already been completed." Then he went on to predict that in 1947 "the number of dwelling units built will approach, if not surpass, the top construction year of 1926."

The figures for '47 fall far below these optimistic hopes. The number of units started last year, according to the Housing and Home Finance Agency, was 794,300, and the number of units completed was 745,100.

THE PRESIDENT, in making his claim of a year ago, referred to the peak construction of 1926. In that boom year 849,000 units were started. The real peak that period appears to have been in 1925, when the number of family housing units started was 937,000.

Thus, 1947 was under both those years and under the actual peak by a wide margin. The meaning of this is clear when we stop to think that the need 20 years ago was not nearly so great as it is today. The population was smaller. And World War I did far less than World War II in interfering with the normal flow of construction.

"The Government," said Mr. Truman in January of 1947, "will continue to expedite the flow of key building materials, to limit nonresidential construction and to give financial support where it will do the most good."

A month before he spoke those good intentions, the President had permitted Wilson Wyatt to resign as housing administrator. Wyatt's resignation came after it had been made plain to him that he would not get backing for measures he believed essential to carry out a realistic housing program.

In 1947 the flow of key building materials was not expedited. Nonresidential construction — race tracks, roller coasters and theaters —flourished at a greater rate than ever. Financial support went to so-called veterans' housing. But with soaring construction costs, this rents at a rate which puts it beyond most veterans.

YET, ON the state of the Union in 1948, we find Mr. Truman saying:

"Within the next decade we must see that every American family has a decent home. As an immediate step we need the long-range housing program which I have recommended on many occasions. This should include financial aids designed to yield more housing at lower prices. It should provide public housing for low-income families, and vigorous development of new techniques to lower the cost of building."

Between "should" and "will," or between "should" and "must," there is a vast gap. That gap represents the division between the executive power and the legislative power—above all, when the powers are divided between the two major parties. That kind of division occurs, on the average, in one out of every three years.

It is easy, of course, to pass the blame back and forth. The President can say that it was impossible to back Wyatt's program since the Republican Congress would never have approved it. The Republicans can pass the knife to the White House.

In the end, however, no amount of fine words can cover up the failures. The noble words may do more harm than good, since they hold out so much promise when everyone knows that performance falls so far short.

Housing is only one example. On inflation, on taxes, on displaced persons, on a half dozen topics, the President's "should" had a baffled and apologetic sound. The President was told he must not antagonize Congress if he expected to get the European Recovery Program adopted. The roars that have come over his relatively mild proposals show that the Republican majority, or some of it, is aching to be antagonized. Yet merely passing the blame or glossing it over does not stop the consequence of failure.

Arab League

A Communication

Editor's Note: The author of this communication spent seven years traveling and studying in the Arab countries. He attended the American University at Beirut, Lebanon, and at Shweyfat College, Lebanon. He also worked for the OWI during the war in Beirut. At present he is a student at the George Washington University School of Foreign Affairs.

NEWSPAPER editorials and magazine articles in many cases have overestimated the real strength of the Arab League, which today is facing a dual dilemma of growing nationalism and dissension from elements whose political stakes are dependent on the complete sovereignty and independence of individual Arab states.

The Arab League was a British maneuver to create the nucleus of a Near Eastern bloc against the Soviet Union, and amazingly enough it derived its major support from ardent Arab nationalists who thought it might serve as a basis toward complete Arab unity.

Egypt, which is regarded as the leading state in the league, is divided sharply on the issue of Arab nationalism and consequently on every sort of Arab binding or cooperation; moreover, Egyptians never have been strong Arab nationalists. On the contrary the Pharaonites, whose slogan is "Egypt for the Egyptians" and who are thoroughly against any change in Egypt's present political structure, constitute a real threat to the Arab movement in Egypt. Another important faction, a group of intellectuals led by Dr. Tah Hussein, is very effective in promoting the revival of western culture in Egypt.

Egypt's position, in spite of its apparent predominance in Arab affairs, is suspected by various progressive elements of Arab nationalists who fear the personal interest of King Farouk and his display of Arabism. Opposing the King's faction is the strong Wafd Party led by Nahas Pasha, one of the most popular figures in Egyptian politics. It has been rumored lately that he and his party favor Arab unity on a republican basis.

THE REAL danger is the ruling class, most of whom are shareholders in British companies for investors in British banks. They oppose British imperialism in response to the cries of the masses and then halt their opposition when the British Colonial Office waves the red scare and threatens the loss of their shares. Sincere Egyptians wanting Arab unity and improvement of the standards of living are to be found among the various groups of students, professors, trade unions, writers and middle class professionals. These are persecuted and imprisoned as advocating principles contrary to the institution of monarchy.

The Arab Leaguers in Egypt are a clique who use the Arab sentiment of growing nationalism for the sake of enlarging Egypt and its domain and promoting their own selfish interests.

IN SYRIA the story is different. Here the spirit of Arab nationalism is the strongest and probably the most sincere. The government officials led by Shukri Kawatly, the President of the republic, are satisfied with the status quo. In this way they can give lip service to ardent nationalists and keep the position of dominance.

The liberal movement in Syria is growing stronger and promoting greater understanding of freedom and democracy. In the latter part of 1945 an incident of great significance will indicate the attitude and trend of their nationalism. At that time several hundred Egyptian writers, students and workers had been in prison and many of their newspapers were closed and censored. In the University of Damascus a group of professors and students sent a letter of protest to the Egyptian government asking the release of prisoners.

The Egyptian government asked its minister in Syria to protest this act as interference (the University of Damascus is a government institution.) The Syrian government dismissed two of the professors but due to the pressure of public opinion, they were reinstated. Dr. Ayad, professor of philosophy in the university, explained that the letter of protest was an act of courtesy extended to colleagues; he added that if a government of the Arab League considered such acts as an interference in internal affairs the League is not promoting its purpose. Syria is still the spearhead of true Arab nationalism.

NOT WHOLEHEARTEDLY satisfied with the Arab League, Iraq looks with suspicion to Egypt as the rival of leadership in the Arab world. There exists, on the other hand, strong animosity between the Hachimites and King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia. Nevertheless Iraq commands great respect among all Arab nationalists. Iraq's policymakers are very pro-British; Nuri el Said is aiming to exploit Iraq's position to form the union of the Fertile Crescent, then an alliance with Turkey, a scheme which British diplomacy has been striving for since 1942. On the other hand strong liberal parties are growing larger. Branding them as Communist, the Iraq government ordered the execution of about 20 of their leaders.

Helping Nuri el Said with his British-inspired plan is the famous British puppet, King Abdulla of Transjordan, who recently effected a treaty with Britain which will make his country a base for British troops. He keeps the people in darkness and suppresses all opposition. A great undercurrent is being felt for a realistic approach to the problem and a new movement is led by intellectuals and various liberal groups in Transjordan.

Abdulla is an opportunist because of his contradictory political opposition to Zionism. If you hear his "speeches" you will think he is a fervent defender of Arab rights in Palestine, but facts contradict his speeches. His Majesty sold a large amount of property and gave many concessions to the Zionists, because this benefited him personally. He is not a firm believer in the Arab League, especially when it comes to the problem of greater Syria.

SAUDI ARABIA, fundamentally speaking, is satisfied with the political status quo of the league. This way it can secure itself against any union movement which the Hashmites might attempt. In 1946, when Prince Faisal visited Lebanon, he supported Lebanese sovereignty. Now the oil concessions have a great deal of influence on Arabia's political future. Thus far there is no sign of a real revival or rise in the standards of living. The King and his entourage dominate the whole situation there. Very few students are sent to Egypt and Lebanon. These few are dazzled with advancement; but they belong usually to the very aristocracy whose fate depends on the confusion of present conditions. King Ibn Saud has sought to disrupt the alliance between Iraq and Transjordan.

Yemen is indifferent about the Arab League, but joins to satisfy the pride of the King. The people are very backward, poor and illiterate. Recently one of the Iman's sons led an uprising which the Iman tried to suppress but in the long run failed. This resulted in bringing a cultural delegation from Lebanon which, under Dr. Tarsisi, is working very hard to create incentive in the Yamonite people, who still are in a feudalistic age and are nationalists only in the klanistic sense.

LEBANON is the most advanced and westernized country in the Near East; the general level of education is high and the standards of living are fair in spite of the existence of feudal lords in the remote parts of the country. The American University and the Jesuit University have contributed much to the high intellectual level of the Lebanese.

The Lebanese feel that they have a mission to the East and to the world. Their mission to the East is to promote education and western ideas and spread the principles of democracy. To the world Lebanon is to serve as the example where East and West can meet and where all religious ideologies can compete with tolerance. It is also the headquarters of the liberal movement in the Arab East.

In the American University Arab nationalism in its modern sense has dominated the minds of the students, while the Jesuits have created the isolationist tendency of lebanon, a movement similar to "Egypt for the Egyptians." Between those two extremes, the predominating tendency is to preserve Lebanon's independence and integrity with full cooperation with the various Arab nations. Lebanon has been very resentful toward efforts encouraged mainly by Britain and her puppets, for creating some sort of greater Syria or Eastern bloc.

Lebanon is a great asset for peace. Recently, in the elections, a trend of reaction has prevailed; a group of feudal lords and big financiers formed an alliance and used the army for intimidation of the people. The elections were full of fraud and the people, resenting such actions, refused to go to the polls. A tremendous effort is being made to change the constitution and extend suffrage to every citizen.

IN THIS period of political transition, Arab nationalism is at its peak. The expression of Arab nationalism has found fertile grounds in Palestine. Palestine was to appear to Arab nationalists as the victim of aggression and infiltration. Despite the advancement which the Jews had contributed to Palestine, and despite the imperialistic implication of economic concessions to foreign countries, these factors in the long run are more detrimental to economic revival. Arab nationalism will be a basic factor in determining the conditions of Palestine.

The general impression about the Arabs is one of a feudalistic society ruled by kings and princes, promoting their own interests and exploiting the people. There may still be some truth in this, but in every Arab state new forces are organizing to emancipate their people from the rule of oligarchy, so they may truly determine their own destiny. The liberal Arabs are an example of a solid, united, progressive front.

The students, intellectuals, workers, small businessmen, farmers and professionals are the backbone of liberalism in the Arab world. Stronger in certain states, such as Lebanon, Syria and Iraq, they are hard workers. The extent to which the progressives maintain unity in the face of reaction will largely determine the future growth or disintergration of the Arab League.

The Gallup Poll

Pressure For Income Tax Cut Coming From Higher Brackets

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 8.—While politicians talk of relieving the income tax burden on the masses, actually most of the pressure for tax reduction is coming from the more well-to-do families. The pressure increases steadily as one goes up the income scale.

This is shown in a coast-to-coast poll of income taxpayers conducted by the Institute. The purpose of the survey was to find out how many people think their present taxes are unfairly high, and in what income levels those people are.

It was found that among families who have to pay less than $50 a year in income taxes fewer than half think the tax they pay is too high. By contrast, nearly three out of every four persons who pay $500 a year or more in taxes complain about the size of their levy.

In terms of numbers, however, the small taxpayers greatly outweigh the large ones. Three fifths of the Nation's taxpayers have a net taxable income of under $2500 a year and pay an average tax amounting to only about $100 a year. In terms of voters at the next election, that group constitutes, of course, the bulk of the taxpaying vote. They show far less tendency to complain about the size of their taxes than the larger taxpayers.

The situation is shown in answers to three questions in the survey. The first asked each person interviewed whether he pays a Federal income tax. The next two questions were then confined to taxpayers only. One asked the respondent to indicate the amount of income tax paid during this last year.

Then the final question was as follows:

"Do you consider the amount of income tax which you have to pay as too high, or about right?"

The vote by size of tax paid is as follows:

Taxpayers Only

Amt. of Tax Paid	Too High	About Right	No Opin.
Under $50 a yr.	48%	42%	10%
$50-149	56	39	5
$150-249	67	28	5
$250-499	70	26	4
$500 & over	71	25	4

One of the first subjects on the agenda of the new Congress is tax revision.

Bill Seeks to Replace Armistice Day in N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Armistice Day, established after World War I, may be replaced by "Remembrance Day" in New York.

A bill introduced in the Legislature today by Republican Senator Pliny Williamson (New York City) would establish the first Monday of August as "Remembrance Day" in honor of those who served in either World War. It would eliminate the November 11 Armistice Day.

Algerian Crash Kills Nine

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Shadow And The Substance

IN THE speech-makings of the last 48 hours, Secretary Marshall represents the substance, and President Truman the shadow. Marshall was substantial, because he was discussing all-too-grim realities with men who know these are realities and mean to do something about them. In President Truman's otherwise admirable performance, there was something shadowy, because he was urging upon an obstinate Congress a course of action which the Congress neither understands nor wishes to pursue.

The time has gone by, however, when the Republicans could be sure that their candidate, no matter how stodgy or unacceptable, would occupy the White House after next November. For those interested in the political future of the United States, President Truman's message on the state of the Union therefore possessed a more than shadowy import. For it told the kind of things he wants. And if he is re-elected, he will be able to transform a good deal of what he wants into laws of the United States.

In all his proposals—for tax-revision and inflation control, welfare legislation, resources conservation, labor policy and social security—Truman has now come clearly down on what may be called the New Deal side. This is the result partly of the President's own inclinations, partly of the competition of Henry A. Wallace and partly of the recent victory of a tiny band—a regular Gideon's army—over the Administration majority. This victory was the turning point.

THE REAL struggle over the way Truman would go occurred last November when he requested Congress to restore controls and rationing in defiance of the almost unanimous opinion of his Cabinet.

On that occasion, he took the advice of the little band, among whom his counsel, Clark Clifford, and the members of the President's Economic Advisory Council are perhaps most conspicuous. In the President's opinion, his decision to take this advice paid off rather handsomely. The same feeling exists among many of the Cabinet members who so strenuously fought the November decision.

Thus there was little opposition within the Administration to the present message, although the row over it would have raised the White House roof six months ago. Even the Treasury, always friendly to business, interposed only the mildest objections to raising the corporate profits taxes. This means, in effect, that the President is at last making his own domestic policy, on moderate New Deal principles, and that his subordinates have the choice of going along—or else. This must not be supposed to imply, however, that the President's moderate New Dealism is of the Roosevelt brand.

THERE ARE two obvious differences. First and least important, he does not call upon the hosts of his supporters to stand at Armageddon and do battle for the Lord. He puts forward what, by present standards, is a rather left-wing program. But he does not now, and will not in the future, denounce the malefactors of great wealth.

Second, and more important, Truman may become personally more and more a New Dealer, but his Administration grows, in other ways, less and less like the New Deal. For two years, the Maritime Commission has had a most un-New Dealish aspect. The same transformation seems likely to occur at the Civil Aeronautics Board, as a result of the distinctly forced retirement of Chairman Landis. The Securities and Exchange Commission appears to be next on the list. And while these lesser instruments of the Government are filled with men friendly to business, the same process is also at work on the higher levels. The President is perfectly sincere in what he says. But what the President's words will mean in terms of actual performance if the President is reelected must inevitably be something a little different.

Truman has, in fact, arrived at a kind of queer governmental compromise which might actually work very well. He proposes New Deal policies. His own party in Congress may hate his proposals, and many of its members do. But if Truman is reelected in November, many of these policies will go onto the statute books. On the other hand, the men to administer the policies are chosen from the opposite camp, so that the method of administration is temperate, to say the least. It is not such a bad recipe for a regime intended to be both middle-of-the-road and reasonably forward-looking.

Flying Discs Reported Anew Over Kentucky and Ohio

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Several areas of Kentucky and adjoining States were excited today over reports of "flying saucers" which led to the death of one National Guard flier and fruitless chases by several other pilots.

National Guard headquarters at Louisville said Capt. Thomas F. Mantell, jr., 25, was killed late yesterday while chasing what was reported as a "flying saucer" near Franklin, Ky.

Two Hopkinsville, Ky., pilots said they chased a flying object which they believed to be a balloon.

Astronomers at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., reported they saw some object in the sky yesterday afternoon which they believed to be a balloon, but the Nashville weather bureau said it knew of no balloons in that vicinity.

In southern Ohio observers reported seeing a flaming red cone near the Army Air Base at Wilmington.

Col. Guy F. Hix, commanding officer at Godman Field, adjoining Fort Knox, said he observed the "flying saucer" for some time. He said three National Guard planes were contacted by radio and instructed to investigate.

Captain Mantell, who flew in the Allied invasion of Normandy, was one of the three investigating pilots. His mother, Mrs. Thomas F. Mantell, sr., said at Louisville she was informed her son flew too high in his pursuit of the object and lost consciousness.

The President's Calling List

Williams U. Head Sees U. S. Keeping A-Bomb

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 8 (AP).—Dr. James P. Baxter, president of Williams College, said today "we can safely assume that no nation is likely to give up a weapon with as great a payoff as the Atomic Bomb."

Speaking at the Navy postgraduate school, Dr. Baxter said the United States should not be bound by saying it will avoid use of the bomb unless another nation uses it first.

Tuck Asked to Act in Fairlington Strike

The Central Labor Union of Alexandria (AFL) yesterday appealed to Governor Tuck of Virginia to try and bring about a settlement of the strike of maintenance workers at Fairlington.

In a telegram, the Central Labor Union asked Governor Tuck to "use your good offices to bring union and management together to bargain or arbitrate matters in dispute."

Unlawful Picketing Charged

The union group declared the "Fairmac Corp. has failed to act on request of Arlington County Board to meet with union in effort to settle strike" and suggested the Governor would have "profound interest in welfare of people living in Arlington, some 14,000 of whom reside at Fairlington."

The strike by Fairlington service employes, who are members of the Building Service Employes Local No. 82 (AFL), has been in progress since December 8.

"Unlawful picketing" charges against Clarence D. Gurewitz, 33, of 1619 R st. nw., a union clerk, will be heard in Arlington County Court at 10 a. m. today. A warrant was sworn out Wednesday by J. B. Howell, rental manager of Fairlington.

Trash Collector Arrested

Virginia State law provides penalties up to $500 and a year in jail for persons who participate in picketing and were not "bona fide" employes of the struck plant before the walkout.

Yesterday Arlington police arrested a nonstriking trash collector and charged him with stealing a blanket and children's clothing from a Fairlington basement.

He was identified by police as James Hoggins, 24, of 919 2d st. se. He will be tried in Arlington County Court this morning. Complaintant was Mrs. L. E. Jones of 3329 S. Wakefield st.

Va. Board Reviews Mental Hospital Plan

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—A master plan for a building program designed to bring Central State Hospital at Petersburg, Va., mental hospital for Negroes, up to a capacity of 4000 patients was reviewed today by the State Hospital Board, which deferred action until February.

The plan was presented by a Richmond architectural firm.

Dr. Joseph E. Barrett, State commissioner of mental hygiene and hospitals, said $800,000 was available for construction work.

Two Firms Seek Permit to Add To Gas Systems

By The Associated Press

Atlantic Seaboard Corp. and Virginia Gas Transmission Corp., both of Charleston, W. Va., asked the Power Commission under an amended application yesterday for authority to extend their natural gas systems at an estimated cost of $20,649,600.

The companies said they need facilities to supply Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh and Baltimore.

The companies proposed to build a 268-mile, 26-inch gas transmission line from Glendenin, W. Va., to Rockville, Md.

In addition, Atlantic would build four 16-inch pipes across the Potomac River near Rockville, a measuring station at the West Virginia-Virginia State line and measuring equipment at Rockville.

Virginia Gas would build two measuring stations, one in Fairfax County, Va., and the other in Virginia near the Maryland border.

The companies propose to complete the work not later than November 1, 1949.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

A bee hasn't much to say, but he always carries his point.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Government Right To U. S. Workers' Inventions Debated

INVENTIONS by Federal workers is the subject of a hot interagency fight. The White House is trying to settle the dispute.

It has been the practice for years for a Federal worker who invents something worthwhile to turn it over to Uncle Sam for his use. But he retains the right to sell it to commercial concerns and to collect royalties from it. Security inventions are, of course, excluded. Army, Navy and Air Forces want this practice continued as an added incentive to its scientific and technical workers.

However, the Justice Department wants the Government given the entire right and interest in all inventions of Government people. It has drafted a proposed order which the President has been asked to sign. Justice has proposed that the employe be given either a cash award, a promotion, or a citation for his extraordinary work. It would have the Interdepartmental Committee on Scientific Research and Development to administer the awards to overhaul the Government's patent policy as it affects its workers.

Military people have raised these fears about the proposed order: (1) that an employe who makes a valuable discovery will resign and sell it commercially rather than to report it to the Government and take a chance on a bonus or promotion, and (2) that it would make the Federal service less attractive to scientists and technicians at a time when the best talent available is needed, and that it would dampen the incentive of those now in Government.

The services told of several of their best scientists who would have accepted much more attractive jobs in industry if their Federal incomes hadn't been increased from commercial royalties.

WORK-WEEK: Several members of the House Appropriations Committee are thinking in terms of a longer work week for Federal workers. A number of agency heads who have appeared in closed committee hearings have been asked how much money could be "saved" if the Federal work week were extended to either 44 or 48 hours for some groups of their employes.

The committee report on budget hearings may take a crack at the 40-hour week, but that's about all. It's extremely doubtful if the committee will try to lengthen the work-week by a rider on an appropriation bill. And if it does, the rider could be killed by the objection of a single House member.

NOTES: Sidney Sherwood is the new executive officer of the Export-Import Bank. He succeeds Malcolm Kerlin who retired after 42 years of outstanding work . . . The Navy rule which prevents a supervisor from being an union officer is under a new attack from the National Federation of Federal Employes . . . The House Civil Service Committee has retained the Trundle Co. of Cleveland, a management engineering firm, to study the city mail delivery system. Its motive is economy.

PAY RAISES: The 30-odd bills in Congress to raise the salaries of Federal workers will get the attention of the GOP leadership. The House GOP steering committee now plans to discuss the bills within the next two weks. It will wait to see the President's views on the subject before it acts. Don't be too hopeful over the result as a general pay raise bill faces strong opposition.

Meantime, Senator Cain (R., Wash.), has introduced a bill to raise Federal salaries by a flat $800 each. The bill has AFL support. Senator Baldwin (R., Conn.), has put in a bill to raise salaries of Postal employes only by $800 each. And a third Senator is drafting a bill to revamp the Classification act to give the Civil Service Commission broad authority to fix salaries. This bill is likely to get Administration indorsement.

GOVERNMENT GIRLS: Don't forget to enter the Mary Worth contest. The winner will be used by the artist of the Mary Worth comic strip as a model when Mary comes to this city in the strip. The winner gets $200 in cash. Eleven runnersup also will get cash prizes. You can't lose so enter the contest today. Details are elsewhere in The Washington Post.

CLERKS: Some 5000 Federal workers who passed the general clerical test can't be certified for permanent jobs. Here's why: they have failed to return to Civil Service the compulsory proof of residence forms.

Civil Service is anxious to certify all the 23,000 who passed the test for permanent assignments as soon as possible. So, get in those forms as soon as possible.

Incidentally, Civil Service has given Veterans and the Army authority to hire CAF-2 clerks who have no status on a temporary basis. It doesn't have enough eligibles to meet the demand for clerks. This means the general clerical test will be repeated and those who failed it will be given another chance to pass it.

COMMERCE: John C. Virden is the chief of its new office of industry cooperation. He will be in charge of Commerce's duties under the anti-inflation act. Virden is a Cleveland manufacturer and a member of the Business Advisory Council.

Empire Probe Wins Right To Subpena Witnesses

Owner's Brother Denounces Inquiry As Kangaroo Court, Attacks Inspection

Formal authority yesterday was given the board of inquiry probing the Empire Building collapse to enable it to subpena witnesses.

The District Commissioners issued an order declaring that the board is their investigating body. Previously the board was acting for Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, and informally for the other Commissioners.

In a letter to the Commissioners yesterday, George Papanicolas, attorney and brother of the Empire Building's owner, expanded an attack he made on the inquiry board Wednesday.

He charged the board had set up a "kangaroo court," and was attempting to "usurp the functions and duties of a court of law." Papanicolas has declared that his brother will not be a party to "unfair and partisan" proceedings.

Would Register Engineers

In another development yesterday, dealing with general construction safeguards, Representative Carl Hinshaw (R., Calif.) introduced a bill to register and regulate professional engineers in the District through a five-member board of engineers appointed by the Commissioners.

Hinshaw, a civil engineer himself, cited the Empire Building disaster which claimed four persons and injured 12 others December 16.

The proposal was received from the District of Columbia Council of Engineering and Architectural Societies, representing 15 groups with more than 1500 members, Representative Hinshaw said.

All 48 States and the Territories have such registration, he said. The bill will go to the House District Committee.

Hearings Postponed

Further hearings in the Empire collapse have been postponed until the board of inquiry, headed by Stewart Beall, can inspect the scene, on the southwest corner of 9th st. and New York ave.

In his letter to the Commissioners, George Papanicolas protested the presence of Building Inspector Robert H. Davis and Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester Gray on the investigating board.

He declared:

"There is a serious and grave question as to whether the collapse of this building is due either in part or wholly to the Building Inspector's Office in (1) issuing and authorizing permits for structural changes in this building some years ago, thus weakening the walls, and "(2) Failure on the part of the District Building Inspector's Office to carefully inspect the recent repairs and remodeling done in this building and determine whether or not these changes were made in accordance with District building regulations."

Full Commission For Race Study Named by Lane

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 8 (AP).—A full 18-member quota on the Maryland Commission to study problems affecting the Negro population has been appointed by Governor Lane and he suggested to the new appointeees that they rename themselves the Commission on Racial Relations.

A 1943 act of legislature created the commission, but it has never had a full body of members.

The Governor's office said a report is being prepared by the commission and will be made public after the new members study it.

Present commission members include Joseph P. Healy of Baltimore, chairman; Judge Joseph C. Mattingly of Leonardtown, resigned, but requested by Lane to continue with the group; Thomas B. McAdams and Walter T. Dixon, both of Baltimore, and David S. Jenkins of Annapolis.

New members include Thomas J. Healy, Baltimore; George D. Hicks, Hagerstown; Dr. D. O. W. Holmes, president of Morgan College; Dr. T. B. Symons, dean of agriculture at the University of Maryland; William J. Muth, vice president of the Baltimore City Council; State Senator Harry T. Phoebus, Princess Anne; Dr. Ulysses G. Bourne, sr., Frederick; Mrs. Vivian G. Alleyne, Joseph Kolodny and Bishop Alexander P. Shaw, all of Baltimore.

Also, Dr. Glenn D. Brown, State Department of Education; Dr. Robert H. Riley, head of the State Health Department; and Mrs. William Fitzgerald of Baltimore, all reappointed.

Missing Girl Search Is Focused on Elkton

Elkton, Md., Jan. 8 (AP).—Police focused their search for 18-year-old Ann Lorenzo on this famed old Gretna Green today after finding the Newton, N. J., college girl's name on a marriage license application.

She has been missing since Tuesday morning from Hood College at Frederick, Md., where she was a freshman.

Police refused to give details of the marriage license application. The 48-hour period that must follow the application elapsed this afternoon without anyone appearing to obtain the license.

Ann is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lorenzo.

Helen Keller Is Paid Tribute By Children of Adams School

The Washington Post

SIGHT UNSEEN—Donna Darrow, 10, of 6931 Georgia ave. nw., partially blind, writes in braille on a braille slate for Miss Helen Keller, noted blind and deaf teacher. Miss Keller, who yesterday visited the John Quincy Adams School, 19th and California sts. nw., where Donna is a student of braille, is seeking aid for Europe's blind

Children at the John Quincy Adams School were told Miss Helen Keller could neither see nor hear, yet they waved and cheered when she left their auditorium yesterday.

It was a tribute to the personality of the woman who is now devoting her energies to raising money for 10,000 Braille slates for Europe's children blinded during the war.

"Study hard," Miss Keller told the children. "You will find it easier to learn the older you grow."

She spoke in a low pitched voice, slowing down with effort the words that seemingly would pour forth. Miss Polly Thomson, her companion-secretary, repeated her words and spelled into Miss Keller's hand the reaction of the children.

The woman, who lost her sight and hearing as an infant and learned to read and talk through long years of patient study, touched with gentle "seeing" hands the faces of the young children in the Braille and hard-of-hearing classes.

To 10-year-old Donna Darrow, 6931 Georgia ave. nw., student of Braille, Miss Keller said:

"Through Braille you will read many wonderful books that will bring you great joy. Reading will make you free and independent, and give you confidence to do other things as well. You will be able to work and earn your daily bread if need be."

Miss Keller also visited Truesdell Elementary School, Burdick Vocational School and Roosevelt High School. Today she will visit Negro schools.

Traffic Law School Opens Here Tonight

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

Washington's first traffic "violators" school opens tonight at 8 p. m. with an expected enrollment of at least 23 "students."

Four of the "students" were selected by Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell in traffic court yesterday. Two were found guilty on speeding charges and two were held guilty on charges of failing to yield right of way.

Sentencing on all four was postponed for one month by Judge Fennell. Severity of penalties will based on the offenders' marks and attendance at traffic school, along with the facts in their particular case. The court lasts three weeks.

Fifteen of the enrollees were selected by the Board of Revocations and Restorations of Operators permits and four were selected by the inspectors in the permit examination section of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Attendance Voluntary

Attendance at the school is entirely voluntary and will in no way affect the disposition of the cases of the violator.

Herman S. Cole, administrative assistant in the Department of Motor Vehicles reported that he had received numerous requests to attend the school by people who had committed no violations. These people will be admitted if there is room.

The District Commissioners approved the school on a six months trial basis. Classes will be held in the Detective Bureau squad room at the Municipal Center on Friday evenings from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. and on Saturday mornings from 10 a. m. till noon.

Subject at tonight's class will deal with the rules and regulations of the motor vehicle laws of the District. Instructors will be Inspector Arthur E. Miller, chief of the Police Department traffic division, Lieut. Marshall R. Gore, traffic division and Sergt. Roy Ostrom of the Accident Investigation Unit.

Class Saturday

Saturday's class for those who are unable to attend Friday night will be conducted by Lieut. Thomas T. Heffernan and Corpl. Joseph B. Osterman, both of the traffic division.

Those to attend are:

Frank D. Collins, 37, 5223 Brite dr., Bethesda, Md., arrested December 30 on a charge of speeding.

Lawrence B. Eisenberg, 23, 4801 48th sa. n... arrested on January 1 for failing ... yield right of way.

Price of Turkey Sold to Checker Depended on Size, He Tells Court

Samuel Silverberg, proprietor of a store at 248 K st. sw., yesterday was exonerated of a charge of selling a turkey at short weight last November 25.

The charge against Silverberg was heard before Judge Walter J. Casey in Municipal Court.

Mrs. Helen Henry, who identified herself as an official buyer for the District Weights and Measures Department, testified she bought a turkey in Silverberg's store November 25 and paid $7.80 for it. She said she understood turkey was selling for 61 cents a pound.

Mrs. Henry and Theodore B. Middleton, an inspector of the Weights and Measures Department, returned to their office where they computed that on the basis of 61 cents a pound, the turkey should weigh 12 pounds and 12 ounces, she said.

However, she testified the bird weighed 11 pounds, 4¾ ounces on their scales.

Silverberg testified he remembered Mrs. Henry's purchase. He said he told her the price for turkeys 16 pounds and over was 61 cents a pound, but was 69 cents a pound for turkeys weighing less than 16 pounds. He said Mrs. Henry wanted a small turkey, so the charge was at 69 cents a pound.

Silverberg's attorney, Henry R. Berger, had Middleton compute on the stand what the price should have been at 69 cents a pound and the figure was within a few pennies of the $7.80.

Judge Casey dismissed the charge.

Citizenship Commission Consultant to Speak

The Charles Carroll Forum, meeting at 8:15 p. m. today in the Mayflower Hotel's Sapphire Room, will hear Dr. Mary Synon, editorial consultant of the Commission on American Citizenship of Catholic University.

Dr. Synon will discuss methods used by the commission in training young people for improved social relationships in the home, school, community and Nation.

Easy Does It, Officials Learn In Chest X-Ray Survey Preview

The Washington Post

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Press and radio representatives yesterday stuck out their chins, hunched their shoulders, and were X-rayed.

Occasion was the press and radio preview of the Nation's most ambitious drive to wipe out tuberculosis, the Washington Chest X-ray Survey. The campaign to X-ray every person over 15 in the District opens officially Monday.

Purpose of yesterday's demonstration at the survey's downtown clinic, 1350 Pennsylvania ave. nw., was to show the puolic how easy it it.

It was as simple as taking off one's coat and vest, said Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator who was among those X-rayed yesterday.

Clerks and technicians did the rest; recording name, age, address, sex, race and telephone number; lining the subject before the screen, and taking the actual X-ray.

In a week or so, those X-rayed yesterday will be notified by mail whether their chests: (1) Showed no signs of tuberculosis; (2) Revealed scars showing that TB once attacked the lungs; or (3) showed shadows of active tuberculosis.

Reports of scars or shadows necessitate a second, and larger X-ray to determine degree of past or present infection. The whole thing is free, even where the larger x-rays are required. And all reports are confidential, with only bare statistics made public.

Two portable units to X-ray employes will operate Monday and Tuesday at Hotel Statler and Jelleff's, Inc., women's wear store. On Wednesday and Thursday, the units will be operated at the Mayflower Hotel and Garfinckel's, specialty store.

The first mobile X-ray unit for public participation begins Monday, 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m., at Connecticut ave. and K st. nw.

Three other mobile units begin neighborhood work on Tuesday for a scheduled two weeks (Tuesdays through Fridays) at three Anacostia points: Pennsylvania and Minnesota aves. se., 61st and Dix sts. ne. and South Capitol st. and Nichols ave. se.

Eight portable units will X-ray Government agencies employes, beginning Monday.

The survey's downtown clinic on Pennsylvania ave. will open Monday to all comers. It will be open from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. several days a week.

The drive's goal is to cover the District and X-ray upward of 600,000 individuals within six months.

Members of the survey's executive committee set the example at yesterday's preview by lining up as first subjects. Shortly after 4 p. m., some 200 nurses of the District's Department of Health were processed to show that it takes only about three minutes from registration to completion of X-ray.

Hearings to Start February 2 With Testimony Briefs Submitted Ahead

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

House and Senate District leaders said yesterday they plan to submit to Congress Monday their bill for Washington home rule and for reorganization of the city government.

The bill will be the subject of hearings starting February 2 before a joint committee composed of the House and Senate District Subcommittee on home rule and reorganiaztion.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), chairman of the House subcommittee which drafted the bill, will intorduce it in the House.

Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.), chairman of the Senate home-rule group, will present it to the Senate.

Dirksen Praises Drafters

These arrangements were made yesterday in a joint meeting of the Senate and House home rule subcommittees. Attending with members of the subcommittees were Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) chairman of the Senate District Committee, and Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) chairman of the House District Committee.

Dirksen voiced warm praise for work put into preparation of the home-rule plan by Auchincloss and his subcommittee and their staff.

The home-rule plan calls for turning Washington's municipal affairs over to an elected city council and a manager appointed by the council. While the local self-government would take over the initiative in city administration and law making, Congress and the President would keep final control by a veto power over major District legislation proposed by the council.

Briefs Must Be Submitted

Representative Auchincloss announced that organizations wishing to testify on the bill in the February hearing should notify the House District Committee.

Senator Ball emphasized that briefs of testimony to be given at the hearings should be submitted in advance. "We want to hold the hearings down as much as we can and avoid duplication of testimony," Ball explained.

Among home-rule subcommittee members who attended yesterday's meeting were Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.), Representative Robert E. Jones, jr. (D., Ala.), and Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.).

With them were Dr. George B. Galloway, staff director, and Clarence M. Pierce, assistant staff director, for the House home-rule group, and Senate District Counsel James R. Kirkland.

State Orders Speedup Of Falls Church Work

The Virginia State Highway Commission has moved to complete work on the long-unfinished stretch of W. Broad st. in Falls Church, Town Manager Roy Dunn announced yesterday.

In response to a complaint from Dunn, the commission promised that if certain road improvements are not completed within 10 days, the State will move in and do the work. The stretch in question has been under construction the last eight months by a private company.

New Entries Received in G-Girl Contest

MARY WORTH'S HEROINES—Winner of The Washington Post's "Miss Government Girl" contest will model for a new character to join the ranks of Artist Ken Ernst's girls in his Mary Worth strip. Awaiting her selection are (from left) Brick Bricker, Junior Jaxon, Pixie Gay and Elissa Lake. (See contest rules and entry blank on Page 14)

Entries in the "Miss Government Girl" contest yesterday included a 33-year-old Department of the Army legal assistant and a 24-year-old draftsman for the United States Coast & Geodetic Survey.

Typical of the girls who work in Federal Government offices in the Washington area, they are Helen Burns Bornefeld of 3822 6th st. S., Arlington, Va., and Jeanne Donovan Davies of 9613 Bristol ave., Silver Spring, Md.

Miss Bornefeld, the legal assistant with the Department of the Army, is a native of Baltimore.

Miss Davies, the draftsman, also serves as social director of the Welfare & Recreation in the United States Coast & Geodetic Survey office. Her entry was accompanied by a note from a fellow worker who said she once lived in Kissimmee, Fla., adding:

"No wonder all the wolves bother her, and that she is a vision of Salome in a bathing suit."

The Washington Post is sponsoring the "Miss Government Girl" contest in its search for a model of a G-Girl to be used in a coming sequence of the Mary Worth comic strip.

First prize in the contest is $200 in cash, second prize is $50 and the next 10 runnersup will each received cash awards of $5.

Finalists will be chosen from their photographs and then this group will be interviewed by Keff Ernst, the artist who draws the Mary Worth strip. Ernst will select the 12 prize winners.

The contest is open to all girls employed in Federal Government offices in Washington or in this immediate vicinity.

An entrant can be a parttime worker or a "floating" Government employe if she is actually on a Federal payroll. There is no age limit and married girls are as acceptable as single ones.

The Washington Post received a number of telephone calls yesterday from Government Girls who requested information about the contest. Typical of the questions and answers were:

Q.—Isn't it really a beauty contest?

A.—No, not in the usual sense. The heroines used by Artist Ernst in the various episodes of his Mary Worth strip vary greatly in type. Any of the thousands of attractive Government girls working here may be the type to click in Ernst's mind as the one he wants for his new heroine.

Q.—May I send in a small snapshot?

A.—Yes, but remember a picture which shows you to your best advantage will be in your favor. Also remember that tinted or colored photographs won't do, that the pictures must have been taken during the past 12 months and that they should not be in frames or behind glass.

Q.—How should the photograph and entry be addressed?

A.—To the Contest Department, The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw., Washington, D. C.

Q.—Can I enter a friend's picture, or must she make her own entry?

Deadline for entries in the "Miss Government Girl" contest is January 28. An entry blank, which can be used if desired, and the rules are published today on the same page with the Mary Worth comic strip.

Students Flee Freak Fires At College

A series of freak fires and dense smoke sent 450 students at Wilson Teachers College to the streets yesterday noon. A bottle of phosphorous sticks which splattered to the floor of a chemistry storeroom caused the exodus.

Although school officials, students, and firemen quickly managed to keep flames from developing into a major blaze, firemen were forced to maintain an all-night vigil at the school to watch for outbreaks of phosporous flames.

The trouble began when a shelf broke in a chemistry storeroom and a bottle of phosphorous sticks fell to the floor.

Robert G. Wilson, a chemistry teacher, and Melvin Sachs, a freshman student, helped bring the fire under control.

Firemen called to the scene removed 6 feet of flooring where the bottle had fallen. They took up the vigil when they found bits of phosphorus tracked into corridors and other rooms bursting into flames.

Girl Scouts to Meet

The annual meeting of the Girl Scout Council of Prince Georges County will be held at 8 at Mount Rainier Christian Church. Mrs. J. Harris Franklin, of the Washington council, will speak. Senior Troops 9, 53 and 14 will participate.

Area News in Brief

Rookie Police Pay Tops U. S. Average

Washington's "rookie" policemen are better paid than the average for the Nation's largest cities, but still are not the highest paid apprentice law enforcement officers.

On the basis of information released by the Public Administration Clearing House in Chicago, rookie police in the Nation's largest cities receive an average of $2684 for the first year, as compared with $2720.95 in Washington.

The national average of annual pay raises is $180, but there is no annual increment on the Washington force. The last general increase was $335 in June 1946.

Los Angeles and San Francisco, Calif., pay their beginning policemen highest salaries of any large cities—$3120 a year. Other high-salaried cities are Milwaukee, New York and Chicago.

New York has the highest maximum salary, $3900 after five years. In Washington, after five years of continuous service a policeman makes $3378. The average maximum salary in 13 typical cities is $3214, according to the Clearing House.

Washington's record on hours does not compare favorably with many other large cities. Here, police work at least 48 hours each week without overtime, or compensating time off. Boston has shortened the workweek from 44 to 40 hours, as did Detroit. Other cities with shorter hours include New York, 45, Los Angeles, 41, and San Francisco, 44.

Police Fellowship Won

Police Motorcycle Sergt. Lee S. Hensley, 38, of the Traffic Division, yesterday was awarded a $650 fellowship at the Traffic Safety School of Northwestern University.

Sergeant Hensley, who lives with his mother at 1140 17th st. ne., will leave Washington February 2. He has been on the force since September 1, 1934.

The fellowship was awarded on a competitive basis after a 7-hour examination.

Arrest on One Minute

Alexandria police arrested a housebreaker early yesterday, one minute after he had taken $152 from Lyle's Pool Parlor, 415 King st., Alexandria.

Officers Lawrence Washington and George May said they saw a man in an alley behind the building about 4 a. m.

Investigating; they found Edward T. Monroe, 38, 730 North Columbus st., with the money, which they said, he admitted taking from the pool hall. . . . . .

Monroe told police he knew the hiding place for the money, a beer case, because a friend had heard the manager tell his deaf helper in a loud voice to put the money in a safe place before locking up.

The friend kept an eye on the helper and tipped off Monroe later, police said. Hearing was set for today in the Alexandria Civil and Police Court.

College in New Building

When classes at Montgomery Junior College, Bethesda, were resumed after Christmas vacation, students found the school's new temporary building complete after a two-month delay. The temporary structure, housing administrative offices and chemistry and biology laboratories was build by the Federal Works Admanistration from Army surplus material.

Dean Hugh G. Price said the school's second semester would begin February 9, with registration taking place February 5 and 6. He said the new freshman class would be limited to 50, with veterans being given preference.

Michelson Wit Marked Party Speech, Harassed Foes Through New Deal Era

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Charles Michelson, who died yesterday at 79, must have learned something unknown to most men while he was an ox-team driver in his youth out in Arizona. Maybe it was then that he learned to harness three such dissimilar creatures as politics, reporting and publicity in one team and make them work.

Though he was nationally known as public relations director for the Democratic Party during its most effulgent years, most of his life was spent as a newspaper reporter. He entered politics and public relations late in life and imbued both with a zest, not common to either As an oratorical entrepreneur with willing Charlie McCarthys at every hand, Michelson was for 14 years the most effective ghost in American public relations history. Although he snorted denials at every opportunity, few in position to observe ever doubted that when a New Deal orator delivered a notable speech, the words were Michelson's.

As one writer put it: "If the man sounded like a politician, the speech was his own; if he sounded like a statesman, Michelson wrote it."

Rarest of Rarities

Rarest of rarities, a good newspaperman who became a good publicity director, Michelson referred to his work as "the dull routine of propaganda." He made it anything but dull.

Writing speeches for New Deal spokesmen was but a minor segment of his role in the Democratic Party. He was the general commanding its forces of propaganda, and that at a time when propaganda was used more generously and with greater effect than at any other time in American political annals.

Under Michelson's direction, Democratic Party propaganda became a consistently successful phenomenon, despite the fact that he rode herd on some of the most erratic, unpredictable, hair-trigger and fundamentally antagonistic politicians ever gathered together under one party banner.

As a tactician, his methods were uniformly those of attack and counterattack. He had the courage to stalk his prey when his employers were ready to scream with apprehension, to accept attack and lie in wait under fire for his adversaries to make the inevitable mistake. When he saw it, he struck with devastating speed and power.

Method Described

His method he once described in reverse English after the presidential campaign of 1940, in which Wendell Willkie was defeated and President Roosevelt won his third term. He felt out Willkie at the opening of the campaign, he wrote, by a series of criticisms of the Republican candidate's speeches.

"Presently we had him and his literary braves belaboring 'Boss' Flynn (Ed Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National Committee) and 'Smearer' Michelson," he went on. "It was as simple as that. In three days we had learned that he was thin-skinned, so we kept the other fellows answering when they should have been attacking."

Michelson would never have been caught by such a maneuver. In the same campaign an incident occurred that he confessed had him "really scared." That was when a Negro policeman was hurt at the Roosevelt campaign train in New York and said White House Secretary Stephen W. Early had attacked him. Early is a Southerner, and the Negro vote was important in New York.

Under Michelson's guiding hand, Democrats remained discreetly silent when scores of them must have been bursting with indignant or placatory forensics. Instead of rushing into print, they waited to see what the opposition would do. The opposition played directly into Michelson's hand.

Worked in Reverse

"Some bright mind in the Republican camp," he said later, "conceived the idea that the flame ought to be fanned, so they came out with a raw and flaming broadside calling on the Negroes to avenge the insult by voting for Willkie. That worked in reverse. The colored voters were more furious at the blatant effort to make the incident a campaign issue than they were at the incident itself. The hurt policeman proclaimed that he would vote for Mr. Roosevelt and the excitement subsided. Those Harlem wards all went Democratic by huge percentages."

Michelson did not say to what extent Negro "fury" at the Republican maneuver was quietly fanned by his own publicity organization. It was one of the secrets of his very great success that he could anticipate political reactions and assist them without showing his hand.

He played the same sort of cat-and-mouse game in the first brave days of the New Deal, when Roosevelt was its unelected candidate and Herbert Hoover was its highly vulnerable target. During the campaign there appeared a rash of "Hoover books," books that painted Hooven as an exploiter of coolie labor and even charged him with trafficking in slaves.

Resisted Pressure

The authors of the books hoped to sell them in great quantities to the Democratic National Committee, and politicians high in the party, scenting victory afar and feeling their oats, were insistent that they be used for all they were worth. Michelson resisted this pressure and said "wait." Silence ensued and a war of nerves, under which the Republicans broke first.

Over the protest of James A. West, Republican publicity man, a high Republican politician issued a statement that the Democrats were secretly promoting the books. In the controversy that followed, the Hoover books received an amount of publicity and achieved a volume of sales that would never have resulted from outright Democratic promotion.

A master of innuendo and as thoroughly familiar with public thought processes as with his own, Michelson was overwhelming in attack and active on the defense. His was the offensive defensive, and he carried it out with an effectiveness stemming from his years of newspaper work.

There was the time in 1934, for instance, when abrupt cancellation of airmail contracts was followed by the disastrous attempt of the Army Air Corps to fly the mail routes. It became necessary for the administration to pull in its horns, admit defeat and turn the routes back to the air lines.

Too Pat for Coincidence

On March 10, 1934, the Administration publicly announced its retreat. But on the same day the Justice Department made public its decision to try former Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and other tycoons on income-tax charges. The two stories shared prominence next morning in the country's newspapers, a result altogether too pat, with Michelson in the driver's seat, to have been mere coincidence.

Having written speeches at one time or another for virtually every big name in the early New Deal, Michelson was in position to make it hot for bolters, and he invariably did.

No sooner would a former New Dealer loose a blast at his former political bedfellows than Michelson would retaliate with a quotation or two from the renegade's utterances during the milk-and-honey days. Michelson knew precisely where to look and what to look for, and invariably he came up with damnation out of his victim's own mouth.

Already 60 when he took over the job of managing Democratic publicity in 1929, Charley Michelson brought to his work a political astuteness acquired and polished in 40 years of rubbing elbows with politics as a newspaper reporter. Fortunately for himself and for the Democratic Party, he was given carte blanche in his field, and he managed Democratic propaganda without interference. It was a policy that paid in the negotiable coin of political success.

Entered in Dark Days

Michelson's appointment came during the darkest days of Democratic fortunes, when the party was staggering under its resounding 1928 defeat by Hoover and had on its hands a $600,000 campaign debt. Jouett Shouse, general director, and John J. Raskob, financial backer, were in the market for a savior. James A. Farley, later to become Democratic chairman, sold them Michelson.

Michelson moved into Democratic headquarters, rolled up his sleeves, hung a cigarette from his lower lip, ran his hands through his wiry shock of iron-gray hair and went to work. Suddenly Democratic politicians became witty, caustic and epigrammatic in their speeches and radio and press comments. The depression then smothering the country became the "Hoover panic." Biting phrases rolled from the tongues of Eastern "liberal" and Southern "conservative," all remarkably to the same point regardless of the speaker's background.

Soon Republicans were wailing under Michelson's lash. They complained that he had inaugurated a deliberate "smear Hoover campaign" and demanded that the "great rival party" get rid of him. Then and through the years to follow they came to fear Michelson more than any other single individual in the Democratic Party. They descended to accusing him of writing the speeches he actually was writing, and that charge became fuel for the endless hotfoot Michelson was applying to them.

In 1932 he took to the radio himself and, in a speech that delighted everyone except Republicans, inferentially denied the ghost role imputed to him. It was utterly impossible, he said, for him to have the knowledge of constitutional law that Senator Tom Walsh had, to be blessed with Cordell Hull's understanding of the tariff, to enjoy Key Pittman's close acquaintance with the silver problem or to be gifted with Pat Harrison's "inimitable humor and sarcasm." Then he returned to his office and ground out more speeches for Democratic politicians, dictating them direct to a typewriter manned by his assistant, Bill Janson.

Weekly Column Begun

It was about this time also that Michelson launched a column for weekly newspapers called "Dispelling the Fog." For its sturdy writing, as well as for the information it contained, this column was adopted by many dailies as a weekly feature.

Charles Michelson was born April 18, 1868, at Virginia City, Nev., 17 years after the birth of his brother, the late Prof. A. A. Michelson, a Nobel Prize winner for physics.

The Michelson family had only recently moved to the United States from Prussia. After living for a time in San Francisco, they moved on to Virginia City, then at the height of its silver mining boom. Charley grew up there and ran away from school at 13, went to Arizona and there became successively a miner, sheepherder and driver of a 40-ox wagon team.

Writing home from Arizona, his native literary style caught the fancy of his brother-in-law, owner of the Virginia City Chronicle, who offered him a job as a reporter. Charley accepted and soon after, in the late 80's, was offered a job at $7 a week on the San Francisco Post. He remained there briefly, transferring to the San Francisco Examiner, where William Randolph Hearst had recently launched his own journalistic career. Michelson stayed with Hearst through most of the next 40 years.

Became Sunday Editor

Eventually becoming Sunday editor of the Examiner, he was deeply offended when another man was promoted over his head, and resigned to go with the San Francisco Call. On that paper he distinguished himself by obtaining an interview with Collis P. Huntington, railroad pioneer who was notoriously impervious to interviews. This feat so impressed Hearst, who had gone to New York to found the Journal, that he sent for Michelson.

At that time Hearst was promoting war with Spain, and in 1895 he sent Michelson to Cuba. With characteristic energy Michelson got through the Spanish lines and reported the details of a massacre near Guantanamo and on his return to Havana was thrown into a dungeon at Morro Castle. After 10 days he was released.

Now a favorite with Hearst, Michelson was shunted about the Caribbean in quest of trouble so erratically that he finally managed to cover only the skirmish that preceded the fall of Puerto Rico. After the war, Hearst returned his star reporter to New York and used him there and in Chicago until his acid pen earned him a berth as editorial writer and then as a managing editor. He remained at this work until 1913, when he began writing scenarios for the old Essany company.

When Michelson refused to follow the movies to California, Hearst sent him to Washington, where he eventually left his association of so many years to join the Washington staff of the New York World.

Reputation Established

When he was finally lured away from newspaper work by a $25,000 salary, he had earned a reputation for vitriolic writing and for political sagacity even among the hardened corps of Washington correspondents.

Michelson resigned his post as public relations director of the Democratic National Committee early in 1943, but continued to act in an "advisory" capacity. In April of the same year, it was revealed that he was still on the Democratic payroll, although not actively directing Democratic publicity.

Though he announced upon retirement that he intended to "loaf," Michelson soon produced a book, which he called "The Ghost Talks," containing much material unflattering to his former colleagues, including President Roosevelt himself.

The last years of his life were spent quietly in Washington, almost too quietly for one who had shouted as loudly from as many throats as Michelson had done in his most productive time.

Strike Aggravates Fuel Oil Shortage

New crisis adds to already desperate situation

The battle to beat the fuel oil emergency, being fought by government and industry alike, has been dealt a body blow by a strike in our Texas City Refinery.

This refinery is a big producer. Among other vital oil products, it makes millions of gallons of fuel oil. Enough to heat hundreds of thousands of homes daily, in addition to hundreds of schools and hospitals.

Subtract this production from the total gallonage the Eastern Seaboard is counting on to squeeze through the winter...and you imperil the health and comfort of many thousands of men, women and children in thousands of homes. Hospitals, schools and vital industries will also be seriously affected.

As storage tanks run dry, our customers have nowhere to turn for their needs. Other companies, desperately trying to supply their own customers, can't help them, since there already exists an estimated 15% shortage in home heating oils in the East

Here are the plain facts:

1. The fuel oil supply of the American Oil Company is dependent on the continued operation of the refinery at Texas City, Texas, owned and operated by an affiliated company, Pan American Refining Corporation.

2. Our Texas City Refinery was closed by a strike called New Year's Day by the CIO Oil Workers Union. As a result 2½ million gallons of fuel oil per day is being denied the East Coast.

3. The Union refuses to call the men back to work, although the only difference is the wage issue. The Company has offered a higher wage settlement than any other major oil company, and higher than the settlement made recently by the same Union with other major refineries.

4. A Company offer that the men come back to work on a short-term basis to produce critical fuel oil was rejected by the Union, even though the wage rate during the short term would be the high rate referred to above.

Each day this strike continues, a very serious situation is further aggravated. The American Oil Company is continuing its efforts to have the refinery back in operation at the earliest possible date. Unless the Union recognizes its responsibility to the public, elects not to capitalize on the emergency and returns to work, this Company will not be able to contribute its large share of fuel oil to this and many other communities.

If the strike is allowed to continue, an already very serious situation could assume calamitous proportions for many thousands of people.

We have a responsibility to the public—and believe you should know the facts.

Scott to Head Army in Alaska

Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Scott will become commanding general of the Army in Alaska next month.

The Army Department said yesterday Scott's appointment completes a unified command system for the Alaska area. The over-all chief is Lieut. Gen. Nathan F. Twining with Maj. Gen. Joseph H. Atkinson the air commander and Rear Admiral F. A. Daubin the sea commander.

Scott's name recently was submitted to the Senate by President Truman for promotion to the rank of major general.

THE NEW LINE. After eons of listening to standard nitery funny men, the line of John Sebastian at the Statler comes as manna Thermidor. Offhand, you'd guess his material was written by Saroyan and James Joyce with Salvador Dali kibitzing. It's a goulash of sentences hanging in the air, disjointed hyperboles, elliptical misstatements, a stream-of-consciousness jumping the tracks—all delivered with an air of wistful frustration . . . It took the Statler audience about 10 minutes to get the hang of Sebastian. After that they belonged to him, were ready to gurgle with joy if he cocked an eyebrow, muttered, "If ——" . . . In all this, we've neglected to mention that Sebastian is billed as a "harmonica virtuoso." If that means he's a whale of a harmonica player, the billing's correct. But he's a lot more than that.

Rita
At the Old New Orleans

Rodolfo Cornejo expected to leave Cafe Caprice by this time. But his contract has been extended through February. Too many customers voted for continued Cornejo piano-ing.

ALL FANTASY is the current Lotus show. The Holiday Dancers do a "fantasy in feathers" (white ostrich), also go completely Mardi Gras in their first number . . . There's a delightful juggler who remarks, apropos of nothing, "I don't have to do this for a living. I could starve." . . . Non-Hindu Marian Lawrence does Hindu dances with two authentic and beauteous Hindu lads wearing bright skirts, earrings and caste marks. Ah, India!

THE VOICE CARESSING. They loved her in Athens. Ditto for Cairo, Istanbul and Port Said. Ditto for Washington. Her softly tropical voice reaches out and chucks you under the chin, pats you on the head. She's bewildering, dreamlike in such things as "Besame Mucho" and "J'Attendrai." Perhaps we'd better tell who this wonderful person is. She's Rita Dimitriou, the Old New Orleans' new Greek singer, already a top favorite of the Diplomatic Corps. Here's a secret about Rita. With all her sweetness, she's a lemon juice addict! While we sat beside her, Rita put lemon juice on her shrimp cocktail, in her soup, on her chicken, drank lemon juice and sugar.

Jerry Rodis' band will not leave the Cairo after all. They were all set to pop off one day. The status quo was restored next day.

THE LONG WAY HOME. At Olmsted's recently were Howard Johnson (no relative of the roadside restaurant man) and his pretty wife. Both of Danish extraction, the Johnsons went to visit Copenhagen relatives a year ago. They decided to save money on returning State-side, by shipping as cook and stewardess on a ship supposedly bound to New York. But the boat went to China, then sailed for San Francisco. The Johnsons were rather fatigued when they arrived on the West Coast. But they'd seen the world.

DINNER TIME BEST BETS. You can get your lobster broiled Boston style at the Purple Iris Inn . . . The egg roll at Ruby Foo's is so good that patrons automatically order it as an appetizer. For a change they should try Yok Yon—barbecued meat balls in pungent sauce with pineapple . . . O'Donnell's is downtown headquarters for seafood and there's nothing finer in seafood than their crab flakes Norfolk style . . . Along with your crisp fried chicken at Brook Farm you're likely to be served some genuine home-made watermelon pickle . . . One, two and three star generals who've seen Pacific service are always dropping into the Good Earth for authentic Oriental dinners. They often choose the Cantonese chow mein—it's the glorified kind made with soft noodles . . . The Neptune Room makes all its own pastries and their original-minded chef is always turning out new kinds of pies—always delish . . . The Uptown on Connecticut ave. rolls its own pastries, too, including nice, old-fashioned fruit shortcakes . . . For spicy ravioli, steaming spaghetti, big golden pizzas—step into Ciro's.

Don Mackin, the "singing headline analyst" of the Rainbow Room, is the new pater of a pretty and pink little daughter. It happened that evening when he seemed just a shade edgy.

WHEN KNIGHT MEETS KNIGHT. After Bob Knight of the Lounge Riviera talked about Evelyn Knight (no relation) over the radio, he got a terrific bang when her mother called him up. He's hoping that the lady will join him at the mike some day, tell about Eve as a little girl, her start at the King Cole Room, perhaps bring along Eve's son, Little Andy Knight, jr., who lives with his grandma in Arlington.

HERE'S WHY YOU SHOULD USE 15% LESS HEATING OIL THIS WINTER

PRINTED IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST
BY STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW JERSEY

The heating oil supply situation is critical. A Petroleum Industry Committee appointed by U. S. Senator C. W. Tobey of New Hampshire recently reported that the need for heating oil may exceed the supply by as much as 15% this winter. This means you may get up to 15% less oil than you would normally use during January, February and March.

There are several reasons for this situation:

1. So far this season the weather on the Atlantic Seaboard has been an average of approximately 25% colder than last year.
2. There has been a 22% increase in the number of heating oil users.
3. Total demand for all petroleum products today exceeds even the peak war year by 8.3%.
4. Transportation by rail, truck and tanker is insufficient.
5. Despite an outstanding production record by the steel industry, record peacetime demands have resulted in hampering expansion of petroleum industry producing, refining and distributing facilities.

While oil industry production is at the highest level in history, and every effort is being made to get heating oil distributed as fast and as fairly as possible, every homeowner must face this fact: THE MOST IMPORTANT THING YOU CAN DO TO SAVE YOURSELF AND OTHER FUEL OIL USERS FROM REAL HARDSHIP IS TO REDUCE OIL CONSUMPTION AT LEAST 15% DURING THE NEXT THREE MONTHS — JANUARY, FEBRUARY and MARCH. This can be done through the full and unselfish cooperation of every heating oil user—and the means to do it are listed in the panel below. These are simply conservation steps. Followed by everybody, they can meet this emergency and see every home through the winter without serious discomfort.

OIL USERS: Here's What you can do to save your 15%

1. Keep daytime house temperature at 68°. Set thermostat down to 60° or lower at night.
2. Set thermostat at 60° or lower when away from home.
3. Turn off heat in unused rooms, sunporches and garages.
4. Close bedroom doors at night to avoid cooling the rest of the house.
5. Install storm doors and windows, and use adequate weatherstripping.
6. Keep vents and fireplace flues closed when not in use.
7. Turn off heat and close doors when airing rooms.
8. Use your fireplace whenever possible.
9. Consider immediate insulation for your house.
10. Send for our helpful, FREE BOOKLET, "20 Ways To Save Money On Home Heating"—yours for the asking. Write Mr. C. A. Newland, St. Paul Pl. & Franklin St., Baltimore 3, Md.

You won't experience any real discomfort or hardship in following these suggestions—and they can make the difference between some heat for all or no heat for many.

Capitol's Film Maligns Britain

By Richard L. Coe

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER'S England, like Cecil B. DeMille's history, is considerably more so than the real thing. When Culver City depicts the ancient isles, life becomes British to the ultimate bicuspid.

The latest piece of Britain to come from the sprawling studio is "If Winter Comes," an excessively dreary item at the Capitol. Walter Pidgeon, Deborah Kerr and Angela Lansbury are stars of this new version of the A. S. M. Hutchinson novel.

"If Winter Comes" was an immensely popular triangle romance which concerned Britain in pre-World War I and was first made as a film in 1923. This new version moves the period up to 1939 and the recent war years; but the plot motivations apparently remain the same. People are made to behave in completely outdated fashion, and no matter what you may think of England, it certainly wasn't as foolish as this picture suggests during the past decade.

The story concerns a fine, respectable man who writes school textbooks for a stuffy firm. Apparently jilted by Nona, who has married a man with money, he's the placid, quietly miserable husband of Mabel, a boring female but a good housekeeper. When Nona comes back and confesses it's Mark she really loves, he insists that their course be honorable. He does, however, befriend a lass of the village whose pregnancy leads his wife to imagine sordid thoughts. When she sues for divorce, the waif commits suicide. By this time poor Mark is pretty well down in the world and even the progressive newspaper which prints his socialist-sounding editorials can't afford the breath of such scandal. Love, finally, comes his way.

Why This Script?

This is all such nonsense and such a phony picture of the England it presumes to depict, that one marvels at the lack of imagination which prompts so powerful a studio to resurrect so dated a story. Surely something better than this could have been provided the very real talents of its costars.

The details of Metro's England are all there: dropped haitches, worshipful servants, noble masters, the stuffy firm, the village pub, the small village, the gossips, the invasion of Poland and its effect on the people.

To lend conviction, the British colony of Culver City is on hand for most of the roles—though the accents are all different and some, certainly, American. Dame May Whitty does her deathbed scene; Reginald Owen provides one of his endlessly varied facial makeups to become a stuffy publisher; Hugh French, once of musical comedy, plays a worthless husband, and Binnie Barnes, of all people, turns up as a village gossip who must have settled, one presumes, only recently in England.

THE CAPITOL'S stage show is many cuts above normal and a very good stage show, at that.

There's a particularly outstanding gymnast from Europe, the Great Barton, whose most unimportant trick involves standing on his index finger. This neat trick he follows up with crescendoing effect. Of its kind, Barton boasts both a novel act and tricks which make you practically shout out to him—"Don't! Oh, please, don't try THAT!"

Headliner is the familiar Dave Apollon, but this time the little guy with the professional guitar and accent has a new act. He has given his Filipinos, he says, their independence, and has a blonde pianist in Laverne Gustafson and a blonde harpist in Lois Bannerman. They make with the classics.

Walter and Jean Brown, an attractive brother-sister team, open the bill with dances and Ray and Nardo manage the near-impossible by giving impersonations that seem fresh and funny.

The reliable Kay DeWitt sings Friml ballads with the Kaufman band to bring up the curtain.

MARGARET TRUMAN was at "Carousel" Wednesday night. Backstage the cast took advantage of her presence to kid Singer William Ferguson, who had told them all some time back that he'd gone to school in Kansas City with Margaret. "Now's your chance to make good," they teased him. "Let's see if you really did go to school with the President's daughter." Bill didn't have to do a thing. Soon as the performance was over, Margaret was backstage, holding out her arms and happily shouting, "Billy!".

TONIGHT: Erika Thimey and the Dance Theater Group will give a dance lecture-demonstration in the auditorium of the Corcoran Gallery of Art at 8:30. Produced for students of the gallery, the performance will be open free to the public.

"IF WINTER COMES." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release produced by Pandro S. Berman. Screen play by Marguerite Roberts and Arthur Wimperis from the novel A. S. M. Hutchinson. Music by Herbert Stothart. At the Capitol.

Jon Hall's Fortunately Taciturn

Robin Hood Yarn at the Met Turns to Farce, but Too Late

By Leo Brady

Practically the only smart move Columbia Pictures made in filming "Prince of Thieves," now at the Metropolitan, is to be found in the frugal limitation it placed upon the dialogue assigned to Jon Hall, who plays Robin Hood.

This necessitated, of course, putting lines in the mouths of the rest of the cast, which turns out not to be a good idea, either; they are without exception actors who can be led to dialogue but not made to think.

"Prince of Thieves" is credited to Alexander Dumas, one of the movies' most popular sources, and is presumably the prolific old Frenchman's contribution to stories about Robin of the Wood, but it's indistinguishable from any fourth-rate, tasteless, unimaginative cops-and-robbers dish.

Maid Marian is given a title and a brother who is in love, enigmatically, with a doll-chinned blonde named Christobel who would have been a lot better off if she had been walling for her demon lover.

The opposition consists of three fat-headed noblemen who hire imbeciles to guard their castle and are no match at all for Robin Hood and the two divisions of bowmen who spring out of the bushes periodically.

The film follows a curious pattern. It appears to be treating its materials seriously, if outrageously, until a point when Adele Jergens, watching her father struggle over an intercepted scroll, says: "Thank goodness, father can't read." Since this brings an unintended laugh, the producers abandon their original purpose, focus their camera on a serving-maid who is supposed to be interestingly unkempt, and make an abashed attempt to pretend they were kidding all the time.

But there isn't a lick of sincerity or a promise of entertainment throughout. The dialogue is a hybrid mixture of modern idiom and a limping approximation of Thomas Maloy. The whole thing has about as much historical sense as Alfred Lord Tennyson and absolutely none of his ear for language.

In addition to Hall, others around are Patricia Morrison, who does her best to look dignified; Alan Mowbray, who tries hard with Friar Tuck; Michael Duane, Adele Jergens and H. B. Warner, who speaks a line convincingly.

Why doesn't somebody revive "The Prisoner of Zenda" again?

"PRINCE OF THIEVES." Columbia release produced by Sam Katzman. Adapted from a novel of Alexandria Dumas by Charles H. Schneer. Screen play by Maurice Tombragel. Directed by Howard Bretherton. Cinecolor supervised by Gar Gilbert. At the Metropolitan.

Johns Opposes Montgomery Charter Plan

Brooke Johns, president of the Montgomery County commissioners, yesterday came out in opposition to the proposed charter form of government which will be voted on in the county this fall.

Johns said he based his opposition on the "excellent record" of the Republican administration during the past year."

"Why bet on another horse if you've got a winner?" he asked.

"We are making every effort to bring good, clean, honest government to Montgomery County," Johns continued, "and the record of the past year speaks for itself."

"I am not attacking the charter," Johns emphasized, adding he believed there were "some good things" included in the proposal.

"I am merely stating emphatically that our present form of government and the two-party system have made this country great and we should maintain a status quo." Johns said he was not prepared to be more specific in his objections at present.

"If the people of Montgomery County want more home rule," he declared, "they should work toward a change of administration in the State government. If we had a Republican administration at Annapolis, we in Montgomery County could get anything we want."

Under the proposed charter, a seven-man "council" instead of the present five-man board of county commissioners would be empowered to enact major legislation without first seeking authority from the State Legislature as is now required.

Informed of Johns' statements, Col. Norman B. Ames, president of the Montgomery County Charter Committee, commented: "We're not surprised and we're not too depressed."

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—Frank Smith, 61-year-old Chesapeake & Ohio car inspector from Roanoke, Va., lost both feet early today when he was run over by freight cars in the yards here, a rail official said.

PSC Averts Fare Boost on Technicality

By The Associated Press

Counsel for Prince Georges County opponents of a Capital Transit Co. proposal for a rate boost on Maryland operations asked the Public Service Commission at Baltimore yesterday to dismiss the case—and completing the surprise, the utility attorneys assented.

The commission promptly overruled the motion, preventing what would in effect have been an immediate company triumph through a somewhat involved legal technicality. Had the motion been granted, utility attorneys said, the proposed 5-cent zone cash fare would have become automatically effective.

The motion was made by Gregory Hankin, attorney for a group of Prince Georges County residents and former member of the District of Columbia's Public Utilities Commission.

In joining Hankin's motion, Daryl Myse, utility attorney, pointed out that Hankin apparently believed dismissal at this time would mean refusal of the company's tariff proposal, whereas the opposite was true.

Hankin contended the rate boost should be denied because the company had given no evidence its present rates—in Prince Georges and Montgomery County—were unfair or unreasonable.

The utility originally filed the proposed new rates with the PSC. It also asked that the boost—estimated at some $450,000 annually—be made effective before expiration of the customary 30-day limit.

The commission suspended the tariff until April 8, meantime ordering an "investigation." If it had not done this, the new rates would have gone into effect after 30 days.

As PSC Chairman Charles Bosley declared in overruling the motion, it is this investigation which is now under way and not the company's "case" or "petition" for a rate increase.

The session will reconvene this morning.

PSC Studies Request To Drop Beltsville Line

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (AP).—The Capital Transit Co.'s request for authority to abandon its Beltsville-Branchville shuttle line, which it said is persistently unprofitable, was taken under advisement by the Maryland Public Service Commission today.

The hearing, which lasted 2½ days, closed with Louis B. Arnold, attorney for opponents of abandonment, asserting, "we dispute and doubt the accuracy of figures submitted in reflecting the revenue derived from that operation."

F. G. Awalt, attorney for the transit firm, said the company would inaugurate bus service over part of the way, from the Branchville turnabout out to Hollywood road if authorities put a Branchville to Hollywood road into suitable condition.

Prince Georges County residents appeared to oppose the transit proposal.

But commission officials indicated it may consider abandonment along with Capital Transit's request for increased fares on all its lines in the Maryland suburbs contiguous to the Nation's Capital.

Nation Magazine Is Banned From Newark Schools

Newark, N. J., Jan. 8 (NYHT).—Dr. John S. Harron, superintendent of schools, said today he had banned the magazine, The Nation, from Newark schools and had canceled the subscriptions of the four high schools.

Also banned was Soviet Russia Today, a publication sent free and unsolicited to the high schools.

The reason given by Dr. Herron for banning The Nation was that it had published in November three "virulent anti-Catholic articles attacking the fundamental religious principles of the Catholic Church in the areas of marriage, birth control and the family."

The other magazine was banned, he explained, because it contained "direct attacks on everything American, including former Secretary of State Byrnes and General MacArthur, and praised Molotov policies."

What's a Punter?

Our Haight Almost Thrown for a Loss

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

J. G. (JACK) BRIDGES and his darned education always did send me to the dictionary

He is the Press Attache at the Australian Embassy and my favorite source of information on horse racing Down Under. He's kept me posted on the doings of the Kangaroo Country steeds from ill-fated Winooka down to Shannon, the invader who may run away with the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap, come February.

Haight

Jack, who is a turf authority on three continents (he's up on the sport in England, too), writes me often and generally uses a confusing word or two that makes me Funk & Wagnalls bound. Sometimes I catch him slinging home country slang but, as a rule, he is strictly on the grammatical beam.

For instance, I always thought a "punter" was a fellow who kicks a football around, but it also means "A person who bets against a bookmaker or against a gambling house"—even as you and I. (Don't worry fellows I'm not going to publish any list of speculators on the horse market.)

Friend Bridges' letters always are interesting and many a trick racing slant, for which I have taken credit, really was original with him.

His latest communication contains "——a little racing story, just in case you run short of material sometime. It happens to be true."

HERE 'TIS:

During the war years the Federal Government of Australia imposed a raceless Saturday once a month (there was no mid-week racing in Australia during the war). To many big bettors and bookmakers, raceless Saturday became Gloomy Saturday. They just didn't know what to do with themselves. They got into the habit of repairing to the Sports Clubs on Saturday afternoons, and there they would indulge their betting craze as far as one-armed bandits and a pack of cards would permit.

Of course they kept the bartenders very busy on Raceless Saturdays and the result was that about the time the last race would have been run had there been races on those Raceless Saturdays, the big punters and their bookmaker friends were in a state of unusual exhilaration.

Late one Saturday afternoon, one of a party of racing men suggested that they should leave the club and go along the road to see a news reel.

As they staggered into the theater, it was noticed that the film being shown was of a horse race. It was a hurdle event being run in New York. In the field was a gray horse. This fact was duly noted by the group as they stumbled into their seats in the semidarkness. One bookmaker in the party inquired: "Anybody want to back the gray?" A punter friend replied in the affirmative and was offered odds of 5 to 1. Whereupon he snapped up £500 to £100 (equivalent to $2000 to $400).

The bookmaker (Joe is his name and I know him well), said: "You can have it again if you like." The punter promptly accepted the offer. Then they turned their eyes to the screen, and there was the gray sailing out in front with a 10-length lead. As the field turned into the stretch, the gray was still a mile out in front and the bookmaker whispered: "You can have an even five hundred." To this the punter replied: "I will have it all right."

The gray approached the last jump with a very comfortable lead, but he crashed into it and toppled over, whereupon the punter cried, with deep pathos in his voice: "Good Heavens! He did the same thing last week."

The punter had seen the same film at a theater during the previous week and what happened to his memory goodness only knows. The curse of drink! But he paid up (as any good punter will) to the tune of £700 ($2800).

That's Brother Bridges' story.

Come to think of it "punter" in football and "punter" in betting have something in common—one kicks around and the other gets kicked around.

Joey Maxim 9-5 Favorite Tonight Over Tandberg

By Jack Cuddy

New York, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Joey Maxim, Cleveland "Cutie," was favored at 9-5 today to spoil the American debut of Olle Tandberg, Sweden's heavyweight contender, in their international 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Maxim was favored despite the fact that he will be spotting the tall, fair-skinned Swede about 27 pounds. The Cleveland Italian expected to scale about 180; Tandberg, about 207.

Although Tandberg amazed the boxing world last July by winning a 10-round decision over American Joe Baksi at Stockholm, he has not been impressive in training at Greenwood Lake, N. Y. He appeared so amateurish in his sparring sessions that the betting price lengthened over the weekend from even money to 9-5 in favor of his smaller opponent.

Ole Is No Slugger

Tandberg, 29, has had only 22 professional fights. He won 18, lost three and was held to one draw. Nine of his victories were knockouts, although he is regarded as a light puncher. He won the European heavyweight championship in May, 1943, by beating Karl Sys of Belgium; but he lost the crown back to Sys six months later. Bruce Woodcock of England, current European champ, has resisted Tandberg's efforts to lure him into a title defense.

In the wake of Tandberg's poor showing in training, it was only natural that Maxim should be made a definite favorite. Maxim, one of the smartest boxers in any division, has been fighting as a professional more than seven years during which he had more than 100 pro scraps. Since his discharge from the Army, he has won 21 of 24 bouts. He lost one to John Thomas of New York and two to Jersey Joe Walcott. However, in another bout with Walcott, Maxim won the decision. He is five years younger than Tandberg.

16,000 Expected

Maxim is managed by Jack Kearns, who previously piloted Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker. Kearns has schooled him in ring trickery to make up for Joey's lack of punch. Maxim is one of the most dangerous opponents Tandberg could have selected for his first American fight.

A crowd of 16,000 and a gate of $70,000 were expected.

Hoyas Snap Back to Down Terps, 52-40; Joe Louis Signs, but Walcott Holds Out

Jersey Joe Still Demands 30% For Return Go

By Whitney Martin

New York, Jan. 8 (AP).—If Jersey Joe Walcott wants another shot at Joe Louis' heavyweight boxing championship, he'll have to agree to terms set down by the Twentieth Century Sporting Club.

This was assured today when Acting Promoter Sol Strauss signed the champion to meet Walcott or "any other fighter named by the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, and approved by Louis," in a title bout next June.

The site was not designated, but it was presumed it would be the Yankee Stadium, with the probable date about June 23.

According to the agreement, Louis will receive 40 per cent of the net of all receipts, including television, radio and motion picture rights.

The champion has said that he prefers Walcott for his opponent in what he insists will be his last fight. But Jersey Joe's demand that he receive 30 per cent of the proceeds has held up negotiations.

Other Cities Sought Bout

In their previous meeting, last December 5, Louis won a split decision after being knocked down twice and severely battered. Referee Ruby Goldstein voted for Walcott, but the two judges gave the nod to Louis, the verdict being highly unpopular in some quarters.

Today's signing culminated long conferences held Tuesday and Wednesday between Strauss and the champion and his representatives. Reports that promoters in other cities, particularly in Philadelphia, where Herman Taylor was reported bidding for Louis' services, apparently forced the action of the Twentieth Century in sewing up the next title bout.

Mike Jacobs, the ailing promoter, talked to Louis on the telephone from Miami and is believed to have influenced the champion in his decision. Louis put in a call to Jacobs after the signing today to say "hello" and inform him of his action.

Walcott Balks at Terms

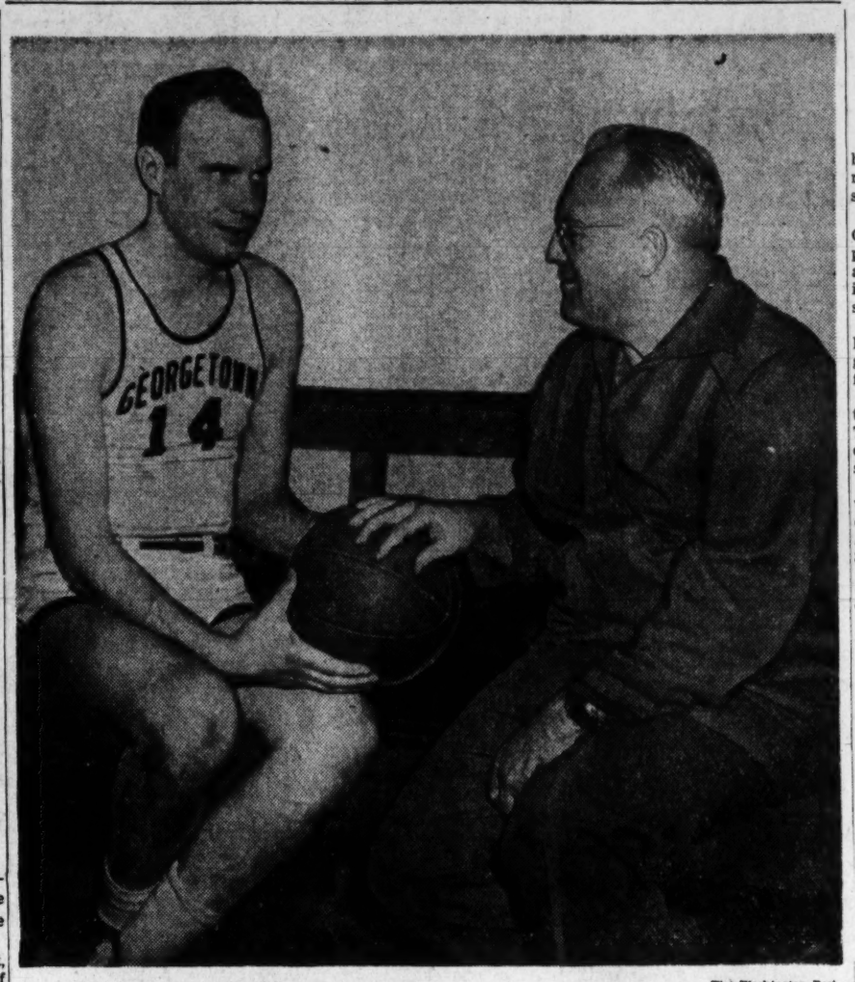
With Louis safely under his wing, Strauss indicated he would resume negotiations with Walcott shortly, probably within the next week or 10 days. Walcott, through his manager, Joe Webster, and associate, Felix Bocchicchio, has been demanding 30 per cent on the basis of Jersey Joe's showing in the December fight. With Louis receiving 40 per cent, however, it seemed improbable that the challenger would receive more than 20 per cent.

Should Walcott refuse to fight for less than 30 per cent, or whatever terms he is offered, there are several possible opponents. Louis himself has spoken favorably of the ability of Gus Lesnevich, the light heavyweight champion. Joey Maxim, who holds a decision over Walcott in one of three bouts, meets the Swedish importation, Olle Tandberg, at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, and the winner of that fight is a possibility. So is Elmer (Violent) Ray.

Joe Won't Yield

Waterbury, Conn., Jan. 8 (AP). Jersey Joe Walcott, who is expected to meet Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis in a return bout, June 23, said here tonight he hasn't signed for the contest and wouldn't unless he received 30 per cent of the gate. Walcott refereed here tonight.

"When I signed for the last bout," said the No. 1 challenger, "I agreed to give Louis a return bout if I won and the terms were to be 30 per cent for Louis and 30 per cent for me. Louis won a disputed decision and now they want to give me 20 per cent of the gate. I don't believe that is fair."



The Washington Post

BEFORE THE BIG BLOWOFF—This was the picture as Georgetown, hopes high, prepared to launch its 1947-48 court season a few weeks ago. The smiling fellow on the left is Andy Kostecka, whose presence on the team at that time elicited a smile from his coach, Elmer Ripley, right. Yesterday, however, it was different. Kostecka was dropped from the squad for "ungentlemanly conduct."" Neither Kostecka nor Ripley smiled

Georgetown Ends 7-Game Losing Streak

Georgetown lost Andy Kostecka but won over Maryland, 52-40, last night at the Armory to snap a seven-game losing streak.

A slim crowd of 1275 saw Tommy O'Keefe give a good enough impersonation of the missing scoring ace to pace the Hoyas to victory in the first intra-city game of the season.

Maryland's Bill Wanish made a long one-handed shot to tie the game at 21-21 as the low-scoring first half ended.

Tight-lipped Coach Ripley wasn't talking about the missing Kosteka. That he was thinking of him was obvious when he started an entire second-string lineup.

Italo Ablondi and Johnny Brown were the forwards; Joe Culhane, ceter, and Dick Falvey and Frank Algagia, guards.

Subs Lead Terps

And after 10 minutes, the subs were ahead of Maryland, 12-11. The boys were missing a lot of shots but played an aggressive brand of ball and controlled the backboards.

Johnny Brown, with a basket and two fouls, accounted for a third of their points.

Maryland's little Alvie Lann didn't stay around long, he committed three personals in the first three minutes and was out of the game after 16 minutes.

Ripley sent in his first team after 10 minutes but it took 3 more for it to score. Finally, Ken Brown tapped in one and the Hoyas trailed, 14-15. Late in the half, Tommy O'Keefe put Georgetown in front with a field goal and a foul, 21-19.

That's when Wanish evened it. Wanish and Bill Brown, Terrapin scoring aces, split 14 points between them in the first 20 minutes.

Midway in the second half, Georgetown led 37-33. The advantage was gained mainly by Tommy O'Keefe who dropped five field goals after the intermission.

Although Maryland's Bill Brown had four personals on him, he continued to play a magnificent game.

With less than 10 minutes to go, Brown had accounted for 13 of Maryland's 33 points.

Remorseful Kostecka, Dropped From Squad, 'Regrets Incident'

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Andy Kostecka, Georgetown's basketball captain who was dismissed summarily from the squad yesterday after he was quoted as blasting Coach Elmer Ripley, told The Washington Post last night he felt that he was tricked into saying things he didn't really mean.

A rather subdued Kostecka gave this statement:

"I deeply regret the entire incident. It's a great shock to realize that my college playing days are over. In the heat of the moment, I said things that I didn't mean.

"I'd like to apologize publicly to Coach Ripley and Father Kane for any embarrassment I've caused them."

Kostecka, former Army lieutenant, was dismissed from the squad for "ungentlemanly conduct" by the Rev. Matthew W. Kane, S. J., faculty moderator of athletics.

"Through For Good"

Father Kane took the action after Kostecka was quoted as saying, "Rip hates my guts and always has. He has his pets and I'm not one of them."

The faculty moderator replied, "Nobody at Georgetown can tell a coach how to run the team. As far as I'm concerned, Kostecka's through for good."

Later Father Kane said, "I think it was the only action I could take and I think it's best for the team. There's no dissension among the other members.

"Andy's a fine boy but he's going to have to learn to control his temper. It seemed to me he had to learn a lesson. After all, if he doesn't learn it in school he never will."

"My Boys Are for Me"

The venerable Ripley, obviously deeply disturbed, said, "This is one of those unfortunate things that happen to coaches. I guess you have to expect it when you're coaching.

"I've always tried to treat everybody the same; I don't treat anybody differently."

As far as Kostecka's absence will affect Georgetown's already crumbling fortune, Ripley optimistically said, "We'll do all right. My boys are for me."

Kostecka had been in trouble before the printed outburst. In the VPI game, he was ejected for kicking deliberately a VPI player who was lying on the floor. Father Kane admitted yesterday that he thought of suspending Kostecka then.

On Georgetown's recent disastrous road trip in which the Hoyas dropped six straight, it was reported that Kostecka had been in danger of being sent home on several occasions.

To Stay in School

Kostecka, 24-year-old senior who will be graduated in June, plans to stay in school. After that, he hopes to be able to play professional basketball. A few weeks ago, the Washington Caps were said to be anxious to secure draft rights on him.

The temperamental Russian was leading point-maker with 165 points in 11 games this season, a 15 per game average. Last year, he was among the Nation's top scorers with 410 points.

Those close to the Georgetown scene long have been disturbed by the growing rift between the captain and coach. They say Ripley was particularly fond of Kostecka and was sort of a foster father to him.

After Georgetown beat St. John's in Madison Square Garden, the team presented the ball to the coach. In turn, Ripley gave it to Kostecka to give to a nephew.

The story goes that Ripley and Kostecka were so close that when Ripley reprimanded him on several occasions, Kostecka couldn't take it.

Lions Oppose Reds Tonight

Washington's cellar-dwelling hockey Lions will attempt to snap a four-game losing streak when they tackle the Eastern Division leading Providence Reds at Uline Arena tonight at 8:30.

Providence brings to town four of the five top scorers in the American Hockey League. Carl Liscombe and Ray LaPlante are the leaders with 52 points each. Ed Prokop is fourth high with 50 and Harvey Fraser is fifth with 47.

Lion Defenseman Jack Portland will see no action tonight, but the locals are otherwise at full strength. Portland is sidelined with a bad cold.

Hal Toenes Signs

Hal Toenes, righthanded pitcher, sent back his signed 1948 Nat contract from his Tampa, Fla., home, Vice President Calvin Griffith of the Nats announced yesterday.

Toenes was brought up from the Nats' Chattanooga farm club at the tail end of last season, and appeared in only two games.

Bill Osmanski Will Coach at Holy Cross U.

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 8 (AP).—The selection of "Bullet Bill" Osmanski as head football coach at Holy Cross for "a considerable number of years" was announced today by the Very Rev. William J. Healy, S. J., the college president.

Osmanski, now practicing dentistry in Chicago, is not expected to return his signed contract, said to call for a $10,000 annual salary, for about two weeks.

He and Father Healy reportedly came to terms off the campus yesterday. Osmanski was reported en route to Chicago when Father Healy announced his selection as John (Ox) DaGrosa's successor this morning.

Osmanski's appointment enables Holy Cross to resume a graduate head football coaching policy that was abandoned back in 1930 when Cleo A. O'Donnell was succeeded by the then Capt. John J. McEwan, famed All-America center at West Point.

After starring at Holy Cross for three seasons, Osmanski made the jump to the Chicago Bears of the National Football League winding up for them last season in the dual capacity of assistant coach and club dentist. During the war years he served in the United States Navy.

Manhattan Upsets West Va.

New York, Jan. 8 (AP).—Manhattan College pulled a major upset tonight, defeating the highly touted West Virginia basketball team, 58-53, to inflict the initial loss of the season upon the Mountaineers.

The victory was Manhattan's tenth against one defeat and snapped West Virginia's five-game winning streak. A crowd of about 18,000 was on hand to see the intersectional doubleheader with New York University meeting Duke in the second game.

'Marching Through Georgia' Isn't a Song—It's Treason

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

MARYLAND is angling for a game with Missouri in 1949 and if it comes to pass it will bring together the originator of the split T formation, Don Faurot, and his foremost disciple, Jim Tatum . . . Sports Announcer Ray Morgan sidetracked Georgia on his way home from the Gator Bowl game for a good reason. Morgan was guilty (in the minds of Georgians) of first degree sacrilege in his between-halves comments when he said "The Georgia band is on the field playing Marching Through Georgia" . . . Marty Passaglia, who played with the Caps last year, has volunteered to serve as an instructor in The Washington Post-Cap basketball clinics which open next week. He's now a clothing salesman. . . Pitcher Walter Masterson of the Nats is spending the winter managing an Alexandria threater . . . There's a dog at the Jacksonville Kennel Club oval named Kitty Kilts, the same as the horse which campaigns on the Maryland half-mile tracks. Named after the horse or not, the hound runs like the nag—out of the money usually.

MATCHMAKER Gabe Menendez is priming Featherweight Jimmy Cooper at his No. 1 outdoor attraction. If Cooper, who's had less than six pro fights, continues to show improvement, Menendez hopes to use him against Bantamweight Champion Manuel Oritz in a nontitle match at the ball park. Ortiz taught Cooper boxing in the Army . . . rumors that Middleweight Smuggy Hursey is still nursing a bad side received in his loss to Tommy Bell last September are not true. The Smug is training daily and probably will be in action again next month at armory . . . Until Sonny Boy West dumped him in Baltimore Monday night, Lightweight Herbie Jones was planning to go to Chicago and Los Angeles for a series of fights . . . Guard Freddie Scolari of the Caps is almost totally blind in one eye, but he's still one of the best defensive men in the Basketball Association of America.

SANTA CLARA, which started the Georgetown basketball team on its skid, owes a large measure of credit to Bob Feerick and Dick O'Keefe of the Caps for its victory over the Hoyas. Feerick and O'Keefe, Santa Clara alumni, scouted the Hoyas for the Broncs and also gave them a pep talk before the game . . . Maryland reportedly has the inside track on Jack George, St. John's great footballer . . . Artistically, his Georgia football team didn't do too well losing 4 of its 11 games, but Coach Wally Butts has no complaints financially. In addition to his $20,000 salary (which includes bonuses), Butts received a 1947 Cadillac from a Bulldog alumnus the morning of the Georgia-Maryland game . . . When a Terp partisan told Split T. Tatum that the Old Liners didn't get a break in their Gator Bowl game, Tatum fired back, "You're dead wrong. We got a helluva break when the gun sounded ending the game."

Arduini TKO's Sundo in Two

Hard-punching Tony Arduini of Apollo A. C., scored a two-round technical knockout victory over Daniel Sundo to highlight last night's Golden Gloves quarterfinals at Uline Arena.

Tony showed the 3000 fans lots of class and a brilliant left hook as he sent his foe to the canvas twice for no count in the second round before Referee Harry Volkman stopped the bout after 1:08.

Arduini and Sundo were battling in the 126-pound class, senior division.

In the outstanding novice division fight, Danny Marwood of Merrick slammed out a two-round TKO triumph over Ken Andriota of Shamrock A. C.

It was a free-swinging affair, and went well along pretty evenly until late in the first round, a Marwood right split open a cut over Andriota's left eye. The cut bled so profusely that Volkman stopped the contest at 52 seconds.

Amvets Take Lead In Roosevelt League

The unbeaten Columbia Heights Amvets took the leadership of the Roosevelt Recreation Basketball League from U. S. Poster last night by defeating Navy Communications, 34-27, for their third straight win.

U. S. Poster was handed its first setback in three starts by McKee Pontiac, 47-43. Both games were at Roosevelt High. Jack Waldron and Joe Corrado paced the Amvets with eight points each, while Dale Meyers was high for McKee with 13.

NCAA Urges Teeth in 'Code'

New York, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—In a move to put teeth in its proposed "sanity code" to purify collegiate athletics, the NCAA today approved formation of an investigating agency to try charges and levy penalties against violators.

Dr. Karl E. Leib of the University of Iowa, president of the NCAA, said, however, that the group was attempting to place emphasis "on compliance, rather than punishment."

The proposed code, to be voted on by the full membership Saturday, puts a short strict interpretation on amateurism and aid to collegiate athletes.

Under the enforcement agency, violators first would be interviewed by a "compliance committee."

If they did not voluntarily fall into line, a "fact-finding committee" would make a thorough investigation and forward its findings to the NCAA council for disciplinary action.

Such action would be NCAA suspension, meaning that the suspended school could not compete against NCAA members or schools which schedule NCAA teams.

As the executive committee labored through the dull details of how to enforce the code, the football coaches association met and voted honors to three of the game's outstanding mentors—Gil Doble, Bob Zuppke and Glenn S. (Pop) Warner.

Those three, now retired, were given the Amos Alonzo Stagg award for outstanding contributions to football.

Cardinals Barred From Basketball

St. Louis, Jan. 8 (AP).—Club President Bob Hannegan has placed a ban on basketball playing by members of the St. Louis Cardinals, a club spokesman said today.

A professional basketball promoter said earlier that Cardinals Erv Disak and Dick Sisler were seeking permission from the club to play with the St. Louis Brewers in an exhibition basketball game at Kiel Auditorium Sunday.

Under Cardinal player contracts, players must obtain written permission from the club before engaging in any athletic sport other than baseball.

Soccer Teams Clash For Lead Sunday

The top-ranking Glasva soccer team will meet runnerup Sugar Radio for leadership of the District Recreation Department's Suburban Soccer League Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Glasva, Md.

Other Sunday league games include Charles County vs. Chick's Billiards at Waldorf, Md.; Rockville vs. Berwyn at Rockville, Md., and Washington Sport Club vs. Marlboro at Gonzaga Field.

Pirates Offer to Double Kiner's '47 Salary for '48

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates today offered to double Ralph Kiner's salary, but said he'd get no bonuses for increased attendance, batting average, or home-runs.

Roy Hamey, general manager, said the contract offered the slugging outfielder was about twice what Kiner received last year—"$30,000 would not be too far off."

"Ralph and I had a nice get-together and I don't think there'll be any trouble," Hamey declared. "We know Ralph is one of the principal reasons why our attendance was so good last year, but we want to take care of all that right in the contract."

Kiner hit 51 home runs last season to tie Johnny Mize, New York Giant, for the National League championship.

Hamey said he anticipated no trouble signing Bob Chesnes, San Francisco pitcher, recovering from an operation on his right arm. He said Sacramento catcher Eddie Fitzgerald and Max West, San Diego slugger, would probably also sign.

Yanks Sign Page

New York, Jan. 8 (AP).—Joe Page, the New York Yankees' ace relief pitcher, agreed to 1948 terms today, bringing the total of world champions signed to four. The club did not announce his salary but it was understood he received a healthy pay boost.

Page appeared in four world series games, pitching 13 innings and winning the final decision over Brooklyn.

Braves Bring Up Hurler

Boston, Jan. 8 (AP).—The Boston Braves announced today the signing of Ray Martin, 23-year-old pitching prospect from nearby Norwood.

Late last season Martin was called up from the Hartford Eastern League farm team and made his debut as a Tribesman by turning back the Brooklyn Dodgers with a seven-hit performance.

Keller Florida Bound

Frederick, Md., Jan. 8 (AP).—Charlie Keller, New York Yankees outfielder, has departed from his home here for Florida, hoping that the Southern clime will help him complete recovery from a spinal disc operation which removed him from the lineup last season.

Keller told friends that he felt better than any time since the operation was performed last summer and believed he had a good chance to resume his regular outfield job.

A back brace which he was required to wear after the operation has been discarded. The real test will come, Keller, said, when he begins sliding and running the bases.

He was accompanied to Bartow, Fla., by his wife and three children.

Bill Bennings

At Gulfstream.

Dear Folks:

Only the old-timers will remember Willie Doyle as a jockey, but most of us have seen the little fellow in his role of patrol judge at many tracks. Doyle admits he has been "race tracking" for more than a half century. During that lengthy spell of years he has seen some of the great thoroughbreds in action—Irish Lad, Broomstick, Man O'War, Colin and many others. Doyle, now a Gulfstream official, has a new pet in Armed. When Armed made his 1948 debut the other day and charged home to win going away, Doyle was quoted as saying, "Greatest move I've seen a horse make since Tenney charged at Salvator." Doyle rates Armed odds-on to win the January 15 renewal of the $25,000 added Gulfstream Park Handicap. In the closing day mile and a quarter stake Armed will be meeting as great a mare as Harmonica, who smashed the track record for the mile and a furlong in the Hallandale Handicap. Also in the line-up probably will be Rampart, holder of the mile and a sixteenth mark, Respingo, Incline, Bug Juice, High Trend and others. "It should be a corking race," said Doyle. Incidentally Washington fans will have a rooting interest in Incline, the horse that belongs to Joe Tucci and is trained by Charlie Feltner. A victory like that couldn't happen to a better fellow.—BILL.

Western, Wilson, Tech Are Favored

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The Interhigh League basketball season opens today, with two double-headers slated in the National Guard Armory.

Western faces Roosevelt and Eastern meets Calvin Coolidge in a 3:30 p. m. twin bill. In an 8 p. m. double feature Central battles Wilson and Tech clashes with Anacostia.

Wilson, Western and Tech are favorites to win their openers and go on from there to be the chief contestants in the scramble to take the championship away from Coolidge.

The Colts of Coolidge are missing most of the men who carried them to the title in 1946 and 1947. Only Bobby Rohr and Tommy Boyle return. Joined by inexperienced Jess Houston, Rod Hegarty and Fred Cohen, they stack up as even choices against Eastern's Ramblers today, but not too much in the title race.

Leading Eastern will be the veterans Sal DeGiorgi and Johnny Brown. Rounding out the team will be Red Brown, Spike Barouth and Harry Wharam.

Wilson Favored

Wilson, favored to win the championship, has four regulars back from last year's runner-up team. Back are Pat O'Neill, the loop's top pointmaker, Don Snider, Bob Carter and Jack Whitcomb. The new starter is Dick (Mole) Janigan. In the lineup for Central against Wilson will be veterans Jimmy Pantos, Ross Keith, Hal Sponsler, Bobby Johnson and Rookie Jack Stringer.

Sparking Western against Roosevelt will be Wayne Brizendine, the team's top scorer last season. Otherwise vets back are Norm Wacker, Lou (Poochie) Negri, Clem Markham and Nick Stratos. Roosevelt has only Warren (Fivey) Siegel and Glenn Johnson back from last year with a host of green newcomers filling out the rest of the squad.

The key men in the Tech lineup will also be experienced hands, Buddy Wickers, Paul (Cookie) Pacini, Bob Curtis and Abe Levitan. Bill Anderson is the only newcomer in the starting fivesome. Pacing Anacostia will be lanky Wally Warner, who in his first four nonleague games has flipped in 88 points. He'll get help from Dave Migdol, Max Pheasant, Lennie Koontz and Johnny Schuerger.

Adult Tickets 90 Cents

In past years, interhigh games were played at the McKinley Tech gym, where the seating capacity is 2600. In the armory, 4825 fans can be accommodated.

Adult tickets will be sold at the gate for 90 cents. A special section has been set aside for the adults in the more comfortable balcony seats.

Student tickets have sold very well. Each school has chartered special buses to transport students to the armory.

Eighteen other games are billed today, including openers in the Northern Virginia Class A. Conference and the Negro Interhigh League.

Stablemate Of Armed Scores Upset

Gulfstream Park, Fla., Jan. 8 (AP).—A crowd of 11,531 thought for a fleeting moment today that they were looking at the mighty Armed when the latter's lowly stablemate, Master, suddenly developed winning form and scored a long-shot triumph in the featured sixth race.

Warren Wright's 4-year-old bay, a $28.30 for 2 chance in the 1 1-16 mile jaunt, breezed home a three lengths winner under Hedley Woodhouse, who only a few races earlier had narrowly escaped serious injury or worse in a spectacular spill. Master, well beaten in four previous tries at the meeting, was clocked in 1:45 4-5. Woodhouse got the mount because the stable's regular rider, Doug Dodson, could not make the light weight. The colt carried only 108 pounds.

Mae Agnes, also lightly played, was second by a length and a half, with Forward March third of the nine starters.

A few years ago the Calumet champion, Whirlaway, was noted for running out on the home turn and this trait was almost entirely corrected by adding a special blinker to his equipment. Today Master's equipment was changed to include blinkers—the "rogue's badge"—and the move proved successful.

Master never started as a juvenile and in 1947, with but two triumphs in a dozen starts, the son of Blenheim 2d contributed only $4450 to Calumet's record seasonal earnings.

Lions May Not Be Sold

Detroit, Jan. 8 (AP).—Owner Fred L. Mandel, jr., of the Detroit Lions made a key move today that suggested he may retain his National Football League holdings in Detroit, sought for the last month by a seven-man syndicate incorporated as the Detroit Football Co.

Mandel, whose home is in Chicago, flew into town and "bought up" Coach Charles E. (Gus) Dorais' contract, which still had four years to go at $25,000 a year.

Although neither Mandel nor Lyle Fife, spokesman for the syndicate which has been dickering for purchase of the club, would associate Dorais' settlement with the pending purchase negotiations, the action meant one of two things:

That Mandel intends to keep the club, at least for another season, and will fight threats of Fife's syndicate to install an All-America Conference franchise in Detroit if it can't get the Lions, or

That satisfactory settlement of Dorais' contract in advance had been demanded by the prospective buyers before they would close a deal with Mandel.

Terps Box Gamecocks

The University of Maryland boxers make their first appearance since their Sugar Bowld victory when they face South Carolina's Gamecocks tonight at 8 p. m. at College Park's Ritchie Colisseum.

Mainstay of the South Carolina team is Capt. Ray Avaut, 145-pound champion of the Southern Conference last year. His foe tonight will be Terp Rowland Hyde.

Maryland will send two Southern Conference champions of last year into action tonight in Middleweight Eddie Rieder and Lightheavyweight Ken Malone.

In an afternoon show, Maryland is host to the VMI wrestlers.

DiMaggio Samples Fishing at Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—Joe DiMaggio stopped in Norfolk today en route to Florida to do some fishing.

Joe and two traveling companions, Jim Cannon, columnist for the New York Post, and T. S. Riley, vice president of Toots Shor Inc., drove to Norfolk from New York last night.

Baltimore Colts After W. & L. Star

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (AP).—The Baltimore Colts of the All-America Football Conference are trying to talk Dick Working of Washington and Lee into playing in his home town.

The Colts disclosed today they had drafted Working and a representative was in Lexington, Va., this week talking terms with him. He played his high school football for City College of Baltimore.

Cleveland, Jan. 8 (AP).—Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones, fleet back of the Cleveland professional football team, will receive a tryout with the Cleveland Indians baseball team this spring, Tribe President Bill Veeck said today.

Crosby Open Offers Golf And Laughs

Del Monte, Calif., Jan. 8 (U.P.).—The oddest filed in the history of a top-flight golf tournament will tee off tomorrow in the annual Bing Crosby $10,000 national pro-amateur meet.

Headlined by such top-flight shotmakers as Jimmy Demaret, Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Lou Worsham, Jim Ferrier and Lloyd Mangrum, the field also includes movie actors, prize fight champions, football stars and baseball executives.

It's all for charity—and that's why the big names are lending a supporting hand. Crosby furnishes the $10,000 in prizes and pays all the other expenses. Every nickel of the gross receipts will go to charity—half to the Sister Kenny Foundation and half to the area's Community Chest.

The defending championship pair is Slammin' Sam Snead and his amateur partner, Roger Kelly of Los Angeles.

However, this duo is not the favorite to retain the crown. That role is held by Bobby Locke, the South African sharpshooter, who teams with Frank (Muscleman) Stranahan, one of the world's best Simon-pures from Toledo, Ohio.

Another formidable partnership is made up of Hogan and veteran Johnny Dawson, runnerup for the United States amateur crown in 1947. Craig Wood is paired with Biff Hoffman, former Stanford football star, and Vic Ghezzi with Nate Marshall, Southern California gridiron star.

Colorful Jimmy Demaret is teamed with Dan Searle, local amateur star who knows the three links where the tournament will be played—Cypress Point, Monterey Peninsula Club and Pebble Beach—to perfection.

Crosby himself will tee off with Cam Puget, Monterey professional. Any foursome in these groups will offer the customers plenty of entertainment to go with a lot of good golf.

If the walking fans don't care for that kind of an offering they might tag around with Lew Worsham, National Open champion, and his partner, Dell Webb, executive of the New York Yankees, and chat about baseball.

Outdoors

By Jack Bell

IT IS odd, indeed, that anglers will fish a spot that is now exposed to the full sweep of Old Man Winter's icy breath, in addition, is overcrowded with sportsmen.

During the summer these same fishermen are very jealous of their favorite spot, and prefer to visit it only with a friend or two who are often sworn to secrecy.

Alan's Fresh, on the upper Wicomico River, is the favorite rendezvous of the hardy winter angler. (Yellow perch often are caught in great numbers. However this makes little difference to that happy crowd—the more fishermen, the more the fun.

ROUND BAY and Herald Harbor on the Severn, in our opinion, produce larger perch if not a larger string than Alans Fresh. Also the anglers has a great deal more room and a chance to get out of the cold wind.

His chances of a mixed string is greater because pike are there and frequently outnumber the delectable little yellow perch on the stringer.

At this season the angling gourmet need not turn up his nose at the thought of pike on the dining table. A little bony yes, but most fish are bony.

Caught out of cold brackish water, pike are now in season, full of fight and highly colored with a pre-nuptial dash of red. They are esteemed by all after they are fried, baked or made into crowder.

A. U. Jayvees Lose Again

The American University Jayvees suffered their second setback in eight games yesterday as the Norfolk division of William and Mary College defeated them, 43-41 at the A. U. gym.

It was Norfolk's slight superiority at the foul line provided the visiting team with the win. Both teams netted 17 field goals, but Norfolk sank 9 out of 17 foul shots to 7 out of 16 for American. Jim Kranking of A. U. was high scorer with 20 points.

Assets, Loans Of Columbia Federal Soar

By S. Oliver Goodman

Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association, which will move into its new $500,000 building on May 1, showed record assets of $14,535,456 at the end of 1947.

Kefauver

This was reported yesterday by Clarence E. Kefauver, executive vice president and secretary. He added that resources increased 12.7 per cent during the year. Since 1937, the institution's assets have nearly tripled.

The past 12 months have been one of the busiest periods in Columbia Federal's 40-year history, Kefauver said. More than five million dollars in loans were made and the total outstanding was $12,523,053 at the year end for a net increase of $2,191,000.

Reserves also showed a substantial increase, rising to $1,025,997 or 8.1 per cent of total share liabilities.

New home of Columbia Federal at 710 11th st. nw. is rapidly nearing completion. The structure, which looks like four stories, actually is two and a half floors high. The 'fourth' floor will be occupied by air conditioning equipment and the main floor with a balcony is one and a half stories high. The association will occupy all of the building with the exception of a portion of the second floor.

RIGHTS TO EXPIRE: Warrants permitting Washington Gas Light Co. stockholders to subscribe to one new share of common at 20 will expire on Tuesday, President Marcy L. Sperry pointed out yesterday. These 'rights' have value, he said, urging holders either to exercise or sell them to a local securities dealer or bank. Buyers of the new stock will receive the dividend of 37½ cents a share payable February 1.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: John W. Miller, vice president and general manager of the William E. Miller Furniture Co. of Washington, has been named one of the 11 outstanding merchants who has best served his industry, his community and his country in the conduct of his business during 1947. The honor was conferred by the Cavalier Award Committee at the annual dinner in Chicago of the National Retail Furniture Association . . . H. H. Walker Lewis, Baltimore attorney and formerly tax counselor of United States Fidelity & Guarantee Co., has been appointed tax counselor of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Companies . . Frederic A. Williams has retired as president of Cannon Mills, Inc., after 46 years' service and will be succeeded by Stanley Phillips . . . Donald B. Gillies, recently named president of Lake Superior Iron Ore Association, has resigned as vice president and director of Republic Steel Corp. . . . Roy Rogers, formerly assistant manager of the Washington office of Employers Liability Assurance Corp., is now a member of Adgate A. Lipscomb & Son, Inc., local insurance brokers.

PLAN APPROVED: The Virginia State Corporation Commission yesterday approved a financing program for Rosslyn Gas Co. which will permit the nearby utility to obtain additional advances totaling $2,475,000 from its parent, Washington Gas Light Co. Of the total, $75,000 is to cover final costs of the natural gas conversion program, and $2,400,000 is for construction in 1948.

ODD LOTS: Armstrong Cork Co. is offering common holders rights to buy 88,179 shares of $4 cumulative preferred at $102.50 a share on basis of one share of new stock for each 16 common shares held . . . Syndicate headed by Lehman Brothers was awarded the 15 million dollar emergency housing bond offering by State of New Jersey . . . Automotive News estimated this week's auto and truck output at 106,188 units . . . Peabody Coal Co. will pay back dividends totaling $26 a share on company's 6 per cent preferred stock . . . CAB reported 16 major domestic airlines showed net operating profit of $5,552,118 in third quarter of 1937, compared with $3,347,814 in like 1946 period . . . Lehman Corp. reported increase in net asset value of its capital stock to $49.03 a share as of December 31 against $47.73 on September 30 . . . Current issue of Saturday Evening Post has comprehensive article about world's largest brokerage and investment firm—Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane.

RAIL NETS GAIN: Class 1 railroads had estimated net income of 44 million dollars in November compared with $39,600,000 in November, 1946, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

EARNINGS: John Morrell & Co., meat packers, reported net income of $2,889,017, equal to $3.61 a common share, for fiscal year ended November 1, compared with $2,104,398 or $2.63 a share in previous fiscal year. Other income reports included:

General Motors Sells Interest in Bendix Aviation

Sale by General Motors of its interests in the Bendix Aviation Corp. was disclosed yesterday as Bendix filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission covering 399,990 shares of common stock.

The shares, registered at a par value of $5 each, are being purchased by Morgan Stanley & Co., New York investment banking firm, from GM and will be offered later for sale to the public.

A letter from C. E. Wilson, GM president, to Bendix, dated January 7, accompanied the registration. General Motors has held stock interest in Bendix continuously since 1929.

Wilson's letter said GM from time to time has considered complete purchase of Bendix, but "we have come to the conclusion that such acquisition and operation by General Motors does not seem feasible."

Bendix makes automotive, aviation, radio and marine products. It has 11 plants in the United States, the largest of which is at South Bend, Ind.

The company has a total of 2,117,453 shares outstanding, but has no funded debt and no preferred stock outstanding.

Hourly Earnings Again Increase

New York, Jan. 8 (AP).—Hourly earnings of production workers in 25 manufacturing industries hit a new peak in October for the twentieth consecutive month, the National Industrial Conference Board reported today.

The increase over September of 0.2 per cent was the smallest since a year before, but brought the average to $1.386.

However, real hourly earnings, adjusted for changes in the consumers' price index, declined for the fourth straight month and were 1.5 per cent below the June figure.

Weekly earnings were at a new high of $56.59, up 1.1 per cent from September. Real weekly earnings, adjusted to prices, were up 0.6 per cent from September, but 10.6 per cent lower than the wartime peak in March, 1945.

The work week was lengthened 0.3 hour in October, but was still 15.5 per cent under 1929.

Rails Drop Issue Plans

The Missouri Pacific and International Great Northern Railroad Cos. have withdrawn their applications for Interstate Commerce Commission authority to issue $7,744,000 of equipment trust certificates because of unsatisfactory interest rates proposed in competitive bidding.

Drive Seeks $50,000 for Md. Hospital

Volunteers tomorrow will begin a door-to-door campaign to raise $50,000 for Suburban Hospital, Bethesda.

The three-week drive will take place in Montgomery County and Northwest Washington, Mrs. Morrison M. Clark, campaign director, said.

Suburban recently received $50,000 from the county, but hospital board president Arthur G. Lambert explained this was used to clean up past indebtedness.

The Silver Spring-Takoma Park area has been added to the drive. Hospital statistics show 11 per cent of charity patients and 15 per cent of the paying patients are from Silver Spring-Takoma Park.

Group chairmen appointed by Mrs. Clark for the campaign are Frank Gatewood, William P. J. Taylor, Thomas L. Eagan, W. Francis Hill, jr., Richard B. Barker and George Davis.

Area chairmen include Mrs. C. D. Herron, Mrs. William B. Jones, Mrs. E. C. Albritton, James R. Miller, Miss A. R. Griffith, Jesse A. Lay, Mrs. Hubert Schneider, Charles S. Duvall, Arthur B. Gilbert, Mrs. Benjamin S. Bell, Mrs. Robert C. Jones, Mrs. J. O. Underwood, Mrs. Christopher Granger, Mrs. Donald Buckingham, Mrs. A. W. Butts, Mrs. Clifford N. Rodlun, Mrs. T. L. Moe, Mrs. Robert King, Mrs. William B. Gridley, Mrs. William G. Allen, Mrs. George W. Stone, Dr. George Manov, George Davis, Frank W. Williams, Mrs. Francis O. Day and Mrs. Robert E. Dannemiller.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys
If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.
The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Lacy Shaw To Marry VA Aide in April

Lacy Shaw, 61, veteran Montgomery County Democratic leader, will marry Miss Alma Huset, St. Paul Veterans Administration employe, early in April, it was learned yesterday.

Shaw

Shaw is vice chairman of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and is a former president of the Montgomery County Board of County Commissioners. He is a former member of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. In September he resigned his position as county chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee.

Miss Huset, a VA employe for many years, met Shaw while she was working in Washington about 10 years ago. They plan to be married early in April in St. Paul, and after a wedding trip will make their home in Silver Spring.

Hopkins Teacher Rejects Job Lost On '41 Red Charge

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (AP).—Francis J. Thompson, whose dismissal as a New York City teacher on charges of being a Communist and of perjury was overruled, said today he planned to remain at Johns Hopkins University as associate professor of writing and speech.

The New York State Department of Education yesterday ordered Thompson reinstated as a teacher at City College. The New York City Board of Higher Education suspended him in 1941 without pay after a hearing in which he was accused of being a Communist Party member and of perjuring himself in denying it.

"Of course, I am happy about the decision, but I plan to remain here at Hopkins," Thompson said. He said Dr. Isaiah Bowman, university president, "knew all about the case before I came here, and he preferred to take my word about the case."

Thompson said he joined the Army shortly after he was "fired" in 1942 and that the New York charges were investigated by the military before he was accepted. He joined the Hopkins faculty after three years of Army service, and at the same time appealed his dismissal to the New York Commissioner of Education.

Ware Heads Bureau

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 8 (Spl.).—J. W. Ware of Shepherdstown was named president of the Jefferson County Farm Bureau at Bardane yesterday. Other officers are C. C. Henshaw, J. J. McGarry, H. N. Randolph, R. W. McQuilkin, J. G. Fuss, H. G. Heflebower, Forrest Boyer, Franklin McQuilkin, and Frank Kidwiler.

5 Men Fined $3500 Total in Gaming Case

Another warning that Prince Georges County is "forbidden ground" for gamblers was given in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday as five men were fined a total of $3500 on gaming charges.

The five, who pleaded guilty before Judge Alan Bowie, were among 17 arrested in two New Year's Eve raids in Suitland. Four, who had previous convictions for gambling, were fined $750 each, while the fifth was assessed $500 because his record was clear.

All were given suspended sentences of one year in the Maryland House of Correction.

The $750 fines were levied against Horton S. Grinder, 48, of 718 C st. ne.; Joe B. Fauver, 40, of 115 Duke st., Alexandria; Leonard D. McKey, 43, of 631 8th st. ne., and Harry Gordon, 38, of 51 Missouri ave. nw. The lesser fine was imposed on Reuben Schwartz, 33, of 1417 Whittier st. nw.

Cases against two other men arrested in the same raid were put off for possible future action. The men are Arnold J. Lusby, 26, of 5703 Suitland rd., and Abe Hutt, 45, of 4800 South Dakota ave. ne.

The cases of 10 men arrested in another raid on the same day were postponed indefinitely after Attorney Frank Hall said other defense lawyers were unable to appear.

Williamsburg to Begin Postwar Restoration

Williamsburg, Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—Ground will be broken for the first building in Colonial Williamsburg's postwar program on Wednesday, according to an announcement today by the restoration organization.

A brief program marking the first phase of the work is being arranged in connection with the reconstruction of the Guard House at the Public Magazine. Miss Gabriella Page of Richmond, president of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, will turn the first spadeful of earth, followed by Mayor Vincent D. McManus, representatives of the local branch of the APVA and officers of Colonial Williamsburg.

Reconstruction of the Guard House marks the beginning of an extensive program of restoration and reconstruction recently authorized by the trustees of Colonial Williamsburg.

Inverchapel Dances To Middy's Bagpipe

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 8 (U.P.).—The bagpipe shrilled, and the British Ambassador whirled in a Highland fling.

When the music died and the dancing stopped, Midshipmen from the United States Naval Academy broke into applause for Lord Inverchapel, the Ambassador.

The dignified Ambassador came to the Naval Academy to talk on the British military system.

Midshipman Alvin W. Hurd, Monrovia, Calif., of Scottish descent, piped the Ambassador into the hall. Lord Inverchapel joined in an impromptu Scottish dance with the young academy student.

Merrifield, Va., Man, Hit By Auto, Dies of Injuries

A Merrifield, Va., pedestrian died in Arlington Hospital yesterday of injuries received when he was struck by a car near Falls Church 12 hours earlier.

He was Thomas French, 56, a laborer, who died at 10:20 a. m. yesterday from injuries which included bad lacerations, fractured leg, and internal injuries. Arlington Hospital officials termed it "one of the worst emergency cases we've ever had."

Falls Church police said the accident occured on Lee hwy. between Graham rd. and S. West st. at 10:25 p. m. Wednesday night. They listed Robert J. Seaone, 21, of Merrifield as the driver of the car.

A woman pedestrian was critically injured here yesterday when struck by a car driven by a 77-year-old man.

The injured woman, Mrs. Bessie Woody, 52, of 2651 16th st. nw., was taken to Emergency Hospital with a skull fracture, broken right leg and possible fractured espine.

Driver of the car, police said, was Sherman Flint of 3041 Whitehaven st. nw. They said the auto, apparently out of control, leaped the curb, struck the woman, and then crashed against the new Medical Center Building, 1726-30 I st. nw.

Flint was admitted to Emergency with minor head cuts and shock.

Probe's End Due Tonight At Greenbelt

Public investigation of the Greenbelt, Md., town administration probably will be concluded with a hearing tonight at 8 o'clock in the municipal hall.

A nine-member committee which began the probe in October will hear the last of 14 charges filed against Police Chief George Panagoulis by residents of the town. All but three of the complaints already have been aired.

Wednesday night the committee heard a denial by Town Manager James T. Gobbel of a charge that he had over-paid a number of local salaries, including his own. The charges had been filed by Mrs. Mabel Kandler, town treasurer.

Gobbel contended the town council had failed to set a definite wage scale for the year. He said he instructed the treasurer to pay him the rate of his 1946 salary because he was uncertain as to what pay scale the council might establish.

Later in the year, Gobbel said, he made a refund of $481 to the town treasurer because he had volunteered earlier to accept a reduction in pay. He denied he had attempted to keep the salary transactions secret.

Principal witnesses at tonight's hearing will be two former town policemen, Robert Dodge and John Belton, both of whom have accused the police chief of dereliction of duty.

Church Group To Open Fund Drive Today

The twenty-eighth annual Washington Federation of Churches financial campaign will be launched at a dinner meeting at 6:30 p. m. today at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.

Arthur S. Flemming, civil service commissioner, Federation president and campaign general chairman, will preside. Out of a total budget of $81,200, churches and individuals have pledged to raise $53,900 during the drive.

Dudley F. Holtman is chairman of the advance gifts committee. Division chairman are Walter Britt, George Fraser, Wilton Wallace, Elton Brown, Walter Handy, Frank Smith, Charles Cook, Harold Folk, Mrs. Elton Brown and Mrs. Walter Handy, division chairmen.

The first report meeting will be January 23 at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, and the final report meeting, January 30. January 18 will be "Federation of Churches Sunday" in Greater Washington area Protestant churches.

Beverley To Make Race In Alexandria

Marshall J. Beverley, Alexandria bank official, yesterday was the first candidate for the Alexandria City Council in the April Democratic primary.

Councilmen from the six wards will be chosen. Beverley announced from the Fourth Ward, now represented by George E. Bender.

Beverley, a life-long resident of Alexandria, and an officer of the First National Bank, served in the Navy during the war. In 1946 he lost to Col. Everett A. Hellmuth by five votes.

Deadline for filing for the Democratic primary is February 6, the electoral board announced yesterday. The primary will be April 6; the general election, June 8.

Registrar Fred Petitt said voters must be registered 30 days in advance to be eligible to vote in either.

Woman Sought For Smuggling Gun to Convict

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (AP).—State Attorney J. Bernard Wells disclosed tonight police are searching for a New York woman believed to have smuggled a gun into the Maryland State Penitentiary and into the hands of a long-term inmate.

Wells said New York authorities have been asked to aid in the search. He declined further details.

The gun was found under a pile of lumber in the penitentiary woodshop Sunday night.

Col. Edwin T. Swenson, warden of the institution, said prison authorities found the gun had been slipped to Bernard Beasley, serving a 10-year term for armed robbery and five years extra for a break from the detention room at the Upper Marlboro Courthouse following his original conviction.

Methodist Ministers End Va. Conference

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—"Men who have meant most to the world have been men who discovered God and who recognized their responsibilities to Him and to their fellows," Bishop W. W. Peele of Richmond said this afternoon in the concluding address of the day's mission program at Centenary Methodist Church, attended by approximately 1000 ministers and laymen from the Virginia Methodist Conference.

The bishop called upon ministers and laymen both to become well-informed as to the opportunities presented through the denomination's mission program at home and abroad, declaring that "what we have is not ours to use selfishly but to share with others."

Are Stockowners People?

Capital Transit stockowners are people who have invested their money in street cars and buses and other equipment which makes your transit service possible. Over the past 13 years—ever since Capital Transit's organization—they received an average of less than 1½¢ out of every 100¢ taken in.

Capital Transit employes have invested their labor to make the service function. Over the past 13 years they received an average of 50¢ out of every 100¢ taken in.

The public rides the street cars and buses. Over the past 13 years we have endeavored to give you 100¢ worth of transit service for every 100¢ taken in.

TODAY our employes receive 65¢ out of every $1 taken in.

TODAY the public receives MORE than 100¢ worth of transit service for every $1 taken in. The service now costs $5000 a day more than you pay.

TODAY the stockowners are earning nothing—in fact we're living on their "rainy day" savings.

Our employes wouldn't work if they didn't get paid.

You wouldn't pay if you didn't get service.

Stockowners are people! Can you expect people to invest their savings without receiving sufficient income to pay necessary expenses plus a fair return on the money they invested?

That's the situation today. What would you do about it?

★ This message is published to keep you informed of our affairs and problems . . . for Capital Transit serves everyone—business, public, employes and stockowners.

'Judge' Sought Cure, but Valley Got Headaches

Staunton, Va., Jan. 8.—A confidence man who hoped the Shenandoah Valley would help his sinus has come and gone, but his headaches remain in the Valley.

Weeks ago, the Waynesboro Chamber of Commerce received a letter saying wealthy "Judge Marsh" was coming to Waynesboro in hope the climate would help his sinus.

A few days ago the "judge" appeared—glib and well dressed. Displaying a bankbook showing a $25,000 balance in the Waynesboro National Bank, he gave a $500 check to Waynesboro hospital fund, gave another for $1695 in payment for Staunton Military Academy Instructor Capt. George B. Hafeman's automobile.

Both checks bounced and Sheriff Rudolph L. Shaver is seeking the "judge" with a warrant for grand larceny and obtaining property by false means.

Lane Expects U.S. Money for Roads to D. C.

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (AP).—Governor Lane said he was confident Federal money would be appropriated for Maryland roads leading into Washington in a speech at the annual State Farm Bureau banquet tonight.

He referred to a request he laid before President Truman and Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works administrator, earlier this week that the Government contribute about 50 million dollars to finance "rehabilitation of our highway system in the area contiguous to Washington."

"Both the President and these officials were impressed with the reasonableness of the proposition that it is up to the Federal Government to bear the major part of the cost of providing appropriate highway approaches to our National Capital through Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties," he said.

Federal aid in these projects will boost the State's entire 200 million dollar roads program, he added.

He told delegates "we will know in a few weeks" whether the proposed Chesapeake Bay crossing will be a bridge or tunnel. It will be whichever is found cheaper to construct and maintain, he said. Work should begin by April and will be completed in less than 30 months.

Several thousand delegates attending general sessions of Farm Bureau Day earlier had received their annual report from President Howard S. Leaverton.

Philip C. Turner, president of the Maryland State Fair board, told the delegates farmers must not only provide food but "help mold public opinion in the right way."

Dr. Roger B. Corbett, associate director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, advised farmers to get out of debt as quickly as possible.

Farmers' Bank Deals Outlined To U. S. Jury

Richmond, Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—Financial operations which allegedly led to the collapse of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg were outlined to a federal district court jury today by John W. Manchester, former FBI agent and key witness for the Government.

The jury is hearing evidence relating to charges that Hugh N. Rakes and his wife, Lillian C. Rakes, aided and abetted William Reeves Gardner in the misapplication of more than $435,000 in funds of the bank.

Only the two Rakes' were left to face the jury after yesterday's developments saw Joseph A. Sowers and Kyle M. Weeks, two other codefendants, withdraw pleas of innocent and enter pleas of nolo contendere. Disposition of their cases thus was left to Judge Johnson J. Hayes of Greensboro, N. C., along with the case of Harry Lamson, who pleaded nolo contendere Monday, and Gardner, who entered a guilty plea earlier.

Also left for court determination were the cases of delegate Joseph E. Proffit and bank president Clarence L. Robey, who were granted separate trials in the absence of a jury.

K. of C. Official Held in Lottery

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (AP).—The deputy grand knight of the Knights of Columbus of Maryland was indicted by the grand jury today on a charge of operating a lottery.

Frank A. Shallenberger, deputy grand knight, and John J. Dill, member of a printing firm and described as a promoter of the alleged raffle, was presented and indicted on eight counts of conspiracy to operate a lottery.

They were charged with maintaining a drawing in which "the prizes were nine automobiles and other articles of great value," from last August 1 through January 8.

Father Saves Three From Burning Trailer

Winchester, Va., Jan. 8 (Spl.).—An Erie, Pa., milk dealer last night rescued his two small daughters and their aunt when the three became trapped in a burning house trailer parked near here.

W. H. Engle smashed a window and door to drag the three to safety. The Engles were en route to Florida.

Slayer Suspect Jailed

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—Alfred B. Payne, 22, of Lynchburg, was in jail here today, charged with the slaying of Harry Waller, Campbell County farmer. Police checked his statement admitting killing two other men at Hilton Village, Va., and New Brunswick, N. J.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JANUARY 9, 1948

Ask Anne

Your Questions On Homemaking

After a careful study of the family budget, I find that for the months of January, February and March, due to a bit of hard luck we ran into in December, I will have only $3 a week to buy food for a family of four. I realize that we will have to eat sparingly, but what I want to ask you is what foods will last the longest and fill us up the quickest. Milk and butter are not included as I have a milk supply. Please give me a little help if you can. G. E. K.

It's difficult to see how you can manage to fill up your family on $3 a week at current food prices, even though you temporarily disregard the rules for a well-balanced diet. The Red Cross figures that the cost of a minimum adequate diet for 4 in this area right now is $14 to $15 a week (not including milk). This is a balanced diet, though made up of the most inexpensive foods.

However, your best chance for keeping food bills anywhere near the figure you specify would be to concentrate on filling, sustaining foods such as potatoes, beans, spaghetti, macaroni, bread, oatmeal, and other cereals. Such a diet will be top-heavy with starches but, if your family has been well-nourished up to now and you have plenty of milk and butter available, it probably will do them no harm for a limited period. Grapefruit and oranges are the cheapest fruits now and cabbage the cheapest fresh vegetable, so include some of these if you can. Make full use of your supply of milk, since it is a "protective" food and will give your family needed protein.

The Red Cross has made a special study of diets in relation to current high food prices. If you write to Miss Dorothy Bovee, nutritionist, District Chapter, American Red Cross, 2020 Massachusetts ave. nw., Washington, I'm sure she can give you some additional suggestions on keeping food costs down this winter. Give the ages of members of the family as well as other details when you write.

How do you make an omelet—a successful, fluffy one that would appeal to a healthy, hungry man? How do you turn it without breaking it? Do you start it on the flame, then bake it? And how do you serve it? How do you keep it from losing its beautiful fluffiness after it is done and ready to be served?

E. V. A.

Fresh eggs, proper beating and slow cooking have a lot to do with turning out fluffy, tender omelets. If the omelet is thoroughly and properly cooked it won't fall as quickly as an underdone omelet. However, all omelets should be served immediately after cooking while they're still at their peak. Here are instructions for making (and folding) a fluffy omelet:

- 4 eggs
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter.

Separate egg yolks from whites, add milk and baking powder and beat well. Combine egg whites and salt and beat until stiff but not dry. Melt butter in skillet over a low flame. Fold the yolk mixture lightly into the whites. Pour into the skillet and cover with a lid. As the omelet cooks, slash across it several times with

For the Sunny South —or Springtime In Washington

TRENDS to watch for in next summer's play clothes are reflected in the two costumes above, and at right, which are from the current resort collections of important New York designers

CLAIRE McCARDELL created this wool jersey frock. It is typical of her flair for unusual, casual clothes which can be worn with equal taste to a beach party or afternoon tea. The full, gathered skirt is in soft sheer jersey with large, slit pockets at either side. Bodice is of striped elasticized fabric, emphasizing the effect of the popular whittled waistline idea

DESIGNERS decree a more "covered-up" look for playtime this year. Long sleeves, high neckline and wrapped waistline are the distinctive notes in this beach costume, designed all of a piece of white waffle pique. Suit is buttoned on each side of the pants

The Market Memo:

'Specials' to Aid Reeling Budget

By Lucia Brown

MOST meat prices are flashing higher this weekend, with local stores offering numerous specials . . . fresh pork shoulders, smoked picnic hams, and ground beef among them . . . in an effort to help the housewife save her budget from oblivion. Stewing chickens and fish . . . both fresh and frozen . . . are a cheerful note in the somber meat price symphony, too. They're still abudant and reasonably priced.

Fresh fruits are an outstanding food buy right now . . . apples, grapefruit, oranges, tangerines, grapes, and pears. Apples are considerably cheaper than last fall . . . and dealers are expressing anxiety that current supplies won't be sold before they are too ripe to use.

Vegetables from South Florida and Texas are beginning to brighten the winter market. Green cabbage from Florida is replacing cabbage from New York. Southern broccoli is coming in and nice green beans are plentiful . . . reasonably priced for this time of year, too.

Celery Special: Have you noticed the fancy new celery pack now available in many stores? A local wholesaler is washing and trimming celery, removing rough outside stalks and less attractive leaves . . . placing two bunches in a long pasteboard tray and wrapping it in cellophane. The celery . . . every bit of which is guaranteed usable . . . sells from 19 to 23c a package in the stores.

Petticoat Fever

PETTICOATS are big fashion news this season. Designers have outdone themselves with swishing cottons that make skirts stand out, besides adding that touch of coquetry that goes with the sweeping silhouette.

Once on impeccably dressed woman never let her slip show. Now, half the charm of your ensemble is the peeping petticoat.

Maj. Da Costa Honored at Farewell Fetes

The youngest military attaches in town, who is also one of the most popular and best looking, is leaving soon for Tegucigalpa. Maj. Juan Da Costa of the Embassy of Honduras has been in Washington since 1943. He will fly to Honduras on Monday, stopping over for a visit of a few days in Mexico City and Guatemala City.

A number of farewell parties are being given in his honor—luncheons, dinners and cocktail parties. Among those who have entertained for him are Lieut. Col. Gustave Pabst, and the executive officer of the Inter-American Defense Board, Lieut. Col. Emory S. Adams.

During his stay in Washington, Maj. Da Costa also served as delegate of Honduras to the Inter-American Defense Board. Last year he was awarded the Legion of Merit. In Honduras, the major will rejoin the presidential staff.

The engagement of their daughter, Miss Jeanne Laviez, to Fred E. Weisgal has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Hirsh de Laviez. Mr. Weisgal is the son of Cantor and Mrs. A. J. Weisgal of Baltimore. No date has been set for the wedding.

Notes From Nippon–Home

Tokyo Society Progresses From Battle to Dinner Dress; 'Black Market' in Magazines

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

DENNIS McEVOY, son of gregarious litterateur, J. P. McEvoy, is just back from Japan with a typewriter full of fabulous tales about the little Nips. Young Mr. McEvoy, who heads up the Reader's Digest Bureau in Tokyo, speaks fluent Japanese. It all happened because at a so-called tender age he became interested in judo—a tough, technical kind of wrestling perfected by the Japanese.

Dennis McEvoy

He had mastered the simpler forms but was anxious to achieve the ultimate accolade of becoming a Black Belt. And, it seems, the intricacies of Black Belting can only be learned in Japan, so Papa McEvoy, on one of his round world trips, dropped off Dennis in the Flowery Kingdom.

He became a Black Belt and, in the Marine Corps during the war, both judo and Japanese came in handily. Right now he shares a 21-room palace with Leo Chamberlain of the ubiquitous National City Bank. The decor is elegantly Louis XV, there is a swimming pool, their five servants add up to less than 50 dollars a month and, they are paying 20 per cent above normal wages. Socially, Mr. McEvoy reports, Tokyo is on the up and up. The various embassies, up to their usual trick of giving incessant cocktail parties and dinners. "We've progressed," America's only Black Belt reports, "from battle-dress to black tie and before spring it'll be white tie after dark."

At first Dennis had a bit of trouble in Japanese upper strata circles because his vocabulary was topheavy with such vivid wrestling expressions as "Take your foot out of my mouth" or "Excuse if I twist your ear off" but he has ironed out these limitations and is now completely Emily Post.

Line Up to Buy Magazine

THE international editions of the Reader's Digest, which distribute over 54 million magazines a year, are published in 10 different languages including Japanese. Dennis has a staff of 30 translators and businessmen and although there is a demand for several million copies, the issue is purposely rationed at 350,000. As a result the Japs (who are mainly interested in articles on Russia and those termed "self-help") queue up for four or five blocks before publication. Since there are not enough to go around, a flourishing black market has been created and a series of amusing tie-in sales. If a purchaser buys a couple of less popular magazines, he may have a Reader's Digest.

A curious result is that the staid Reader's Digest is, in a roundabout way, responsible for the circulation of several slow-moving left-wing sheets!

They receive some amusing mail. A farm boy in an isolated region wrote he'd picked up a copy, read an article on disguising birthmarks. His sister, he claimed, was unmarried because of a disfiguring birth scar. The Digest leaped to action, contacted a manufacturer who makes a cosmetic to cover birthmarks, and a complete beauty kit was shipped to the lad's sister. Less than three months later the young farmer wrote back to say that his sister's wedding bells were ringing and that tears of gratitude were running down his pen!

ON January 28 some 200 very fashionably attired women will hit Washington and the Mayflower Hotel. They are all delegates to the convention of Women Broadcasters. Other years the ladies have convened in New York but this time it's the Capital and a White House reception on January 30. The feminine broadcasters, part and parcel of the National Association of Broadcasters, come from all over the country.

Ruth Crane

They rate higher in sartorial circles, we're assured somewhat too emphatically, than ladies of the press. These lavish wardrobes are credited to the exigencies of television, feminine broadcasters can't always wear the same old suit.

Personally, we attribute this added elegance to fatter pay envelopes. Anyway, Ruth Crane, of Washington's WMAL, is acting president. And recently she's been forced (sic!) to acquire four new ensembles for her television appearances. So drop into the Mayflower and look the girls over before indulging in a spring wardrobe!

Press Club to Hear Mrs. Roosevelt Talk

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the Human Rights Commission, United Nations, who has just returned from a meeting of the commission in Geneva, will be guest of honor and speaker at the Women's National Press Club's luncheon, Wednesday, January 14, 12:30 p. m. at the Statler Hotel.

Reservations close at 5 p. m., Monday.

Mrs. Norman C. Kal of 2800 Woodley rd. is leaving for Miami, Fla., next week to spend the rest of the winter. She will stop at the Cadillac Hotel. Mr. Kal will join her for the month of February.

Ceremony Is at Sulgrave

Nathaniel Luttrell Weds Miss Lunn

ONE of the season's loveliest brides is Miss Nina Lunn, daughter of Mrs. Nina Lunn and granddaughter of Senator and Mrs. Wallace H. White, jr., who was married yesterday to Nathaniel Horace Luttrell.

The ceremony at 4:30 was held at the Sulgrave Club with the Rev. Peter Marshall, Chaplain of the Senate, officiating. Senator and Mrs. White were hosts at the reception which followed.

Richard D. Lunn gave his niece in marriage. The bride, who is tall and blonde, wore an ivory satin gown made with a slim fitted bodice close at the neck and long tight sleeves. The very full skirt ended in a train. A long veil of rose point lace which had been worn by her mother, was arranged in coronet effect. She carried a bouquet of white and yellow orchids and lilies of the valley.

Light Blue Frocks

Miss Nola Lunn Dorbritz, maid of honor for her sister, wore a ballerina length frock of light blue faille with pink gloves to match her bouquet of pink camellias. Pink flowers were in her hair.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Peter Ansberry, Mrs. Edgar Orme, jr., sister of the bridegroom; Miss Norina Dorbritz, another sister of the bride, from Pittsburgh; Senorita Hilda Vallarino, daughter of the former Panama Ambassador; Miss Katherine Elkins and Miss Caroline Lumbard of Auburn, Me, cousin of the bride.

Their light blue ballerina frocks were worn with matching ballerina slippers and pink gloves. They carried bouquets to match their headdresses which were in tones of pale pink, cyclamen pink and violet.

The little flower girl, Nancy Orme, 6-year-old niece of the bridegroom, was in a pink frock and carried a circlet of flowers in the shape of a wedding ring.

Robert Barrett Bravo of Troy, Ohio, served as best man, and the group of ushers included E. Campbell Smidt, Joseph W. Stanley, Wiley T. Buchanan, John Floyd Waggaman, Edgar Orme, jr., Alvin Lothrop Luttrell brother of the bridegroom John Rust Potter of Darien, Conn., and Henry G. Lumbard of Auburn, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. Luttrell left later in the day for Nassau where they will spend their honeymoon. They will live in Virginia upon their return.

MRS. N. H. LUTTRELL
. . . married yesterday

The bride attended the Ellis School in Pittsburgh and Mount Vernon Seminary in Washington. She also studied at the Faegan School of Dramatic Art in New York and spent several months in Hollywood where she had a part in the recent film, "The Senator Was Indiscreet."

Mr. Luttrell is the son of the late Nathaniel H. Luttrell and the late Mrs. Harriet Lothrop Luttrell. He was educated at the Sidwell Friends School and is a graduate of Dartmouth College in the 1942 class. He received his B A degree in physics. He is a member of Delta Phi Fraternity. During the war, from 1943 to 1945 he was with the Naval Ordnance Laboratory as a physicist with the rank of chief petty officer.

Mrs. Zwicker Gives Shower for Miss Duval

MISS Juanita Duval, who will be married on January 24 to Lieut. Robert Merill Gardner, USN, was guest of honor yesterday afternoon at a tea and lingerie shower given by Mrs. M. H. Zwicker at the War College Officers' Club. The bride-elect is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Henry H. Duval. The wedding will take place in the Fort Myer Chapel.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After 13 Years of Plotting Meanly Against Her Husband's Fine First Wife, Woman Goes To Pieces With Remorse; How Redeem Herself?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: It is 13 years since I married John, whose first wife, Mrs. X, I have greatly wronged. They had married very young and weren't at all compatible, as we are.

When I came into the picture their eldest daughter had just married at 18, the second girl was an adolescent and the baby, Ruth, was just four.

Although John himself admits he was a very poor husband to her, he is a devoted father, and when they parted she hadn't the heart to deprive him of the girls, and he didn't want her to have them, so she left them to him and her parents, who lived nearby.

She felt that in time he'd become mollified and reasonably agree to share them with her. From indirect experience with her, and also from what others tell me, I know this to be her true motive. And here is where my guilt comes in.

Robs First Wife Of Her Children

JOHN might have let her see the younger girls or take them for holidays but my horrible jealousy never allowed it. I've always been and still am madly jealous of her, perhaps because I realize she is so much my superior in character and culture, certainly for no other reason.

She and John were miserable together, never see each other since they parted and she is long since happily married again to a very fine man. Theirs is a blessed union.

However, from the first I poisoned John's mind against her, painting her as a heartless mother for leaving the girls with him; did my best to drill the same conviction into them, and successfully prevented her from seeing the baby even for a day.

Also due to my jealousy of her I've never been very good to them, but they, being unusually intelligent, never wanted to worry her, and she has the impression that John imposed the estrangement. Through the years she has written me several times, graciously thanking me for my kindness to her girls.

Sense of Guilt Is Killing Her

THE SECOND girl is married now and Mrs. X sees her married daughters as often as possible, but Ruth hardly ever, because I've deliberately kept them apart and turned Ruth against her. How can I undo this wrong? How can I induce Ruth to want to visit her mother for a week or even a few days?—all that Mrs. X has ever begged for.

John and I have our own daughter, 12, so I know something of how I've hurt Mrs. X; and my conscience has begun to torment me so that I can hardly eat or sleep. My sense of guilt is killing me, but I don't think I am wicked really, or my conscience wouldn't hurt so.

Can you tell me how to atone without lowering myself in the esteem of my husband and stepchildren? I don't want to continue this beastly selfishness. Please help me out of the mire.

T. B.

Grim Irony In the Tale

DEAR T. B.: Taking the story at face value, there is a deal of grim irony in it, for the simple reason that Mrs. X has never really cared much about her children.

In a weakly amiable way, she's always been fond of them, no doubt, and perhaps with a specially tenderized nostalgia since they've lived apart. But even so, her fundamental positive preference was to clear out footloose when quitting John, or she couldn't and wouldn't have left them behind. And yet she may devoutly believe to this very day that her motives for going alone were as fuzzily-fine as she said.

Woman Courted Neurotic Crash

WHEN you moved in you found a clear field that she had freely relinquished by unconscious choice, whether she knows it or not; and you've been swinging at a phantom ever since in trying, as you thought, to cut her throat.

Essentially she was indifferent to the idea of regaining the children; had no soul-deep desire for it, although she might have taken them on with compliant sweetness had they been pushed at her, and may have pined for visiting privileges in proportion as they were denied her.

Thus your machinations haven't hurt her nearly as much as you think or had intended. The mad jealousy you brought to marriage showed a predispoistion to neurotic illness; and your 13 years' preoccupation with hate and fear since then have finally precipitated an emotional crisis that urgently calls for psychiatric treatment. Thus my advice is to find a good specialist and get straightened out.

Mental Breakdowns Increasing Among Older Group, Club Hears

By Genevieve Reynolds

Greater longevity of life is increasing the problem of mental disorders in the United States. There is a greater prevalency in the upper age brackets. So declared Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, in an address yesterday on "Mental Health."

Guest speaker at a meeting of the Twentieth Century Club, he said that mental breakdowns in the old-age groups are more prevalent, adding, "this is one of the penalities of preventive medicine."

Tracing the history of mental institutions, he told how they first were established as private and charitable institutions to care for the lunatic fringe and later were taken over by various States; how patients were admitted only after a jury trial to determine their sanity. "Mississippi and Texas are the only two States that now have jury trials of patients," he explained. "Until 10 years ago this barbarous procedure was practiced in the District."

Explaining that patients here now are examined by a commission—one lawyer and three medical men—he expressed a hope that St. Elizabeths could have voluntary admission of patients before the end of 1948.

Bellevue Is Cited

Dr. Overholser said that many of the State and county institutions have done outstanding jobs in caring for mental patients and cited Bellevue Hospital in New York City as a striking example. "None, however, are satisfied and want to do better jobs," he said.

Referring to the conditions of mental hospitals in the country, he said that lack of funds was not the only factor involved. Hospitals must be free from political interference and offer some sort of security to their employes. "There has been no political interference at St. Elizabeth's in several generations," he said. "In 100 years there have been only five superintendents."

Speaking of the success of the treatments at St. Elizabeths he said that a greater majority of the patients were returned to the community.

Alcohol Is Factor

Alcoholic neurosis sends about 5 per cent of the patients to St. Elizabeth's. Six to eight per cent of the patients' illness is attributed to syphilis, according to Dr. Overholser. Touching on the part heridity plays in mental disorders, he declared, "we don't take so much stock in hereditary factors, except as a contributing load."

In addition to the 150,000 who go into mental hospitals each year, other thousands now are being handled in out-patient clinics, according to the speaker.

Cases of psychosis are no greater in war than in peacetime. Neuroses, however, are much more numerous during the war than peacetime, he explained, pointing out that the Army had discharged 50 per cent of its neurogolical cases.

"One neurosis not so easily cured is the 'compensation one,'" remarked Dr. Overholser, "sometimes it is hard to convince a man he ought to get well when he is being paid for being ill."

Catholic Daughters Plan Dinner

a knife to permit the heat to penetrate the lower crust. When the omelet is done (after about 12 minutes), it may be placed uncovered on the center grate of a slow oven (275 degrees) until the top is set, or it may be folded over and served at once. To fold, make an incision with a knife on either side of the center of the omelet. Tip the pan and push the omelet gently from one side with a spatula or broad knife until it folds over. Serve plain, with a sprinkling of parsley or paprika over it, or with a tomato or cream sauce of some kind.

I would like to know if Washington has a cooking school, a school for housewives to take "practical" home interior decoration, and a school where one may learn bridge. J. W. S.

The Young Women's Christian Association, 17th and K sts. nw., offers classes in all these subjects. The bridge classes start January 12. Both daytime and evening classes for beginners and advanced bridge players are offered. New classes in cooking and home decoration start about February 1. Three different cooking classes are planned, one on Tuesday evenings, another on Thursday evenings and another Saturday mornings. There will be beginners and advanced classes in home decoration on Tuesday mornings and Monday evenings. For further information, telephone ME. 2100, Ext. 28.

The United States Department of Agriculture Graduate School, 14th st. and Independence ave., nw., also has excellent classes in home decoration. A new one for beginners (to be held Wednesdays from 6 to 7 p. m.) and an advanced class (Wednesdays from 7 to 8 p. m.) will start February 4. Registration for these classes begins January 12. For further information, telephone RE. 4142, Ext. 6337.

Can you tell me how to reheat biscuits, rolls and muffins so that they will be as much like fresh ones as possible? V.E.

There are several ways in which this may be done. You can put the bread in a paper bag, close it, and heat in a hot oven (425 degrees) for five minutes. You can place it in a hot, covered, double boiler over boiling water for about the same length of time. Or you can place in a covered pan, first rinsing the inside of the top of the pan with water (and not drying), and place it in the oven for five minutes. If bread is old, it may be lightly sprinkled with water before heating by any of these methods.

I would appreciate very much knowing of a home treatment for enlarged pores. Is an incorrect diet one of the causes? F.S.R.

I'm sorry, but this column does not answer beauty questions. Consulting a physician who is a skin specialist would be the best way to determine what causes the enlarged pores and what can be done to reduce the size.

Is there anything that can be done to brighten gold or silver lame? I have several pieces I should like to use for trimming but they are slightly tarnished with age. Also, one silver lame blouse has a dark tarnish stain on it. What do you recommend as a home cleaner? M. D. G.

There is a cleaning establishment in Silver Spring which removes tarnish from metallic fabrics, but they tell me that the process is an expensive one and when done, the fabric will tarnish again in only a few days. They can be reached by calling SHepherd 2330. There is no home method which is sure to remove tarnish. However, dusting the lace with powdered alum, allowing to stand for 15 to 20 minutes, and brushing might brighten it. Cleaning and removing stains from lame is such a highly technical business, that I suggest that you discuss the problem with the experts at the above Shepherd number.

What, if anything, can I do to remove burns (deep ones), caused by spilled sulphur candles on a hardwood floor?—C. M. B.

I'm afraid having the floor sanded and refinished is the only really satisfactory solution of your problem. Even then, if the burns are extremely deep, it might be necessary to have some sections of the planks replaced. If you do not want to go to the trouble of refinishing or replacing just now, you may be able to improve the appearance of less deep burns by the following method: Rub the burned surface away with fine steel wool. Brush thoroughly with a soft brush to remove scrapings. Apply turpentine with a soft lintless cloth. Let dry. If the floor is varnish-finished, apply a thin coat of varnish. When thoroughly dry, apply another, building up the surface so that it is even with the surrounding area. With the varnish brushed out well at the edges, the patch should not show. If the floor is shellacked, use shellac in making the patch. Do not attempt this method of repair with a deep burn that makes it necessary to "dig" a hole of any depth in the floor.

They're Reasonable, Too

Citrus Fruits Are Stars of Season

CITRUS fruits—more plentiful and reasonable now than at any time since before the war—provide ideal salad and dessert material these wintry days.

From the sunny groves of Florida, Texas and California thousands of fine grapefruit and oranges are reaching Washington. In fact, local dealers say the supply here now is almost of surplus proportions. In many stores, Florida oranges are selling for 39 cents for an 8-pound mesh bag, while the price on grapefruit generally runs around 4 to 6 cents a pound.

These citrus fruits bring a golden store of protective vitamins and minerals, especially needed by your family in the wintertime.

Sliced oranges and a few sprigs of watercress or other greens make a simple but delicious salad that's a nice contrast to heavy, wintertime foods

HONEY-BAKED GRAPEFRUIT

Select large, thin-skinned grapefruit. Cut in halves and cut each section free from the skin and membrane with a sharp knife. Pour 1 tablespoon of honey over each half and bake 15 minutes in a slow oven (300 degrees fahrenheit) or until thoroughly heated through. Add 2 teaspoons of strawberry or raspberry preserves to each grapefruit half just before serving. Serve hot for a dessert that will delight the family.

ORANGE-CABBAGE SALAD

2 tablespoons cream corn starch
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups finely chopped cabbage
2 cups orange juice
1 cup finely diced celery

Combine corn starch, salt and orange juice in a saucepan. Stir until corn starch is blended. Heat to boiling over direct heat, stirring mixture constantly. Boil gently for 1½ minutes or until mixture becomes thick and clear. Cool slightly. Fold in the cabbage and celery. Pour into individual molds which have been rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm enough to unmold (about 2 hours). Serve on any desired greens. Garnish mold with softened cream cheese, using a pastry tube. Top with mayonnaise or salad dressing. Makes 3¾ cupsful or 6 to 8 servings.

ORANGE MERINGUE PIE

1 cup sugar
5 tablespoons corn starch
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
2 cups orange juice
3 egg yolks
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 egg whites
6 tablespoons sugar

Mix sugar, corn starch, salt and grated peel in top part of double boiler. Add the orange juice and cook over boiling water about 15 minutes, or until thickened, stirring frequently. Stir in beaten egg yolks and cook 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Add butter and lemon juice. Cool slightly. Pour into baked 8-inch pastry shell. Cover with meringue made by beating 3 egg whites until frothy, and gradually beating in the 6 tablespoons sugar. Place in moderate oven (325 degrees fahrenheit) about 15 minutes, or until delicately browned.

GRAPEFRUIT TUNA SALAD

1½ cups grapefruit sections
1 cup flaked tuna fish (1 7-ounce can)
1 cup diced celery
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
Lettuce
French dressing or mayonnaise

Combine drained grapefruit sections, flaked tuna, celery and pimiento. Chill about 30 minutes in refrigerator. Serve on lettuce or other salad greens with a tart French dressing or mayonnaise. This recipe makes 6 servings.

Right Shoes Needed for First Steps

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Not until your baby begins to walk will you be very conscious of the position of his feet. Then you may find, to your surprise, that the baby walks very pigeon-toed, or with the feet spread outward like those of a cutout doll, or maybe one foot in and one foot out, both feet appearing to head in the same direction.

These are usualy temporary situations which clear up as the child gains muscle strength and more adeptness at walking. It is quite to be expected that he will spread his legs far apart for better balance and the probability is that his feet will toe in.

If this condition continues overlong it should be brought to the attention of the baby's doctor, who will suggest the type of corrective shoe which will help to end it.

Shoes are important when the baby begins to walk. Up to this time he may have had soft moccashoes, or even the soft type of kid baby shoe. There is a feeling that he can't walk in these but any baby can prove that to the contrary. He can and does.

The baby can also walk barefooted and it would be fine for his feet. But, we live in a world where temperatures, the harshness of paving, of sidewalk, of hardwood floors and even of grass, may be punitive to the child's tender soles. He needs the protection of shoes when he is walking and it is essential that shoes be of a material and shape and size so that they stay put on the feet and do not cause the child to slip and fall because they twist out of place.

The type of shoe that manufacturers make for the walking child is the one to buy. It should be white, preferably, be well-made so that the inside is smooth without lumps or harsh seams. It should be high so that it can be laced into place on the foot and be fitted at least three fourths inches longer than the child's standing length of foot and wide enough for each toe to spread comfortably.

If the child has one pair of such shoes and wears them constantly until worn out, they needn't be

How to Save Dairy Foods

1. Wipe milk bottles well, or place under cold running water before storing in milk compartment of refrigerator. Keep covered, away from strong-smelling foods. Take out only as much as needed at one time; keep the rest cool. Don't combine one day's milk with another's.

2. Cold and covered—for eggs. Store eggs in a covered bowl or pan away from strong-smelling foods. Without a cover and refrigeration, eggs lose moisture, food value faster.

3. Store hard cheese, tightly wrapped in waxed paper, in refrigerator. For longer storage, wrap again in a towel.

4. Serve cottage cheese and other soft cheese soon after buying; these spoil rapidly.

Bacon Muffins Are Breakfast Treat

A real breakfast treat—as well as an extender of the fine flavor of expensive meat—is the bacon muffin The following recipe makes 12 sizable muffins:

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
¼ teaspoon salt.
1 tablespoon sugar.
1 egg.
2/3 cup milk.
3 tablespoons melted fat.
1 cup wheat flakes.
1/3 cup crumbled cooked bacon.

To sifted flour, add baking powder, salt, sugar, and resift. Beat egg. Combine with milk and slightly cooled fat. Add to dry ingredients. Stir only enough to dampen flour. Fold in flakes and bacon, being careful not to overmix. Fill well-greased muffin pans 2/3 full. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 25 minutes.

Telephone Is Dangerous Weapon in Hands of 'Humorist'

A cruel "joke" has been played on dozens of Washingtonians in the past 10 days, and the purpose of this item is to sound a warning to possible new victims.

A young man has been calling several numbers each day and representing himself as the conductor of a WINX quiz program.

He asks the householder a simple question, and when it is answered correctly he exclaims:

"Congratulations! You've just won $200. Call us back and tell us where you want the money sent."

It doesn't take long for the excited victim to discover that WINX is not broadcasting any quiz programs, and that the station never heard of the young man with the warped sense of humor until it began to get calls from deluded listeners.

If this alleged humorist asks you to call back with instructions regarding your "prize money" just tell him to take it down to the butcher shop and buy himself some brains.

COINCIDENCE DEPT.

Talk about coincidences—here's one which stems from our streetcar token collection for Children's Hospital.

Yesterday's mail brought some tokens from Mrs. Donald B. Clement of 25 Worthington dr., who explained:

"These tokens come all the way from Portland, Oreg. A niece was with me two years ago and she just returned the tokens."

And in the very same mail came a letter from a Legation st. resident, who wrote:

"Inclosed you will find a postcard from a woman who says that she is a shut-in and wants three Washington tokens for a charm bracelet.

"The woman is a perfect stranger to me, but if she's a shut-in trying to make her own way she has my respect.

"Will you please send her three tokens in exchange for this quarter."

So I'm adding the quarter to the hospital fund, and sending three tokens to the shut-in who lives (you guessed it) in Portland, Oreg.

MISCELLANY

Edna L. Nickey of Presidential Gardens, Alexandria, Va., wonders what's happened to the old-fashioned practice of giving away calendars at the end of the year . . . Mrs. Lucille R. Lawley of 3070 Thayer st. ne. read our item about the spelling of "tooth paste" and checked with the product in her own medicine cabinet. "What do I do now," she asks. "All it says is 'Pepsodent'" . . . Exterminator Simon Ratner agrees that it's a good idea to put out food for the birds while the snow is on the ground, but he cautions that it shouldn't be left where rats can get at its first . . . Linda Ann Harty of 900 Ellsworth dr., Silver Spring, Md., wants help in locating two records waxed by the Krupa Jazz Trio: "Dark Eyes" and "Stompin' at the Savoy." She says the record shops contend they've never heard of these disks (which makes me feel better because neither have it) . . . Today's thanks for tokens for Children's Hospital go to: Anne Burness, Mrs. Harry S. Elkins of 1407 Highland dr., Silver Spring, Md. (cash inclosed); L. E. Weed of 3043 M st. se., and the folks at 4534 Warren st. nw. . . . Dolores Lee Hartley of 439 S. Lee hwy., Falls Church, Va., is probably the youngster contributor to our New Words Dept. Two-and-a-half-year-old Dolores says that she attends "Nurseme School."

ADD NAMES

Is there an A County anyplace in the country? That's all I need to complete our collection, because F. L. D. says that in Arkansas we'll find Izzard County.

PERSONAL NOTES

Jimmy Main, 38L Ridge rd., Greenbelt, Md.: Our librarians say that the book you recall from your Navy days is probably "The Glittering Hill" by Clyde F. Murphy, published by E. P. Dutton in 1944.

Catherine Barila, 4234 Lily Ponds dr. ne.: The man you want to thank for the Christmas tree is Clarke Daniel, 4533 N. 32d rd., Arlington, Va.

EMANCIPATOR

Thelma P. Murto of 419 Ogelthorpe st. nw. offers an idea which brings new hope to henpecked married men (and there's a redundant phrase if I ever wrote one).

Mrs. Murto reports that her New Year's resolution is that never again will she select, purchase, or bestow upon any male a necktie of any description.

She hopes that her action will establish a trend, and that eventually males will be permitted to wear cravats of their own choosing.

Or, if they prefer, they can grow beards and do without neckties entirely.

INFORMATION PLEASE

Now that our scientists are finished inventing the atomic bomb, T. H. Russell of 2011 I st. nw., wants to know whether anybody has ever found a good way to dispose of old razor blades.

ADD SIGNS

Harry Traub submits a sign item which will probably gain wide circulation among our phohibitionists.

BEER & WINE FIGHTS TONITE

Mary Worth's Government Girl Contest Rules

Details of the Mary Worth Government Girl Contest follow:

1. The Mary Worth Government Girl Contest is designed to select a model Government girl upon whom the artist of the Mary Worth strip will base the drawing of the heroine of his Government girl episode.

2. All girls employed by the United States Government in the metropolitan Washington area are eligible.

3. Entries shall consist of photographs only, one photograph from each entrant, the photograph to be not more than one year old at the time of entry.

4. Any kind of black and white picture (no color sheets or tints) may be entered, including snapshots, but be sure to get one that does you justice and is big enough for the judges to see what you look like.

5. Pictures must be entered unmounted. No frames, no glass.

6. The Washington Post will make reasonable efforts to return photographs but accepts no responsibility for their return.

7. Each photograph must be accompanied by a slip of paper pasted to the bottom of the photograph, carrying the following information, typed or printed: Name, local address, age, home address, type of work, Government office in which employed, and statement of release, plus signature. (For convenience, The Washington Post will run a form every day which can be used as an entry blank.)

8. Winner will be used as a model for the comic strip and will receive $200 in cash. Runner-up gets $50 in cash. Next 10 get $5 each.

9. Decision of the judges will be final. There will be no correspondence of any kind in regard to individual entries.

10. Entries postmarked later than January 23 will not be considered.

11. By entering the contest, the entrant binds herself to accept these rules and conditions as here stated.

12. Entries should be mailed to Contest Editor, The Washington Post, Washington 5, D. C.

Italy Sending New 'Liberty Bell'

By Drew Pearson

Florence, Italy.—Minister of Transport Corbellini says that since Americans helped get a bell for Adano he is getting a bell for Philadelphia. The Liberty Bell, he heard, is cracked. The bell for Philadelphia is now on this train. It's directed to Philadelphia Rotary Club, since Corbellini is president of the Florence Rotary, and it sure is heavy. Our baggage is getting more unwieldy day by day.

Pearson

The Florence reception was so large the railroad uncoupled the flatcar from which we speak, so people could get around it. I was worried sick for fear people would be crushed. There were no police. Italians don't think much of police since Mussolini's day, but the crowd finally formed its own cordon.

There was a big advance debate over whether Mayor Mateo Falsini, who's a Communist, would come to the train. He did, and made a nice speech paying tribute to friendship with the American people. Seemed like a nice guy. They tell me a lot of these Italian Communists are only theoretical Communists.

One old fellow jumped on the flatcar, tears streaming down his cheeks, and gave me a large kiss. I felt a little foolish. I wished all the others who did so much for Friendship Train back home could be here to see the gratitude of these people.

Minister of Transport Corbellini insisted on driving the locomotive when the train left Florence. He used to be a locomotive engineer. However, he got so many Italian newspapermen up in the cab with him I thought he would never get the train started.

Red Mayor Sulks

Bologna is the Reddest city in Italy; about 90 per cent Communist. Mayor Duzzo didn't come to the train, giving as his excuse that last September I quoted an Army report to the effect that he was among the top Communist leaders who planned a revolution in Italy. One thing I didn't write about him, but which was in the Army's report, was that he also was sheltering two Slav agents in his house.

Despite Duzzo's absence, the crowd at Bologna railroad station was most enthusiastic. In fact, we had to stop Italians from jumping on the flatcar to make speeches. One priest who did get on the car and harangued the crowd said, "Columbus discovered America, and now look what an investment it has returned us!"

John Secondari of Columbia Broadcasting does a terrific job as Friendship Train master of ceremonies. Nicola Giuli also gets across big. He is the Italian-American who rode with us from Los Angeles, and now he's paid his own expenses to come all the way to Italy to tell Italian people details of how food was collected.

Milan—Crowds here were not so big. Perhaps it was too early in the morning, or perhaps because this is another strong Communist center. Milan is the Pittsburgh of Italy, with considerable unemployed.

Milan Mayor's Speech Beautiful

Later, however, there was a big crowd in the square outside city hall, where we attended a reception by Mayor Antonia Greppi, a left-wing Socialist. Greppi made a beautiful speech, despite the fact that several Communist members of his city council were keeping close eye on him.

At Padua the biggest and most enthusiastic crowd so far met us. Flags flew everywhere. People packed in the square outside the station.

The Milan papers which caught up with us in Padua, indicate we got a better reception there than we thought. Many pictures were published of the parade of trucks carrying friendship food going through main streets, also several fine editorials.

Dr. Roy Welker, Congregationalist minister who heads up our Friendship Train committee for distribution of the food, is sick. He has to go back to Rome. Msgr. Andrew Landi of Brooklyn is taking his place.

At Udine, a few kilometers from the Yugoslav border, there were three bands at the railroad station and a tremendous crowd.

At Gorizia the station was so jammed we couldn't move. Outside were another 10,000 people. They had been waiting a long time but were most orderly. The station was so packed we moved out into the square, pulled a table out of the station and used it as a speakers' platform. The Mayor of Trieste had come over to welcome us as well as the Cardinal of Gorizia. They all spoke, including the Mayor of Gorizia. Fortunately, the table was strong.

All week I have been speaking in English, which was then translated. All week I had also been trying to get up my nerve to speak in Italian. At Gorizia I got up my nerve. Judging by the results I should have done it sooner.

It was my last speech in Italy. Regretfully, I am now heading for Paris, Washington and back to work.

Va. Students Ask Voice in Rules Council Enforces

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 8 (AP).—The University of Virginia student council today protested to the university's administration and the board of visitors that unless it has a part in formulating rules governing the student body it will not enforce such regulations.

The protest, published in the student newspaper, over the name of Lilburn T. Talley, Richmond, Va., student, referred to new fraternity rules passed at last month's board meeting.

The board will meet here tomorrow.

The interfraternity council has petitioned the board to lift restrictions on entertaining women in fraternity houses.

A FAIR WARNING

If you own a lot on a paved street in Montgomery or Prince Georges Counties on which you propose to build, it will cost you not $94 but $575 to have the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission make your service and water connections. We believe this rate is excessive. In order to fully familiarize you with the issues involved there will be a special meeting in the

Silver Spring Armory at 2:30 P. M. Saturday, January 10

It will be attended by the members of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, County Commissioners, State Senators, members of the House of Delegates from both Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, The Washington Suburban Master Plumbers Association and various civic groups.

The Home Builders and Master Plumbers will present their request and the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission will present its views on the issue and we thereby hope to arrive at a more equitable fee for making sewer and water connections.
